On the Golden Arrow, 1,000 Miles of Wealth.
What Ails U. S.
Hiram Johnson, En Route.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.

THE PENNSYLVANIA fast train "Golden Arrow" comes here from New York in a line almost straight, from the heart of Manhattan through Trenton, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne to Chicago and Lake Michigan.

All the way, for nearly 1,000 miles you travel through cities, factories, fields, golf links, past endless rows of automobiles, going both ways.

ON ONE SIDE of the track are cattle, fattening in the fields, on the other, pigs, brown, white, speckled, big and enormously fat, or small, just starting their careers toward the packing house, rooting up the fields, making them fertile. They supply a market for corn, while preparing to supply the demand for pork.

IT IS A SOLEMN thought that those pigs never heard of Chicago, and would not believe in the reality of a packing house with sharp knives, devices for stripping off bristles, and "saving everything but the squeal."

How can we tell what is ahead of us, since the destiny of a humble pig is so different from anything it could possibly imagine?

EVERYTHING BETWEEN New York and Chicago looks like prosperity. Passing through so much wealth and fertility, so many proofs of enterprise, skill and energy, you could not believe that "depression" covers it all unless you heard and read about depression.

There is comfort at least in the knowledge that everything needed for happiness is still here, if only men would realize it, and use opportunity.

WHAT IS THE matter with us? It is for "high finance" that knew everything in 1929 to say.

What should be done to make conditions better we should be told by those that are elected and paid to govern the country and make laws for it.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler says the trouble with the Republican party is:

"It doesn't know what to do, or, if it does, it is afraid to do it."

IN CHICAGO'S Blackstone Hotel dining room, crowded in spite of the depression, many have their eyes on one central table, where Hiram Johnson, of California, sits, with his wife, on their way to Washington. Senator Johnson read the future accurately when he said Chinese chopsticks could not conquer Japanese machine guns.

The chopsticks are scattered in far Manchuria, Japan is taking what she wants, warning Russia not to interfere, and the League of Nations is worrying, like the butterfly that threatened to stamp his foot.

IN HIRAM JOHNSON'S eye there is the light of youth and battle.

He evidently looks forward with pleasure to the Senate gathering on December 7.

Judging by what he told Chicago reporters yesterday, he will soon be brewing "bad medicine" for administration Republicans.

AMIDST ALL our troubles it is a comfort to learn from science, represented by Dr. Tolman, of the California Institute of Technology, one of the greatest living mathematicians, that there is no reason why this universe should "come to an end" EVER.

Jeans, Eddington and others tell us that all matter in the universe is being transformed into radiation, light and heat.

Radiation can never change back into "solid" matter. Therefore in so many billions of billions of years the universe must be a useless, uninhabited thing, at an uncomfortably low temperature.

THAT WOULD make anyone nervous, but Dr. Tolman proves, mathematically, that the components of radiation, heat, light, etc., can perfectly well change back into matter.

The universe, like a clock run down, can be wound up again. So three cheers for Dr. Tolman, who removes a load of anxiety. This little earth must grow cold and uninhabitable in a few hundred million years and so must all the planets and suns. But what do we care. There will always be "many mansions" to which we can move.

SUCH OPTIMISM as can be gathered together is needed in Chicago, where taxation is more than real estate can bear.

It will soon be the same in New York, by the way.

Chicago real estate owners demand that the city give a bonus in a discount to those that pay taxes promptly. That would be a pleasant change from a penalty for delayed payment.

THE CHICAGO and Northwestern Railroad has just discontinued dividends on both its preferred and common stock, that have paid dividends for 50 years, without a break. The stockholders feel worse than Old Mother Hubbard when she went to get her poor dog a bone.

Woman Author Renews Trial Marriage Pact

KATHERINE BRUSH

Katherine Brush Finds First Three Years Success

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Katherine Brush, author, and H. Charles Winans, banker, have found their trial marriage a success and plan to enlist for another three years in the army of wedded folk.

When the attractive author became Mrs. Winans more than two years ago, she announced she was signing up for three years at most, but if the venture turned out well there would be a second term.

Arriving from Paris, where they spent their second wedding anniversary on a second honeymoon, they expressed enthusiasm about the arrangement. Miss Brush said their plan of maintaining separate apartments in the same building was a happy thought. She said:

"We both keep separate residences and we never see each other when engaged on desperate creative work, but I can hear h's typewriter upstairs, batting out financial plans, while I am putting Renwood, O., on paper down below. It is fun to call him up when I am through, or have him call up, and say, 'are we dining together tonight?'"

Mercury at 74, Breaks Records

The high temperature record for this date was toppled today as the unseasonable warmth pushed the mercury to 74 degrees, one degree above the previous mark, established in 1906. Heavy thundershowers in the Mississippi and lowe Ohio valleys are headed this way, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. No cold weather is in sight, he said.

ARMSTRONG MOURNED IN COUNTY

Body Will Lie in State at Courthouse Monday for Tribute Before Funeral

The body of Joseph G. Armstrong will lie in state in the rounda of the courthouse for public view from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. Monday.

The funeral, which will take place Monday afternoon, will be simple, in accordance with the late political leader's desires, for during his illness he told his family:

"If anything happens to me, I don't want any fuss made about my funeral. There are too many people starving to death on the South Side to spend money on a fancy funeral."

Funeral plans were decided on only tentatively this afternoon. Dr. Carl A. Voss, pastor of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, will deliver a eulogy over the remains Monday afternoon in the Courthouse.

PRIVATE FUNERAL

Following this service there probably will be a private service in the Armstrong home. There will be no honorary pallbearers. Burial will be private in South Side Cemetery.

Plans to hold a service in the Bingham Street Methodist Episcopal Church were tentatively dropped because it was felt that the church could not accommodate the great crowds.

Permission to have the remains lie in state in the Courthouse was obtained today by a committee of county officials from the family. The committee which visited the Armstrong home included County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, Controller Robert G. Woodside, Coroner W. J. McGregor and Ben Anderson, secretary to Commissioner E. V. Babcock.

Flags hung limp at half-staff from the City-County Building and the Courthouse today while thousands mourned the passing of the 63-year-old veteran of scores of political fights.

The chairman of the Board of County Commissioners died at 10:15 o'clock last night while physicians and firemen administered oxygen in a vain effort to arouse him from the coma that preceded death.

Threats Bring Heaviest Guard To Wall Street

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The entire New York financial district—and the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. particularly—was under one of the heaviest police guards ever assigned to such duty today as the result of a series of threatening letters.

The letters, signed "Communist," were received not only by officials of Morgan & Co., but also by Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the Emergency Unemployment Relief Committee, by officials of the New York Stock Exchange, and of the Bankers Trust Company.

The first of the guards were placed after a report that an attempt might be made to bomb the Morgan offices at Broad and Wall streets. Members of the police bomb squad were included in a detail of 20 detectives patroling the white building opposite the Stock Exchange and the uniformed force in the vicinity was trebled, and it was said other officers were assigned to duty inside the building. Throughout the financial section, the police force was augmented, and City Hall and the Municipal Building were closely watched over.

'MACHINE MAN,' PROUD OF IT

Death came to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong today just two months after his long, spectacular political career ended.

Defeated for renomination at the September primary by Commissioner C. C. McGovern, he was able to look back on a political career that extended over 40 years.

Commissioner Armstrong was an "organization" politician and proud of it. He had no time for "reformers," and he did not hesitate in telling them and the world how he felt about them.

His first political training he obtained on the floor of "Old L. A. No. 300," a branch of the Knights of Labor, which was the official title of the glassblowers' union, although hardly anybody remembers now what the L. A. stands

FUND DRIVE EXTENDED ONE WEEK

Workers Need More Time To Raise Full Quota; $3,242,725 Now Pledged

A list of Welfare Fund donors will be found on Page 16.

The campaign of the Welfare Fund and the Allegheny County Emergency Association will have to be carried on through Thanksgiving week instead of closing Monday, it was announced today at a luncheon of workers in the William Penn Hotel.

The announcement was made by Joseph Dilworth, general chairman of the campaign, who told the workers that the full quota must be raised.

The drive was originally scheduled to end Monday, but the fact that only slightly more than half the total has been raised makes it necessary to extend the drive, Dilworth said. There will be luncheon meetings Monday and Tuesday. Final reports will be made at a dinner Monday night, November 30.

$3,242,725 REPORTED

Subscriptions totaling $196,174.98 were reported today, swelling the total so far to $3,242,725.69. So far 36,081 subscriptions have been received with 75,000 persons yet to be solicited. Among subscriptions reported today was one of $6,971 from employes of the Union Switch and Signal Company. This is aside from the $10,000 donation of the company for the employes. It was reported that one-third of the county employes have been solicited so far and their donations have amounted to $16,000. Donations from federal employes have amounted to $11,000.

Clevelanders are far ahead of Allegheny County in their relief campaign.

Starting last Monday, Cleveland's volunteer army held its fourth meeting yesterday, reporting a total to date of $3,010,000 in

While the young man is reported to have evidenced a literary taste, yet when he spent the summer of 1930 in Pittsburgh, he devoted most of his time to a study of the banking business. His father, however, is leaving his choice of a career entirely up to his son.

PEEPER JURORS FAIL TO AGREE

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 20.—The jury trying Dr. John T. West, 50, principal of Morgantown High School, for alleged misconduct with Esther Williams, 27-year-old teacher, returned to the courtroom at 11:25 a. m. today and announced that it could not reach a verdict.

Judge Charles G. Baker discharged the jury and the case was placed on the court calendar. It will not be reheard at the present term of court, County Prosecutor Albert Shuman said.

Three other indictments in connection with the alleged love affairs of principal are on the present calendar awaiting a jury hearing. One accuses Dr. West of misconduct with Blanche Garfield, another young teacher; the others contain a misconduct charge against each of the teachers.

The jury's failure to reach a verdict came after its member sat through four days of highly contradictory testimony and had listened yesterday to acrimonious accusations from both prosecution and defense attorneys.

COMMISSION TO PASS ON DISPUTE

International Body Will Go to Manchuria in Plan Acceptable to League

PARI, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Both Japan and China agreed in principle tonight to a proposal for an armistice in Manchurian military activities.

The cessation of hostilities would be based on the creation of an international commission to investigate the whole Manchurian situation.

Representatives of China and Japan and all the other members of the council adopted this proposal, which is largely a Japanese suggestion. After its adoption the council was informed that the Chinese were ready to accept it in principle.

VICTORY FOR JAPAN

In League of Nations quarters the decision was regarded as a victory for the Japanese.

Tomorrow there will be an open meeting of the council and it was expected that the members would adopt the decisions which were agreed upon in principle today, and would arrange conditions for an armistice and define the terms under which the investigating commission would operate.

Meantime, the Japanese army would hold what it already has in Manchuria, and the commission would make reports from time to time to the league council.

This action was deterbined upon in a private meeting of the council this evening after United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes had made it clear that the United States intended to "preserve its full freedom of judgment as to its course" in the Manchurian dispute.

DAWES STAND

Gen. Dawes said his government was sympathetic with the league's efforts to restore peace, but he left no doubt regarding his intention to remain aloof from discussions bearing on the application of the league covenant.

As a signatory to the pact of Paris and to the nine power treaty, he said, the United States

South Side Throngs Pay Armstrong Silent Homage

Death followed hope late yesterday and the gray-haired veteran of Allegheny County's political life, Joseph G. Armstrong ceased a struggle with a world which had failed him.

Immediately following the death of the "Old Gray Mayor" at 10:15 p. m., a throng of women and children of the South Side district in which he spent all his life, lined the streets, mourning the man they had idolized. The crowd was silent—scarcely a word was spoken; even traffic was hushed, and only the occasional rumble of a street car broke the silence.

The atmosphere surrounding the home spoke of the esteem in which the South Side district held Armstrong.

Visitors at the Armstrong home last night included Justice James B. Drew, Alderman John Kearcher, of the Seventeenth Ward; James E. Routley, acting chief clerk under Armstrong, and Bertram A. Succop, former city Director of Supplies.

Rogers War-Bound, Taking 'Awfullest Compliments'

MEDFORD, Ore., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, will sail from Vancouver, B. C., Saturday for Japan, where he will act as war correspondent, he said here today.

Rogers, en route from Los Angeles to Vancouver by airplane, was forced down here last night. He said he could continue northward by train. He explained:

"I'll be back in time for the presidential campaign. I wouldn't miss one of them for all the wars.

"Japan is going to hear the awfullest compliments as I hear they don't stand for any wisecracks. Also I don't speak their language and am having lots of trouble with my own."

Advices from Vancouver said Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and author, also would sail for Japan and Manchuria on Rogers' ship, the Empress of Russia.

CONGRESSMEN TO CONTINUE SALES TAX STUDY IN U. S.

HEARST PARTY ON WAY HOME FROM CANADA

Publisher Voted Thanks for Affording Opportunity to Scan System of Revenue

By CHARLES J. McGUIRK
International News Service.

ABOARD SPECIAL CONGRESSIONAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON Nov. 20.—Congress and the people of the United States are going to hear a lot about Canada's sales tax system next winter.

With 65 United States Senators and Representatives aboard this train returning today to Washington, D. C., following a weeks tour of Canada, the sales tax will be put to the fore in the forthcoming battle over how to balance the federal budget.

These Congressmen have studied practical operation of the sales tax at close range. At Ottawa, seat of the Canadian government, they heard from ranking government officials that the tax had been proved a success, that it was comparatively easily administered and one of the most painless forms of taxation ever devised.

COLLECT STATISTICS

Statistics on tax collections under the sales levy, copies of the Canadian law and a budget of facts gathered from those who pay the tax as well as those who collect it—these were in the brief cases and luggage of the legislators.

Included in the party which left Quebec last night were Senators King (Dem.) of Utah, Gore and Thomas of Oklahoma and Austin (Rep.) of Vermont. King and Thomas are members of the Senate Finance Committee which handles all revenue legislation.

Prominent members of the House Ways and Means Committee also are aboard the special train, including Representatives Canfield (Dem.) of Indiana and Estep (Rep.) of Pennsylvania. Representative Stegall (Dem.) of Alabama, who probably will be made chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee next month, also is in the party.

TO CONTINUE STUDY

That the group of lawmakers intends to continue their sifting of the sales tax and see how it may be applied to the United States was indicated by their decision, reached at a private meeting last night in Quebec, to hold further meetings in Washington.

Upon motion of Representative Howard (Dem.) of Nebraska the group unanimously adopted this course of action. Speeches thanking William Randolph Hearst for inviting the legislators to make the journey under his auspices were made.

A motion expressing thanks for his affording the opportunity for this fact-finding mission was unanimously adopted.

Senator King said it was the general sentiment of the party that Mr. Hearst had made "another patriotic contribution." No attempts were made to commit members of the party for or against the sales tax, King pointed out.

A committee was appointed to extend to the government of Canada, the provincial government of Quebec and municipal authorities of Montreal and Quebec City the thanks of the party for their cordial reception and the information given on the sales tax.

EASILY ADMINISTERED

This committee consists of Senators King and Gore and Representatives Howard, Free (Rep.) of California, and Prall (Dem.) of New York.

In Quebec the delegation met with the same cordiality that marked stops in Montreal and Ottawa. While the mission was primarily to study the sales tax operations at close range, at every banquet tendered to the visitors the theme was close co-operation between Canada and the United States on all problems of mutual interest.

Mayor Henry Levigeur, of Quebec, told the visitors at a luncheon given by the city of Quebec in conjunction with Board of Trade and the Kiwanis Club that the sales tax had been a success in Canada.

The Mayor recalled that he was a member of the Dominion's parliament 11 years ago, when the sales tax was first established. He said:

"I believe that the sales tax has been accepted with greater resignation by the people of Canada than any other major form of taxation ever imposed.

"The tax is easily administered. It is well distributed and spreads over the entire population."

THE END OF A RUGGED TRAIL By Quin Hall

GUARD GRANDI IN PHILA. AFTER BOMBING

Blast Damages Wide Area Near Italian Consulate; Welcomed in New York

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, came to Philadelphia today where last night a terrific explosion rocked the neighborhood of his government's consulate. The blast was ascribed in many quarters to anti-Fascist sentiment.

Grandi was heavily guarded as he arrived here from New York, where 2,000 police protected him this morning on a formal visit there to receive that city's welcome.

TO VISIT CARDINAL

Grandi, together with Signora Grandi, who came direct from Washington, was the guest of the city of Philadelphia and the Sons of Italy. Mayor Harry A. Mackey entertained at a luncheon in his honor at the Penn Athletic Club and tonight he is to be guest at a dinner in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. This afternoon he was to pay a call to Cardinal Dougherty and make a sightseeing tour which included Independence Hall.

Last night's bombing caused several thousand dollars' damage in the Chestnut Hill district.

The blast smashed the windows of the Episcopal Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields and damaged homes for a radius of four blocks. It took place only three blocks from the home of Italian Consul General Ferrante, and he termed it of anti-Fascist origin. He said:

"As soon as I heard that explosion I knew it was meant for me."

2,000 Guard Grandi From New York Foes

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—A solid wall of 2,000 New York bluecoats today kept the shadow of a threatened anti-Fascist demonstration from Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy.

There was only one unlooked incident during the parade from the Battery to City Hall.

Albert Cupelli, alleged anti-Fascist, was arrested near City Hall charged with attempting to leap on the running board of the official car bearing Signor Grandi.

He was beaten by Fascist sympathizers before he was rescued by police.

The line of march was over a route where shortly before dawn unidentified persons had pasted more than 1,000 posters on poles, windows and building fronts. They bore a picture of Grandi and the caption:

"Wanted for arson and murder."

'TRIAL' SUNDAY

Before the picture was printed:

"Trial, Sunday, November 22, 2 p. m., Irving Plaza, Fifteenth street and Irving place. Admission free."

When the procession arrived at City Hall, Mayor "Jimmy" Walker, of the ready wit and the laughing tongue, added a light touch to the affair.

ROMAN HOLIDAY

It was a true Roman holiday in City Hall and downtown New York with hands through the crowd raised in the striking Fascist salute—palm raised outward high above the head.

Grandi concluded a reply to Mayor Walker with an indirect reference to his diplomatic conversations with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson. He said:

"I thank you, Mr. Mayor, for your good wishes. You may be sure that these wishes are for a good cause, the cause of peace and solidarity among peoples which united the flags of your nation and my nation."

SEE TOKIO-RUSS PACT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Russia's quiescent attitude toward the war in Manchuria, giving rise to reports of a secret Japanese-Russian understanding, stirred renewed speculation here today.

Officials plainly were puzzled by the continued Russian silence, as Japanese troops penetrated into the Russian zone of Manchuria, and enveloped a section of the Chinese Eastern Railway, partially Russian controlled.

When trouble has threatened there in the past, one assurance of peace has been the circumstance that any aggressor faced the united opposition of both of the other interested parties.

Yet in the present instance, Russia has appeared almost uninterested in the northward march of the Japanese, while China stood alone in the pathway.

CLARK PREDICTS BLAST EXPOSE

Safety Director James M. Clark has informed Gov. Pinchot in a letter that the bombing of the home and office of the Italian vice consul, Dr. Giovannia Giurato, at 514 South Neville street, is being thoroughly investigated and something of importance is expected soon.

City Detectives Michael Tortorelli and Guy Ellis, of the bomb and arson squad, are working on the case, and Director Clark has given it considerable personal attention.

The bombing occurred August 12. September 5, Director Clark wrote Gov. Pinchot he had uncovered information of a startling nature which he would disclose to a personal agent of the Governor, but did not care to put it in writing. This message was apparently disregarded. The latest line of inquiry was opened by the Italian Ambassador, acting through Secretary Stimson at Washington.

POLICE GUARD WALL STREET

to police through the Justice Department's office here.

Mulrooney said he knew nothing himself of threatening letters received by financiers, but acknowledged that the guard was a very heavy one. He said that because of unequal distribution of money due to the present economic situation certain Wall street bankers and brokers seemed to have a feeling that "something dreadful might happen." He said:

"They (the bankers) seem to have a fear that they are unable to explain that something will happen when the cold weather arrives, and the fear seems to be based on the assumption that they in Wall street have the money while others have not. Precautionary measures, accordingly, were deemed advisable.

"Ever since the 1920 Wall street explosion, in which 34 were killed and 400 injured, there has been an extra guard of police and detectives in and around the J. P. Morgan offices. The office itself has a number of private guards."

WAIT SENTENCE IN STOCK FRAUD

As the third day of their trial opened in Criminal Court this morning, David S. Hammond and J. Ritchie entered pleas of no defense to charges of conspiracy to defraud in sale of stock of the Atlantic Drug and Chemical Company.

They were remanded to jail where Hammond is serving a two-year sentence following conviction on a similar charge, until Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, who had presided at the trial, returns to Pittsburgh.

Witnesses had testified that they had purchased stock in the company lured by offices lavishly furnished and representations that the company was about to launch a manufacturing and sales campaign of a patented nose and throat remedy.

About $60,000 had been invested in the stock, which was worthless, according to the testimony. Several other officers of the company were also indicted, but have not been apprehended.

Weather Conditions.

The eastern high is now over the North Atlantic Coast with increased pressure, while the southwestern low is moving northeastward with increasing intensity. It is centered over Kansas this morning. Lowest barometer reported, 29.40 inches, at Kansas City. The dominating feature is relatively cool weather over the greater portion of the country and rain over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. The rainfall was light except over the Carolina and Lower Mississippi Valley, where heavy rains accompanied thunderstorms. Temperature changes were slight over the Atlantic Coast states, but there was a marked rise over the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. Freezing temperatures or below occurred this morning over the western plains and Rocky Mountain states and northward over Canada.

'STUPID' DRY KILLER OUSTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The suspension of Henry Dierks, dry agent at Englewood, Col., for his part in a scuffle which resulted in the death of Milford G. Smith, 20, was ordered today by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

The prohibition enforcement director said Dierks had acted "like a stupid and brutal peace officer" and that steps will be taken to bring about his permanent dismissal.

Woodcock had received a report from Dierks which said he saw Smith take a bottle of wine from his pocket. Dierks attempted to seize the bottle and arrest Smith, who resisted, striking Dierks. A bystander named Green was said to have joined in the attack on Dierks, who struck both Green and Smith twice with the side of his pistol, drawing considerable blood. Smith died the next day, Woodcock said.

"I hope every agent who reads this will take solemn warning that we will not tolerate this type of activity."

Shaw, 75, Expects To Live to Be 115

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—George Bernard Shaw, now 75, expects to live to the age of 115 years. He sent a check to the National Trade Union Club here today covering advance dues for the next 40 years.

a drive for $5,650,000. They plan to close Tuesday.

Pittsburgh began a week before Cleveland and by yesterday, the tenth day of the appeal, had just passed $3,000,000, with its closing scheduled for next Monday. The local objective is $5,981,184.

Yesterday's gain of $637,064, including a joint subscription of $300,000 from A. W. and R. B. Mellon, and $40,000 from Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mellon, comprised the largest day's advance since the opening of the campaign, November 9. Leaders hoped for a similar gain today.

WESTINGHOUSE GIFTS

Subscriptions included in yesterday's total were $60,000 from the Westinghouse Airbrake Company and the Union Switch and Signal Company, $10,000 of which was given by employes; $10,000 from employes of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, and subscriptions from several banks of the Clearing House group.

Another attack upon critics of the Welfare Fund was made by Watson M. McKee, secretary of the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce, in an address at yesterday's report luncheon. He said:

"Even if the stories were true, which they are not, the fact still remains that there are thousands in Allegheny County in dire need. Even honest criticism will not feed a hungry person. Argue as we may, there should be no argument when it comes to giving a man a job."

GIFTS REPORTED

Division totals yesterday were reported as follows: Corporation, $145,900; special gifts, $380,259.84; Sewickley, $1,100; central, $24,895; employe, $64,487.21; unit, $15,919.54; city neighborhood, $3,629.85; county neighborhood, $872.31. More than $22,000 was reported in McKeesport yesterday, bringing that city's total, to date, to $78,398. The total for the drive includes nearly 30,000 subscriptions. At the close of last year's campaign, 110,000 donors were registered.

Georgia Baptists Vote Dry Law Aid

ATLANTA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The Social Service Commission of the Georgia Baptist convention yesterday presented a report which would bind members "never at any time, in any election, to cast a vote that would give any encouragement to the foes of prohibition." The report called the Eighteenth Amendment the "greatest piece of social legislation in the history of the country."

Planes From Tropics To Be Fumigated

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Air transport companies have given assurance of willingness to fumigate planes from tropical ports to obviate what the Public Health Service today called "a recognized potential danger" of infection-bearing mosquitoes being flown to these shores.

POLITICAL LEADERS LAUD ARMSTRONG'S SERVICE TO ALLEGHENY COUNTY

Men prominent in business and politics grieving over the death of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong gave the following expressions of tribute:

MAYOR CHARLES H. KLINE—When I learned of the death of Joseph G. Armstrong, my heart was filled with sorrow, as I lost one of my dearest friends, one whose friendship I have cherished for many years. His death will be mourned by the thousands who admired him for his courage and ability as a public servant and as a friend who gave the best years of his life, without hope of reward, in the upbuilding of this great community which was so near and dear to him.

E. V. BABCOCK, County Commissioner—Chairman Armstrong had been in public life longer and accomplished more for Allegheny County than any man I know of. He had filled the offices of Councilman, Coroner, Director of Public Works, Mayor, County Treasurer and County Commissioner. He had a very long and exceptionally useful career and died without stain on his character. He was one of the most human men I have ever known.

SENATOR WILLIAM D. MANSFIELD—The death of Joseph G. Armstrong takes from Allegheny County one of its best-known political characters. His record of continuous public service is one that never has, and probably never will be, equaled. The bridges, tunnels, highways and parks constructed under his leadership are monuments to keep his memory green long after his critics have been forgotten.

JOHN S. HERRON, president of Council—In the death of Commissioner Armstrong, Pittsburgh and Allegheny County have lost a remarkable personage. He was a man of vision, foresight and courage. His friends were legion. His monument will be his friendliness, sportsmanship and his record in public office. In times like these, men of the ability of Mr. Armstrong are sadly needed.

JOHN M. MORIN, former Congressman—In the passing of Joe Armstrong the people have lost a faithful servant. He came up from the ranks, and I learned to love him. I regret very much that he is gone.

ROBERT GARLAND, Councilman—I am sorry to hear of the death of Commissioner Armstrong, and I feel sorry for his widow and children. We had been closely associated for more than 20 years.

SENATOR FRANK J. HARRIS—Commissioner Armstrong's passing will be regretted by thousands. He was close to the people, and possessed a great human side.

ATTORNEY CHARLES B. PRICHARD—Mr. Armstrong was a loyal friend and a power in politics. The community will be a long time without his equal.

JAMES F. MALONE, Former Director of State Department of Supplies—Commissioner Armstrong's death is a real loss to the city and county. He had a more constructive mind for public projects than any other man I know.

BERTRAM L. SUCCOP, Former Director of City Department of Supplies—Commissioner Armstrong's death marks the death of a truly great man. He was a power in politics, and possessed a faculty of making staunch friends.

Dr. JAMES P. KERR, City Controller—Commissioner Armstrong was a remarkable character and a dynamic leader, and I feel sorry to hear of his death. His career in public life has been long and colorful. He will be missed by thousands.

JOSEPH N. MACKRELL, Register of Wills—The Commissioner's program of improvements has put Allegheny County ahead of similar units of governments in the United States.

MORTIMER B. LESHER, County Solicitor—My best friend is gone, and the county has lost a faithful servant. Words fail me.

W. Y. ENGLISH, Councilman—Commissioner Armstrong was a wonderful character and I am sorry to hear he has gone. He was a genius at directing great enterprises. His record of constructive achievements will be a greater monument to his ability than any shaft of marble or granite raised to his memory.

CHARLES A. WALDSCHMIDT, City Solicitor—The death of Commissioner Armstrong will bring sorrow to his wide circle of friends. He has been in public life for many years and had the faculty of making friends. The vast public works he has sponsored best typify his service.

EDWARD G. LANG, Director of Public Works—I am very, very sorry to hear of the death of Commissioner Armstrong. I feel that Pittsburgh and Allegheny County have lost a capable and efficient public servant. His work is symbolized in beautiful bridges, miles of improved highways and other useful public improvements.

GILBERT C. CLOONAN, county statistician and head of Election Bureau—No man in Allegheny County is more grief-stricken than I am with the passing of one whom I loved as a son loves a father—a rare character filled with that human kindness that we seldom meet. Like other great characters gone before him, he was misunderstood, persecuted, some times in ignorance, and he died a martyr to his community. His earthly record should be closed, reading "Service—honest and faithful."

I would suggest that these words be written on his epitaph, when our children erect that monument to his genius and achievements which I predict will be erected by our people in the future, when the conscience of men have paid the price.

C. C. McGOVERN, County Commissioner—The public career of Commissioner Armstrong makes us all feel that his demise at this time is an untimely end after such an active life.

NORMAN F. BROWN, former Director of the County Department of Public Works—The people of Allegheny County have lost a real friend. Mr. Armstrong has been earnest and conscientious in everything he has done. It will be hard to replace him.

PETER P. WALSH, Superintendent of Police—Mr. Armstrong was a lifelong friend of mine. His heart was full of humanity. His death is a great loss to the city and county.

THOMAS D. JONES, Morals Court Magistrate—Thousands of South Siders will miss Mr. Armstrong. His home was a meeting place for rich and poor, young and old, who sought his advice and wisdom on various subjects, both private and public. He was a man who put his city above everything else and was beloved by those who knew him best.

CLYDE KELLY, Congressman—The death of Commissioner Armstrong removes one of the most colorful personalities in the history of Allegheny County. His constructive works as County Commissioner will remain for generations. While he and I did not agree on many matters I admired his honest desire to build for the future and to give new and greater advantages to those who follow after him.

S. J. TOPLEY, Clerk of Courts—I am extremely sorry to hear of the death of Commissioner Armstrong. In his passing Allegheny County has lost a man of keen vision and achievement. Coming up from the ranks, he was in a position to know and appreciate the needs of our great county. The highways, tunnels and bridges of Allegheny County will be a lasting monument to the sterling worth of Joseph G. Armstrong. "He who finds it good to live, has the best that life can give."

ANDREW T. PARK, District Attorney—I publicly expressed my confidence in and respect for Commissioner Armstrong just recently, in his lifetime. Nothing has since occurred to change that opinion. I believe, as the years go by, public regard and respect for his memory and his activities as a public official will grow. My heartfelt sympathy goes to his widow and family in their bereavement.

GIFFORD PINCHOT, Governor of Pennsylvania—To me the most striking characteristic of Commissioner Armstrong was his courage. No situation ever arose in my experience with him that he was not ready to meet head-on. He was a brave man in the full acceptance of the term. We differed at different times on many things, but I am grateful to him for his support in the general election of 1920 and I sympathize deeply with his family in his untimely death.

EDMUND F. ERK, Congressman—It is with poignant grief that I have learned of the passing of Commissioner Armstrong, whose friendship I highly esteemed. In the eventful years of his administration greater improvements were accomplished than in a century and a half before and the people will regard his achievements as a monument to his genius. As a public official, he directed works which take rank with the greatest municipal projects in the county, and his name will forever be enshrined among the notable builders of our city.

Armstrong Life, Achievements In Brief Sketch

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was born on the North Side in 1868 but his parents removed to the South Side and he spent his entire lifetime as a resident there. His parents came to this country in the early sixties from Ireland.

After a few years in public school, Armstrong got his first job as a cash boy with the Joseph Horne Company. He later became an apprentice in the window glass trade and after learning his trade became an active leader in the Window Glass Blowers Union.

Elected a member of Common Council from the old Twenty-ninth Ward in the late nineties, he served three successive terms and was then elected to Select Council. In 1905 he resigned to become Coroner and during his second term—in 1909—was appointed Director of Public Works under Mayor William A. Magee.

In 1913 he was elected Mayor serving a four-year term. In 1919 he was elected County Treasurer. From the Treasurer's office he was elected County Commissioner for his first term in 1923, and re-elected in 1927.

During his 35 years in public office he held more elective and appointive offices than any other man in Allegheny County during that time.

He was a member of Franklin Lodge, F. & A. M., Scottish Rite, Knights Templar and Syria Shrine.

In 1892 he married Carrie B. Smith, who died six years ago. He was remarried two years ago to Mrs. Ethel Wilson.

He leaves his widow and five children: Mrs. Edna Bird Kauffield, Mrs. Frances E. Lemmon, Dorothy Armstrong, William B. and State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr.

REED AND DAVIS PAY TRIBUTE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—News of the death of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong today brought expressions of profound regret from Allegheny County members of the Pennsylvania congressional group, including both Senator David A. Reed and Senator James J. Davis.

Although some of them may have differed from the late Commissioner in things political, all members of the Allegheny delegation, so far as it could be learned today, are planning to attend his funeral.

Senator Reed and Senator Davis, together with Representative Clyde Kelly and Representative Edmund Erk, and the only members of the delegation here now, are planning to return to Pittsburgh tomorrow preparatory to the funeral services.

G. O. P. BOLTED ONCE BY 'JOE'

An "organization politician," Joseph G. Armstrong on one notable occasion preferred to rebel against the mandate of the Republican leaders.

It was in 1924. Senator LaFollette and Senator Wheeler were running for President and Vice President on the Independent ticket.

Practically single handed, Armstrong swung all his strength in city and county into line and succeeded in polling a vote of 79,095 for the Independents.

The county was carried by the Regular Republican ticket, with a total of 149,296, but Armstrong had shown that as a lone-hand vote-getter he was a genuine power.

ROSE TO TOP BY BEATING MAGEE MACHINE IN HECTIC CAMPAIGN

for. He battled on the floor for shorter hours and higher wages, and when anybody didn't vote right in that organization he was tossed out, none too gently, according to old timers who say they were at meetings.

When Mayor Magee took office for his first term, Armstrong was the idol of the South Side due to his labor activities, and Magee made him Director of Public Works. Under his administration, there wasn't a lamp post or a curbstone moved without his "OK".

"You gotta see Joe," was the formula for getting things done in the city while he was director, the "hump" was cut, an unprecedented municipal engineering feat.

In the twilight of the administration Armstrong went to Magee and told him that he wanted to succeed him.

QUARREL WITH MAGEE

Magee was backing Stephen G. Porter. His organization was one of the strongest political machines that had ever been put together in Pittsburgh. After a long conference with Magee, Armstrong either quit or was fired. The inside story never has been told.

The next day Armstrong, after spending most of the night with close associates, announced his candidacy on a platform that he declared to be his "declaration of independence."

This primary campaign was the battle of the century in local politics. By 112 votes Armstrong lost the nomination. But with his "committee of 100" business and professional men and the backing of the Oliver newspapers he beat Porter in the general election by 1,200 to 1,500 votes.

Armstrong had a "war board" of 10 of which E. V. Babcock was chairman. There was plenty of money in the campaign. There was fighting in the streets.

A. P. Moore, publisher of the Pittsburgh Leader, was jailed overnight in the campaign after his paper had published a photograph of a battle in Drumm's saloon, near the Courthouse, which showed Armstrong engaged in a fight with thugs who, it was claimed later, had been planted there to aggravate him.

PROUD OF "BARROOM JOE"

Moore "nicknamed" Armstrong "Barroom Joe," and it was this sobriquet that Armstrong always claimed elected him. Just a few weeks ago he was telling the story himself and declared himself "proud to have a he-man's nickname."

While Director of Public Works, Armstrong was investigated along with former Congressman John M. Morin, who at that time was Director of Public Safety. Impeachment proceedings were started against him. But he received a clean bill of health from the councilmanic investigating committee.

When Armstrong went into office Magee's machine went out. His administration was a hectic one. Council was divided against him. The newspapers that had supported him turned against him.

But the World War broke out. Local politics became a side issue. Public work was curtailed and halted. Prior to the organization of the draft boards for the national army the duty of handling the first draft was delegated to the mayors of all cities in the United States. Armstrong handled the first stages of mobilization of the draftees in Pittsburgh.

CATTLE BOAT CROSSING

Armstrong had been in Paris attending the convention of mayors held there in August, 1914, when the war broke out. He was marooned in Paris with his two daughters and his secretary, Fred L. Roberts, when the taxicab army hauled the French soldiers to the first Battle of the Marne. After several days the party was able to obtain passage on a cattle boat which made the crossing from Brest to Montreal without lights. Armstrong often told of the trip and how the party lost its baggage and how it took him three months to forget the odor of disinfectant that permeated the boat.

After his four years as Mayor, Armstrong ran for County Treasurer in 1919 against Maj. John Shenkel who had returned as a hero of the World War. Like his other elections, this one also was a "narrow squeak," and he beat Shenkel by a very close margin.

Armstrong's term as Treasurer was "peaceful sailing," but in 1923, there was another "Armstrong campaign" with State Senator Max G. Leslie, who all through his political career had been his closest adviser and the strategist of the administration.

In the commissionership primary fight Armstrong and J. Denny O'Neil were paired against Robert Cain and A. C. Gumbert, incumbents. Armstrong and Gumbert won the nominations.

Addison C. Gumbert, Armstrong's running mate, died in the spring of 1925 and E. V. Babcock was appointed his successor. Babcock's appointment heralded the construction program that was Armstrong's proudest boast. During their administration Allegheny County spent $100,000,000 for roads, bridges and tunnels.

McGOVERN APPEARS

In 1926 Gov. Pinchot, by the appointment of Charles C. McGovern as County Controller, brought into the picture Armstrong's political nemesis. The following year McGovern ran for re-election and was defeated. He raised such an outcry against what he declared to be "election thievery" that he easily defeated County Commissioner James Houlahen for the minority place on the board of County Commissioners.

Armstrong's political star was no longer in the ascendant. The trip of the Queen City to Cincinnati brought a quarrel between Armstrong and Mayor Charles H. Kline. That was another of those affairs of which the "inside story" never came to light. The Queen City cruise was followed by Armstrong victoriously running his son, Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., against Senator Leslie. By defeating his bosom friend and political ally of more than a quarter of a century, Armstrong did himself irreparable harm.

FINALLY DETHRONED

The final and crushing blow to the "Old Gray Mayor" was his defeat at the primary election for third term as County Commissioner. Primary election night, at the Henry Hotel headquarters, when the returns started coming in Armstrong remarked:

"Well, I guess the people don't want me."

Talking with a few old cronies he conceded the victory to McGovern. He said:

"That fellow has showed all of us how this game ought to be played."

But his advisers, who had seen him pull through other campaigns, assured him that the official count would show him winner by about 2,000 votes.

He was not misled by this advice. He knew that he was out. It was only the second time in his life that he had ever tasted defeat, he told one intimate acquaintance, and the other time was 30 years ago when he ran for the Legislature.

DESERTED AFTER DEFEAT

After conceding McGovern's election publicly, 20 days after the primary, Armstrong suddenly ceased to be the forceful, dynamic leader.

Before the election, the Commissioners' office had been thronged with political hangers-on and "big shots." That was when the betting was that Armstrong would lead the ticket. When his defeat was an acknowledged fact, many of his supporters disappeared.

Before he was stricken ill, Armstrong spent most of his time the last few weeks at his Carson street home, looking out the window. He dropped in at the office at odd times. With the exception of a few of the "old guard"—and very few of them, too—he was alone.

His last appearance in public was at the grand jury hearing on the purchase of the Wabash bridge and tunnel. It had been his last project, and the grand jury threw it out.

ters and his two sons bowed in silent grief as they prepared to receive the body of the political veteran who lost a courageous fight to pneumonia and diabetes.

Outside the home there were little groups speaking in whispers of the spectacular career of Old Joe — the same crowds which stood there during his illness anxiously awaiting word of his progress.

In his office on the first floor of the courthouse a flag is over his chair. The desk was draped in purple and black. The clock was stopped at the fatal hour, 10:15.

It was at 10:15 last night that his family, hoping for a miracle, watched their prayers grow dim as they tried to save the Commissioner's life.

A sharp change in the gaunt veteran's pulse at 9:50 p. m. brought an alarm from his nurse and the members of his immediate family were at the bedside when the end came 45 minutes later.

RALLY FADES

The brief rally that revived hope for the Commissioner faded when Dr. C. B. Schildecker, leaving the residence at 8:30, last night indicated that the end was near.

The family was called to the bedside shortly after 9:30 when Miss Amelia Koch, the nurse summoned Dr. Schildecker, and oxygen crews.

Dr. Schildecker hastened to the home, examined the Commissioner, and then waved the emergency firemen away.

Armstrong's conversation throughout the day had mostly been unintelligible, members of the family said. He passed away in a coma. During his last rally against death yesterday morning he declared to his son, State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr.:

"I'm going to walk out of here."

Justice James B. Drew, of Supreme Court, had called to inquire for the Commissioner and was in the reception room when word was received that Mr. Armstrong was dying. He left before the death occurred.

In the room when the death occurred were Mrs. Armstrong, Miss Dorothy Armstrong, his other daughters, Mrs. Allen H. Lemmon and Mrs. Charles W. Kaufield, and their husbands; his sons, State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and William Armstrong, and the Commissioner's secretary, Roy Walters.

Word of Mr. Armstrong's death spread rapidly. The news was broadcast by radio.

The neighborhood children and the many adults who were Armstrong's friends milled about the house, and, as many automobiles added to the congestion, a police guard was established.

STRICKEN SIX DAYS AGO

The Commissioner became ill six days ago. An attack of pneumonia confined him to his bed. The veteran's age and the fact that he was suffering from diabetes aggravated the disease and broke down his resistance. He gradually became worse, and Tuesday the end seemed certain.

However, the patient rallied yesterday. His condition was reported improved by his physicians, and his friends, inspired by a new hope, flooded the home with messages of cheer and good will.

The Rev. Father E. J. Moriarity, of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, led 500 school children from the parish school in prayer for Armstrong's recovery. Although not of that faith, the Commissioner was a staunch friend of the priest.

In death the veteran Commissioner will be cared for by old friends. The funeral director, F. C. Beinhauer, 74, was a boyhood chum, and was campaign manager for "Old Joe" when he ran for Mayor. Mrs. Beinhauer and the first Mrs. Armstrong were schoolmates.

Today Armstrong's secretary, Roy Walters, said that the family had asked friends not to send flowers.

he was intoxicated. He had to be overpowered and put to bed.

TURKEY IN LAP

Anieannette Hunter, Western Pennsylvania Women's golf champion, testified she got the turkey in her lap as a result.

Mrs. McCready said once her husband tore a $5,000 diamond bracelet from her arm, trampled it and is cost $750 to repair the damage. While in Paris, she said, her husband went out to buy a paper and it was necessary to enlist the aid of the United States consul to find him. He was found in a cafe with a Frenchman counting his money, she testified.

IN STRAITJACKET

Drinking bouts on other trips were enumerated and it was recited that the ship doctor on the Berengaria had presentd a bill of $40 for medical services when it was necessary to put McCready in a straitjacket. On another occasion, Mrs. McCready testified, her husband destroyed bedroom furniture in their home and threw it on the lawn.

While ill in a hospital, Mrs. McCready testified, her husband visited her, created a scene and she had to leave. Once while in Paris he called her in Pittsburgh and talked half an hour, and she could not understand him. She said he had made numerous airplane trips, flying to all parts of the country.

W. T. Curry, a butler, testified to the drinking sprees and the use of abusive language.

Mrs. McCready's present address is 548 North Sheridan avenue.

MAN SHOT DEAD IN SEALED CAR

WOOSTER, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—J. B. Smith, 53, railway express clerk for 20 years, was found shot to death in his sealed car of a Mansfield-Alliance, Pennsylvania train last night.

Coroner J. B. Patterson withheld his verdict pending further investigation, but said Smith had killed himself.

Smith had been shot twice with the automatic pistol he carried while on duty. His body, lying on the floor of the express car, was found when the train arrived here from Mansfield. Trainmen said there was a signal to stop as the train was pulling out of Mansfield, but the source of the signal could not be determined.

It was believed that Smith shot himself after pulling the signal cord.

He is survived by a daughter in Pittsburgh and a son in Mansfield.

The daughter, Miss Helen Smith, 24, who for the last 11 years had been living with her aunt, Mrs. Bertha F. Smith, 153 Watsonia boulevard, left for Mansfield after being informed of her father's death. Mrs. Smith said she knew little of the man's life. The daughter is a clerk in a North Side department store.

'HICCOUGHER' FACES KNIFE

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Ira A. King, who has hiccoughed for the last 13 days, will have to undergo an operation before he obtains complete relief, physicians said today.

An X-ray has revealed an infectious condition in the abdominal region, and this is believed to be the cause of his attack of hiccoughs, which occur at the rate of seven a minute.

Further slight improvement was noted in his condition overnight. Will Rogers joined the hundreds who have sent their favorite cures to King. Rogers, in a telegram, suggested the use of "oil of cloves," an infallible old Indian remedy.

Schofield Caught In Own Tax Drive

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The psychological effect of having policemen deliver overdue water bills was observed in official circles when Director of Public Safety Lemuel B. Schofield was rendered one for $32 by one of his own policemen.

Schofield, who is head of the Philadelphia Police Department, agreed recently to co-operate with officials of the Water Bureau by having delinquent water accounts delivered by the police as a means of putting some money into the city treasury.

5 Million Alimony Too Much for Coty

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(Universal)—Pleading that the depression had caused women the world over to buy less perfume, Senator Francois Coty, the perfumeur, today petitioned the court for time to pay the balance of $5,200,000 due as alimony.

Madame Yvonne Lebaron Coty had already obtained $12,200,000 in settlement. The total of $17,200,000 is one of the largest alimonies in the history of marriage, and is said to be one-half of Coty's fortune.

Jewish Medal Winner Honored by Hoover

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—President Hoover, in a letter, paid tribute to Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco, who received the second medal award of the American Hebrew, a national Jewish publication, at a dinner in his honor last night. The award was made for the promotion of better understanding between Christian and Jew.

Tribute was also paid the prelate in many other messages and in speeches at the dinner presided over by Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey.

Oklahoma Farmer Held in Wife's Death

WEWOKA, Okla., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—W. L. Scott, Spaulding (Okla.) farmer, has been ordered held for trial for the murder of his 28-year-old wife, whose body was found in Scott's abandoned motor car on a railroad crossing November 9. Testimony that Scott had threatened to kill his wife for insurance he recently had taken out on her life was presented at a preliminary hearing completed last yesterday.

Child Mountaineers Marvel at Big City

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The lions at the zoo were no more strange to a group of small Washington visitors today, than the bathtubs, hot water and street cars they observed.

Seven children from Corbin Hollow, Va., in the fastness of the Blue Ridge Mountains, saw their first signs of modern civilization, upon coming to have their tonsils out. They were given sight-seeing trips and modern toys as compensation.

Jetta Goudal Award Upheld After Appeal

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A $34,531.23 judgment in favor of Jetta Goudal, film actress, won in the lower courts from the Cecil B. De Mille Pictures Corporation for breach of contract has been upheld by the District Court of Appeals.

Miss Goudal was discharged by the De Mille organization September 10, 1927. The picture concern contended, in canceling its contract with Miss Goudal, that she became a "nuisance" because of repeated arguments with directors.

GOVERNOR AIDS POWER RATE CUT FIGHT

Praises Municipalities for Battle Against Charges For Electric Service

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20—Municipal authorities in a number of Western Pennsylvania boroughs and townships have been promised assistance from the Governor's office in their effort to obtain lower electric rates.

A letter was sent today by Gov. Pinchot to the town councils of Tarentum, Brackenridge, New Kensington, Vandergrift, Leechburg, Apollo, Freeport, Charleroi, Donora and Monongahela and also to C. V. Piers, Allegheny Valley Association, Oakmont, R. H. McGraw, Armstrong County Association of Boroughs, Kittanning; Ira J. Wray, Kiskiminitas Valley Association, Apollo, and the supervisors of Harrison Township, Natrona.

Congratulating the municipal authorities on their effort to obtain cheaper electricity, the letter said:

"I have learned with keen interest of the councilmanic action your municipality has taken to secure reduced rates from the public utilities which serve your borough.

"During the era of high prices many utilities throughout the commonwealth increased their rates, giving as an excuse the higher cost of labor and materials. But very few utilities have reduced their rates during the present era of depression, when cost of labor and materials has shown a marked decline.

"Your effort to get lower rates is a step in the right direction. It reflects great credit upon you and evidences the interest of the public in the fight against public utility extortion.

"I hope your petitions for lower rates will succeed. There is, in my judgment, no reason anywhere in Pennsylvania for an electric rate starting higher than five cents per kilowatt hour. Any assistance that the Governor's office can give you is very much at your disposal."

John M. Walker, of Leechburg, who was associate counsel during the utility investigation early in the year, is credited with starting the recent move on the part of the municipalities for lower rates. He has been on payroll at the rate of $6,000 a year since he started last spring.

Sought in Slaying, Boy Surrenders

RIPLEY, W. Va., Nov. 20—(AP)—Shirley Shamblin, 16, sought by state police and Jackson County officers since Tuesday in connection with the slaying of his uncle, Ernest Shamblin, 23, surrendered to his father at Wolfe, Pen., last night and was turned over to Sheriff D. J. Rogers, Jackson County.

PINCHOT SILENT ON ATTACK

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot last night said "comment is unnecessary" on the charge made by Louis McGrew, Pittsburgh, to President Hoover and Senators Reed and Davis.

The Governor said his three-word sentence completely covered his reaction to the charge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—Charges that federal-aid road funds are being used for a political "slush fund" in Pennsylvania were laid before President Hoover and other government officials.

Louis McGrew, editor and publisher of the "Labor World," a semi-monthly publication at Pittsburgh, made the accusation during a call at the White House.

He said contractors on federal-aid highways as well as state roads are compelled to contribute a percentage of their receipts to a fund to advance "political ambitions" of Gov. Pinchot.

McGrew then left for Philadelphia to persuade members of the State Legislature to call a legislative investigation of the administration of State Highway Appropriations.

Drinks Required For Drunk Key In Check Case

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(INS)—The question of how many drinks a man must take before he becomes intoxicated arose today in Superior Court here in connection with a suit to collect on a $5,000 check drawn by Gordon C. Thorne, millionaire, in favor of the late William K. Ziegfeld, brother of the theatrical producer, Florenz Ziegfeld.

Thorne, a former resident of Chicago, submitted a deposition from his present California home contending that he was intoxicated at the time he signed the check in Paris five years ago. In the document the millionaire attempts to estimate the number of drinks required to put him "under the weather" in this way:

"A conservative estimate is about 30 drinks in an evening, counting champagne or brandy or wine or highballs as a drink."

1,900 Drivers Lose Licenses Over Rum

More than 1,900 Pennsylvania drivers' licenses have been revoked or suspended during 1931 for driving while intoxicated, the statistical bureau of the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced today following an analysis of figures furnished by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The figure represents an average of 190 a month and a rate of 5.2 per cent above last year. In 1930, 2,163 licenses were revoked or suspended.

MANY PINCHOT RELIEF BILLS FACE DEFEAT

High Gasoline, Cigaret Tax, Prosperity Loan Appear Doomed; Test Nears

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20—(AP)—Organization Republican legislators today predicted that only a portion of Gov. Pinchot's 19-point $120,000,000 unemployment relief program will be enacted by the Legislature.

They say organization Republican leaders in the Legislature have been sounding out sentiment since the introduction of the Governor's program and believe the House, which was overwhelmingly in accord with the administration last spring in the regular session, will defeat some of the Governor's measures.

Because of their faith in the anti-administration sentiment in both houses they believe that there will be no legislation enacted which will increase the present tax burden of the people. They say that there may be a gasoline tax of 1 cent for one year or 2 cents for one year, but insist that the Governor's measure calling for 2 cents for two years in addition to the present 3-cent tax will not be passed. They also predict the defeat of the Governor's proposals for a tax of 2 cents on a package of 20 cigarets and a tax on billboards of 3 cents per square foot.

Asserting that passage of the Governor's measures providing for an issue of prosperity bonds would mean a future increase in taxes to liquidate the bonds, when and if approved, the organization leaders also predicted defeat of these measures. They indicated the measure providing for creation of a state commission on unemployment relief with power to solicit contributions would be approved but that no provision would be made for reimbursement of the contributors with four per cent interest.

They also predicted defeat of the bills permitting local authorities to increase their tax levies for relief purposes.

Pinchot's Gas Tax Held Blow to Poor

GREENVILLE, Pa., Nov. 20—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot's proposed two-cent increase in the state gasoline tax was termed "class legislation" designed to fatten the pocketbooks of the rich by State Senator Frank L. Fay here today.

Senator Fay said the increased tax would come "almost exclusively from the poor people and from the moderately well-to-do."

McKeesport Woman Hit by Trolley Dies

Mrs. Mary Beedo, 55, of 2819 Garbett street, McKeesport, died in the McKeesport Hospital early today of injuries received when she was struck by a street car in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, Tuesday night, according to a hospital report.

John D. Displays Vigor in Golf Play

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Nov. 20—(INS.)—His physical vigor still apparently unimpaired despite his 93 years, John D. Rockefeller played his first round of golf yesterday on the second day of his winter vacation here.

His partner was Dr. George D. Owen, rector of the Ormond Union Church.

Something New in Prints

—for Junior-Misses

$16.50

We didn't believe that there could be anything so different, by way of prints, until we saw these frocks with ravishing color combinations that we never dreamed of, and which we would not attempt to describe.

The frocks, themselves, are just as new and refreshing. Note the two pictured, with puffed bracelet sleeves, Victorian sleeves, quaint square necklines, contrasting belts of velvet or crepe de chine, and new gored and tucked skirts. Besides these two, there are three other models. All in sizes 13 to 17.

These moves have permitted enlarged space on the Main Floor for the great Christmas Handkerchief stocks—for the Ribbon Section—and for Gift Wrappings. These changes will advise early Christmas shoppers of our readiness to serve them immediately.

$100,000 FIRE AT TYRONE

TYRONE, Pa., Nov. 20.—(AP)—One fireman was overcome by smoke and several others injured by flying glass today in a fire which swept the three-story building occupied by the Gattman and Sons Dressing Company. Employees estimated the damage at $100,000.

Families living on the third floor of the structure were driven to the street.

The blaze, starting in the basement caused slight damage to the adjoining buildings housing the Tyrone Herald and Fisher Brothers Hardware Company.

Elopement Day Desertion Story Wins Divorce

Her husband left her to rejoin his Army post in Illinois the day of their elopement and that was the end of their marriage, Elizabeth Thompson Stevens, 20, of Homestead Park, told Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court. She was granted a divorce from James Alton Stevens, 28, now of Orlando, Fla., for desertion.

She was a business college student and he was on leave when they eloped to Wheeling, W. Va., December 26, 1928. He left that night and visiting her home nearly a year later, told her their marriage was a mistake and he was not going to live with her, she testified.

9 STATES AT COAL PARLEY

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Regulation and betterment of bituminous coal production was the subject of discussion by representatives of coal operators in nine states meeting here today.

Seeking to limit production and prevent waste, similar conferences were held previously, with the object of obtaining simultaneous action by the states concerned.

At a meeting in Lexington, Ky., several weeks ago, it was decided to return home, obtain plans from producers concerning regulation of the industry, and present their different views before today's meeting.

LABOR URGES SHORT WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(INS)—Unemployment could be greatly relieved by adoption of the five-day week, modification of the Volstead act and the shorter workday, labor leaders informed the Marcy Legislative Committee, in session here today.

John O'Hanlon, secretary-treasurer of the New York State Federation of Labor, and Hugh Frayne, New York representative of the American Federation of Labor, expressed the unionist viewpoints of unemployment, which the committee is studying.

Mouse Eats Four Dinners—Out of Meal Ticket

Mickey Mouse's comic page doings paled into insignificance today beside the feat of his unidentified brother, who ate four full-sized restaurant meals.

Harry Blanchard, of 5700 Margaretta street, a Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, hung his coat in a locker of the crew dispatcher's office at Forty-third street when he donned his overalls. Returning from his run, some hours later, he found a mouse had gone into his pocket, found his restaurant meal ticket and ate four full meals completely out of it.

BANDITS TIE UP MAN, ROB STORE

Two armed bandits bound C. E. Slodin, 526 North Aiken avenue, manager of a P. H. Butler store at 318 Thirty-eighth street, and escaped with $50 in cash and cigarets valued at $18 today.

A few minutes after Slodin had opened the store one of the thugs walked in and asked for a can of milk. While the manager was reaching for the can another thug, revolver in hand, stepped into the store and ordered Slodin into a rear room where his hands and feet were bound with rope. The thugs escaped in a large sedan driven by a third accomplice.

TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE HOLDS DISPLAY

Evolution of Seals for 25 Years Shown in Exhibit At Carnegie Library

The evolution and development of the Christmas Seal during the last 25 years is illustrated in a display of seals arranged by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh and on exhibition in the library of Carnegie Institute this week.

This is one of the few complete sets in the United States and contains seals which originally sold for one cent and others which are now worth as much as $10.

The early seals had a red cross and red holly wreath with "Merry Christmas." In 1908 a touch of green was introduced. In 1912 Santa Claus face appeared on the seals. The next year Santa appeared in a reindeer scene. In 1914 and 1915 Santa's face and in 1916 Santa with his pack of toys.

The 1917 design of a red cross on a shield with a snow laden fir tree background was supplanted by a woman's half figure bearing a torch in 1918. In 1919 Santa had his pack, in 1920 he appeared with a child on his shoulder and in 1921 he posed in a chimney. The double barred cross which has become the symbol of the Tuberculosis League appeared on the stamps and has continued ever since.

In 1922 health propaganda began to appear on the seals. A Christmas greeting was absent from the seals this year. But in 1923 the Christmas spirit reappeared with a child seeing Santa in the glow of a fireplace.

In 1924 the health message was combined with the Christmas greeting. In 1925 there was a double candelabra, the cross and health and Christmas greetings. In 1926 three carol singers graced the seals and in 1927 a winter scene with sleigh and reindeer.

In 1929 there was a figure ringing a bell and in 1928 a ship with sails unfurled. In 1930 Santa had a Christmas tree over his left shoulder, and this year a coach and four will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Christmas seal.

Child Thrashings Urged by Doctor

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(Universal)—Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, representing Johns Hopkins University at the Southern Medical Association conference here, advised parents to "spank your babies and thrash your children to cure bad tempers." He added:

"Kindness for bad children is all twaddle."

W. Va. Woman Heads Confederate Group

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Amanda Austin Byrne, of Charleston, W. Va., was elevated yesterday to the highest position in the United Daughters of the Confederacy—the presidency general. She is a daughter of Capt. Samuel Sumter Austin, who served as a surgeon.

RAILROADS GET LABOR'S PLANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The joint conference of railway workers and management had before it today unionized railway labor's proposal for immediate stabilization of employment by assuring one year's work to necessary employes in every class, a billion dollar federal bond issue for grade-crossing elimination to relieve unemployment, and a six-hour day.

None of the railway executives, as they arrived for the resumption of the conference today, would comment on labor's program. It was indicated, however, that consideration of these proposals would occupy most of today's session and that the conference, held at the request of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, might continue tomorrow.

Introduction of the appeal for a six-hour day had been expected at the conferences, which opened yesterday. It was said that it probably would be countered later by a proposal for a reduction in labor costs of 10 per cent by the railroad presidents, partly by modification of working rules and partly by wage reductions.

LINER BERMUDA BURNS AGAIN

BELFAST, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—A smouldering ruin, the Furness-Bermuda liner Bermuda was sunk at her Belfast pier today in a final attempt to extinguish flames which caused a loss estimated at $5,000,000.

The Bermuda caught fire here while being reconstructed following an earlier fire this summer which partially destroyed the liner at her pier in Hamilton, Bermuda.

After hours of effort, Belfast firemen fought their way into the hold of the blazing ship and opened the seacocks, permitting the craft to be flooded. She quickly settled on the bottom, but her superstructure, still smouldering, remained above water.

Police Hunt Boy Leaving on Bicycle

Police have been asked to search for Edward Roberts, 14, of 527 Hemlock street extension, who was last seen riding away from his home yesterday noon on a bicycle.

His mother, Mrs. Emma Roberts, a widow, said the boy had never stayed away from home over night before. He is a medium sized lad with blonde hair and chubby face. He was wearing a tan leather lumberjack coat and dark blue trousers.

Two Places Cited In Padlock Actions

Petitions for two temporary padlock injunctions on places in New Kensington were filed by the prohibition department before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today. The petition is directed against Michael Wainer and George Angus. A formal hearing will be held December 22.

MUSIC

Ratan Devi

Twentieth Century Club

The Music and Art Committee of the Twentieth Century Club presented Ratan Devi yesterday afternoon in a recital of folk songs of the East and West. The lovely auditorium with its fine acoustics again was proven a congenial meeting place for intimate recitals of this nature.

Mr. Lissfelt

Ratan Devi has come very close to music of all peoples. She has well studied the idioms of all this music and understands well the characteristics of each nation and province. But her personal equipment is far better suited to the music of Asia than to the songs of America or Europe. Consequently had she given us only the ragas and songs of India her program would have been far more instructive and entertaining. In these songs she appears as she might in an eastern bazar. Very deftly and briefly she gives her audience the spirit of the East; one easily follows her induction into Oriental song and when she plucks the strings of her tambour and sings her gentle chromatics we are grateful that ears can still hear such delicate threads of melody in the din of this machine age.

J. FRED LISSFELT

Arrest Suspect as Cordial King Slayer

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—John Phillips, alias Harry Fox, alias "Jack the Jumper," was held by Philadelphia police today in connection with the slaying of Joseph Broby, so-called "cordial king" of New York City. Broby was assassinated on November first as he walked past the Hotel Kimberly when a shotgun was fired at him from an upper window.

Cleveland Kidnaper Killed in Gun Battle

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Caught in the act of kidnaping a construction company official, an unidentified bandit was shot and killed here today by Patrolman Charles Fox. Charles Ekberg, of Chicago, superintendent of construction for the Republic Creosoting Company, now working on a new building here, was slightly wounded in the gun battle between the officer and the gunman.

LUPE SPEEDING TO SAVE CASH

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Lupe Velez, film star, sped west today on a train to protect her fortune.

She decided to return to Hollywood when she heard her business manager, Al S. Keller, had been arrested in California in connection with forgery charges.

Keller, Fred L. Deliden and Robert Kohler, actor, were held after Deliden, according to police, admitted the three formed a $1,000,000 forgery ring. He was quoted as saying he had forged a check for $150 on Lupe's account. Lupe said:

"Two months ago I know this man Deliden write my name to a check. I feel so sorry for Keller. I tell him keep care of my money. Gary Cooper when he heard about my check, took his money away and Keller felt very bad.

"I trust Keller. I trust everybody. I am lazy, that's why. Now I must go back to California and get a man to see my books."

PARIS, GERMAN ACCORD HAILED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The accord reached at Paris to lighten Germany's reparations burdens is considered by officials here as an important step toward world economic recovery.

As the accord is understood here, Germany will apply for appointment of a committee of experts of the Bank of International Settlements under the Young plan to study her capacity to pay with a view to adjustment of reparations on that basis.

This step was agreed upon as desirable in the conversations between President Hoover and Premier Laval, of France. Negotiations between the French and German governments began shortly after Laval's return to Paris and while the United States has taken no part in them, it has kept in close touch with all developments.

State Department officials believe Germany's recovery from its economic plight will be greatly expedited with a resultant beneficial effect upon world trade. The adjustment of reparations is regarded as effecting much the same result on a more permanent scale as that accomplished by President Hoover's one-year moratorium now in effect.

HINDU DISCARDS MANTLE OF MESSIAH

Drops Vast Possessions Given By Friends for Freedom To Follow Own Creed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—(AP.) — Jeddu Krishnamurti, young Hindu philosopher once regarded by thousands of followers as the reincarnation of Christ, has cast aside the Messianic mantle put upon him by the noted theosophist, Mrs. Annie Besant.

For years hailed as the Messiah, the philosopher, in a copyrighted story in the Los Angeles Examiner, today revealed his break with the international theosophist organization. He said:

"They called me the Christ, but Christ is potential in all. Furthermore, I am no actor. I refused to wear the robes of a messiah, so I am again free of all possessions. I have nothing except my creed."

RETURNS GIFTS

Krishnamurti stated he had returned to their original owners the Castle Eerde at Ommen, Holland; an estate at Ojai, Cal., and "homes, lands and chattels that were forced upon me by well-meaning friends."

The philosopher was reported today to be in Ojai, a little mountain town north of Los Angeles. He said he planned to hold meetings there to preach his creed and "to reflect in a shack."

In years past, Krishnamurti had held meetings at Ojai around a large camp fire at night. The gatherings were attended by theosophists from the world over who came to hear the "second Messiah."

ACCUSES MRS. BESANT

Krishnamurti charged Mrs. Besant, now reported ill on a visit to India, with attempting to dramatize theosophy, but not consciously. He said:

"She came to me when I was a boy of 14. I was raised in the beliefs of theosophy. She told me she found me to be the personification of Christ—the Christ I believed I was. Now I know that I am no more Christ than you.

"Hereafter, no one shall call me 'master.' I am free to do my own thinking and to live my own life. And I am happier than I have ever been."

FATHER FIGHTS FOR BABY GIRL

Irvin A. Maser, 1320 Recue street, procured a writ of habeas corpus to regain custody of his child, Fern Helen, 14 months, in Common Pleas Court as his wife, Marie A. Maser, 1200 High street, North Side, filed a divorce suit against him.

Maser averred that he became ill October 19 and that because of numerous violent threats against his life by his wife he went to the home of his parents, October 24. Mrs. Maser, with their child, went to the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Sebesto, High street, November 5, and has since refused his numerous requests to see the child, Maser charged. Attorney John G. Koedel obtained the writ.

The driver, Mrs. Loiena Salbedo, 24, was held for questioning by police.

Police Chief Shot By Bandit Suspects

DETROIT, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Harry H. Crooks, chief of police of the suburb of Trenton, was shot twice in the head and seriously wounded at 5 a. m. today by four men whom he attempted to question about the holdup of a bus station earlier in the night.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

"WITHOUT question, Mark," writes Herman Goodman, "you are growing worse and worse. In a column entitled 'The Only Way Out,' you made a grand blunder. I need not inform you that it does my heart good to tell you about it.

"In a story credited to Mr. Lew Brown, you told of an actor who was hated by everyone. He decided to stage a fake suicide in order to read his own obituaries. The obits he received were good instead of bad. And, knowing that he could never get such notices again, he actually did commit suicide.

"Well, I'll admit it wasn't a bad yarn. But here is where you tripped and fell. You had the actor standing alone just before he killed himself—and you quoted the speech that he had said to himself. If he was alone, how could you possibly know what he said and did?

"You will probably ignore this letter, and I don't blame you. How does it feel to be caught, Marko boy?"

I have no desire to ignore your letter, Mr. Goodman—and it will doubtless amuse you to learn that I have received more than 40 letters already along the same lines. The one point that you and the other critics have evidently overlooked is that I began the yarn with the following:

"Another of Mr. Lew Brown's notions—and this one, to my mind, is a classic—concerns an actor who, etc."

The word "notion"—Goodie, old boy—supplies the answer. A notion, my friend, is a mental apprehension of something that is either known or imagined. In this case, the story was purely imaginary. Which is exactly what I said in my first line.

There is then but one question to be answered, Mr. Goodman. Have you caught me—or have I caught you? . . .

HARRY RICHMAN, for no good reason, remembers the story of the two actors who went upstate for a vacation and decided to go hunting for the first time. They borrowed two guns and a few dogs from a farmer and set out for adventure. After being out an hour or so, they returned to the farm.

"What's the matter?" inquired the farmer amiably. "Do you want more shot?"

"No," returned the actors. "We want more dogs!"

I am reminded of the time that Gilda Gray, queen of the quiver, was being interviewed over the air by a popular female motion picture reviewer. The reviewer had prepared a list of questions and answers in advance—and Gilda had nothing to do but stand before the mike, watch the question and read the answer.

The critic, however, permitted Gilda a little latitude. After the answers to a few questions, the interviewer—in parenthesis—had tacked on the note, "you may elaborate on this if you wish."

Everything went along smoothly until they reached the fifth question. "Do you believe in second marriage?" asked the critic.

"I certainly do," was Gilda's reply. And then, much to the interviewer's horror, Miss Gray tacked on the following:

"You may elaborate on this if you wish to" . . .

Iron Maker's Wife Names Beauty, Freed

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Marjory Woodruff Hatch, beautiful young wife of Conant Hatch, iron foundry executive, was granted a divorce by Circuit Judge C. E. White.

Mrs. Hatch charged cruelty, naming Herta Hittel, Viennese beauty. Miss Hittel at one time sued Hatch for $25,000 heart balm but lost the case in New York City courts. Miss Hittel is now believed to be residing in California.

LINK OF ELKINS SUITS DROPPED

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A motion in Supreme Court to consolidate two actions brought by Marie Allen Reynolds against Davis Elkins, former United States Senator from West Virginia, was withdrawn yesterday without explanation, by her attorney, Max D. Steuer.

The motion asked that a city court action against Elkins on a contract Miss Reynolds claims he made to pay her $1,000 a month for life be consolidated with a similar action brought in Supreme Court.

Miss Reynolds asserted Elkins admitted making the contract on April 30, 1923, and also making certain payments under it. Her action said he now contends the contract is void on the ground he received no consideration.

The city court suit demands $1,000 due for last April and $150 balance due for last March. The Supreme Court action demands $4,000 for May, June, July and August payments.

Borden, vice president of the Seaboard Midland Petroleum Company, already has furnished like bail on a similar charge.

POWER TRUST, SHOALS LINKED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(INS)—The report of the President's commission on Muscle Shoals recommending private operation of the huge government project today served to provoke a fresh congressional war over this 10-year issue.

The commission's plan appeared doomed to rejection by Congress since it was immediately assailed by Senator Norris, insurgent leader, as handing the project over to the "power trust." Norris said if the commission's plan was adopted "no municipality, no county, no farm organization would ever get a kilowatt of surplus power" from Muscle Shoals.

Norris announced he was ready to reintroduce the bill that Congress enacted last year only to be vetoed by President Hoover. There were indications too that Congress would again approve the Norris plan. There appeared little hope of administration leaders getting the commission's report approved.

SHRINERS BACK SPEED FLIERS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Shriners of North America will back a five-year plan to wipe out the difference of 142 miles an hour between the American and world's air speed records.

Formation of a $16,000,000 aviation speed foundation to bring the world's speed championship back from England to the United States was announced here last night by Robert A. Bishop, Morris E. Miller and Ralph K. Rex, prominent Shriners who incorporated the speed foundation in Ohio.

During the next five years the foundation will sponsor the development of high speed experimental racing planes. An advisory committee on technical matters will be chosen and "the best available pilot" will be selected to make the experiments.

Funeral services for Dr. Samuel I. Eber, 50, of 5502 Stanton avenue, who died yesterday in the University Hospital at Philadelphia, will be held from the family residence Sunday afternoon. Burial will be in West View Cemetery at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Eber

Rabbis Goldenson and Rose will officiate.

Dr. Eber, one of the city's best-known eye doctors, graduated from the medical department of the Western University of Pennsylvania, now Pitt, in 1904, and at various times did staff work in the Reineman Maternity Hospital, Mercy Hospital and Mt. He held the rank of captain. His offices were in the Medical Building, 3401 Fifth avenue.

He is survived by his widow, Pauline Oppenheim Eber; a sister, Mrs. Anna Ruben, of 618 Hastings street, and a brother, Dr. H. L. Eber, a dentist, with office at 1543 Center avenue.

BEBE GUARDED, MANIAC HELD

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Muttering of thwarted love, a man said by police to be an escaped lunatic was held in the city prison here today, while a police detail guarded Bebe Daniels, actress.

The man, Guy Lawyear, 34, alias Albert Holland, crippled and shell-shocked war veteran, was arrested in the lobby of the hotel where Miss Daniels is staying. He was said to have attempted to force his way to her apartment.

The arrest was made after the star frantically telephoned police for aid, declaring that she had received several telephone calls from the man, who, police declared, broke into Miss Daniels' home in Hollywood last January, after threatening her husband, Ben Lyon.

At that time he was sent to the Agnew State Hospital, but escaped and returned to his home in Oklahoma, where he began writing Miss Daniels love letters, police said, under the name of "General James."

REJECTED VOTE MACHINE GETS NEW TEST

Poole Company Granted Another Trial by State After Protests Here

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—While the vote machine of the Automatic Voting Machine Company, of Jamestown, N. Y., was being re-examined today, Chet Cook, sales manager of the Poole Engineering Machine Company, of Baltimore, rose to the defense of the Poole machine yesterday declared unsatisfactory by the state examiners.

MACHINE ASSAILED

The Jamestown company's machine also was assailed today by John W. Glover of Philadelphia who asserted it did not comply with the Pennsylvania election law, was not fraud-proof and made no provision for correction of a voter's mistake.

Cook declared that the Poole machine had operated perfectly with both a general and primary election ballot. Later a request was made for installation of a special ballot. A protest was made that the necessary parts were not at hand for installing this ballot properly, but that it was set up with the result that anticipated trouble occurred.

The examiners recommended that another test of the Poole machine be made. Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish accepted the examiners' report.

PITTSBURGH PROTEST

Mrs. Ella Graubart, of Pittsburgh, attorney for the petitioners who demanded the re-examination, asserted that the Poole machine lends itself to collusion of election fraud by preventing secrecy of the ballot. She said that the individual candidate levers are turned only a quarter of a circle, having four positions, and that if a mark were made on one of the four sides of the lever it would be possible to determine how the preceding vote was cast.

The machine jammed several times, with the result that cross marks showing how the vote was cast failed to disappear. Mrs. Graubart contended the same thing happened in the Pittsburgh primary election.

NIGHT PARKING RULE AMENDED

A two weeks educational campaign against all-night parking of automobiles will precede towing in of such cars to city garages, Public Safety Director James M. Clark announced today.

Clark previously had ordered all-night parked cars to be sent to garages holding the city concession, but amended this order today after a conference with Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey. Instead of being seized, the cars will be tagged for the next two weeks and the owners required to appear in Traffic Court.

Proprietors of commercial garages had registered a protest to Council on the all-night parking of cars on the streets.

Hub Cap on Auto Hiding Place of Bogus Bills

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 20.—The hub cap on an automobile was the cache of $340 in counterfeit $5 bills, Federal authorities reported today. The automobile, they said, was owned by Alphonse Pollfrone, of Canonsburg, Pa., one of four men held in $10,000 bond, accused of passing counterfeit money. The others held are Sylvester Farrar, Orlando Orsino, and Giofletti Cosoletti, arrested at Wellsburg, W. Va., several days ago.

PLEADS COURT CLEAR NAME

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 20.—AP.—Jesse Lucas, who spent 23 years in prison for a murder which another man is reported to have confessed from his deathbed, today asked the Illinois Supreme Court to reverse itself and clear him of the stigma of "murderer."

The plea, which attorneys termed extraordinary because it had no basis in specific statutes, produced purported affidavits from witnesses who helped convict Lucas in 1909 for the slaying of Clyde Showalter at Mt. Carmel, Ill., declaring their testimony at the trial was perjured.

The purported affidavits were signed by Myrtle Mercer and Oma Johnson, both of whom declared that they gave false testimony against Lucas at the trial to gain freedom from the Wabash County Jail where they were lodged as material witnesses, although they protested the affidavits said, they knew nothing of the murder.

Lucas was released from the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Chester last August and granted a parole by the state after Anna Smith, of Decatur, Ind., brought to light a confession she said she took from George Pond, a friend, on his deathbed.

SLEUTH SHOOTS MAN IN CHASE

George Markland, 29, of 308 Carver street, suffered a wound in his hip early today when he was fired upon by County Detective Frank Malone in Center avenue.

Malone told East End police that as he was passing 5825 Center avenue Markland and another man who said he was Elwood Gilson, 41, of 7142 Monticello street, were trying to enter the house and were repelled by two other men inside the house. Commanding them to stop, Malone said they turned toward him saying:

"Let's get him."

the men fled and he fired. A police radio car captured the man.

Malone was investigating the disappearance of George Seavers, district manager of the Vos Box Lunch Company, who resides in the house where the fight occurred.

Seavers disappeared yesterday after starting for a bank with about $300.

According to Mrs. Seavers her husband had been told by an employe of a rival company that he wouldn't keep his job a month. Police said there was no connection between Seavers' disappearance and the fight.

GROUP TO HUNT KIDD TREASURE

By RANDOLPH CHURCHILL
Universal Service Special Cable

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The legendary $60,000,000 treasure said to have been buried by Capt. Kidd on Cocos Island, 400 miles west of Panama in the Pacific, will be sought in three months by a formidable expedition being organized today by four Englishmen and one American.

The treasure hunters are Sir Malcolm Campbell, noted automobile racing driver; Lee Guinness; John de Forest, the young golfer; E. D. Allen, a member of Sir Oswald Mosley's "New Party," and Stewart Scheftel, 21-year-old American student and golfer at Oxford University. Scheftel is an intimate friend of the Prince of Wales.

Cocos Island is the "tropical paradise" from which three American castaways, Capt. Elmer J. Palliser, Paul Stachwick and Gordon E. Brawner, were recently rescued by the U. S. Navy after having been marooned there for six months.

CAPONE EVADES LIQUOR TRIAL

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Alphonse Capone apparently has escaped trial for liquor conspiracy.

Government officials said today that Capone's conviction and 11-year sentence as a tax dodger would keep him from being tried on the liquor charges.

Their statements followed the surrender yesterday of Joe Fusco, a "public enemy," said by police to be a Capone agent in charge of beer manufacture and distribution. Fusco is one of more than 60 men indicted with Capone on the conspiracy charge.

Under present circumstances it would be futile to try Capone, Samuel G. Clawson, a government attorney, said.

BOY AND GIRL HIKERS HELD

A brother and sister, hiking from their home in Beaver Falls to their mother in Philadelphia, were taken into custody by Ben Avon police as they walked along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near the Ben Avon station today.

At the police station they identified themselves as George Dunn, 18, and Ruth Dunn, 16, of Twenty-fourth street, Beaver Falls. George, who appears to be three years younger, related he and his sister had left their jobless father's home yesterday afternoon and, sleeping in the open through the night, had hiked all the way on the railroad tracks.

Gas Station Theft Charged to Suspect

Charles Goodwin, 25, of 509 Avery street, was arrested by North Side police early today in connection with the disappearance of a money bag containing $80 from a service station of the Marie Gas Company, Cedar avenue and East Ohio street.

Police say they found $14 in the lining of Goodwin's hat and $3 in his pockets. They also said Goodwin was seen in the vicinity last night.

British King Signs Import Curb Bill

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—The "Anti-Dumping" bill, empowering the Board of Trade to impose duties up to 100 per cent on all manufactured goods imported into Great Britain within the next six months, became law today when King George V affixed his signature to it.

Three Hurt as Auto Skids, Crashes Pole

Attempting to avoid collison with another automobile when his machine skidded on the slippery streets, Albert R. White, 31, of 1417 Sheffield street, drove his car into a pole in East Ohio street, near Thirtieth street, last night, slightly injuring three companions. They were: A. Borsch, 21, of 205 Greenfield street; Anna Martin, 20, and Elizabeth Evans, 20, both of 2226 Brighton road. White was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Writer Recovering From Drugged Sleep

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A man believed to be Charles Garland Givens, short story writer, who was found unconscious in the train shed of Broad street station from an overdose of sedative, was reported at Hahnemann Hospital to be slightly improved, although still in a serious condition.

Hospital authorities said that in moments of consciousness the patient muttered a few snatches of stories he has written.

Ill Woman Poisoned, Daughter Accused

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ursula Downs ran into a police station to tell the lieutenant she had given poison in a glass of water to her paralyzed mother she had been caring for since May. An ambulance was sent to the house and the woman was moved to a hospital. She responded to treatment and the doctors said her condition was not serious.

The daughter was detained at the police station charged with giving poison "with intent to cause death."

Still, Moonshine Seized in Raids

A 200-gallon still, 210 gallons of moonshine and a quantity of mash were seized by federal prohibition agents in two raids in the Homewood and Oakland districts early today. At 3 Jones way, Oakland, agents said they confiscated a 200-gallon still in operation. Joseph Vita, 36, of 7307 Susquehanna street, and Philip Salza, 26, of 7313 Tioga street, Homewood, were arrested in an automobile in the rear of 7500 Tioga street.

OPERAS IN ENGLISH

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

FOREIGN LANGUAGE operas are to be heard in English during Walter Damrosch's Symphonic Hour beginning Sunday, November 29, over NBC-KDKA . . . explaining this radical departure from musical custom of many years standing in the United States. Damrosch pointed out that the singing of opera in the vernacular "has been the inevitable development of opera in every country of Europe" . . . Eunice Howard, the girl who starred in Christopher Morley's "After Dark" on the legitimate stage is to be featured in the return of Miniature Theater over NBC next Monday night . . . she is to play the lead in Clarence Menser's "Hello Marie."

Question a Day:

Is it true that radio receivers use twice the amount of electrical current when the volume is turned up?—A. V., New Kensington.

Answer—No. The same amount of current is used regardless of volume. Another fallacy is the belief of some fans that tuning for distant stations places more strain on a radio set than tuning nearby stations.

Morton Downey is ready for his vacation in California and the Roundtowners Quartet are counting the hours 'til they take his place . . . with extra shekels to boot.

Studio Lights

Russ Columbo is to play the fiddle in his new NBC series scheduled to start on the Red Network Monday, December 7 . . . his contract for 52 weeks means 156 microphone performances . . .

Erratic signals on KDKA recently were caused by a poor resister in the grid circuit of a 100 kilowatt tube. . . .

When B. A. Rolfe arrives in the Hawaiian Islands for a vacation, he's not going to forget radio . . . plans have been made for Rolfe to direct a 30-piece orchestra and a mixed chorus in an NBC program from KGU, Honolulu, on Tuesday, December 15.

Mrs. Sara Graham of 31 Shady Drive West, Mt. Lebanon, and her three daughters—Marie, Jane and Margaret—are listening intently these nights for a special number to be dedicated to Mrs. Graham by Kate Smith, CBS songbird. Mrs. Graham, 71, is extremely deaf, but can understand most every word that Kate sings. this fact was relayed to Kate by Johnny Farrell, of Greenfield . . . Kate has promised a surprise.

The "Sisters of the Skillet" problem printed in this column yesterday was sent to the boys by L. S. Hauck, an automobile salesman of Wilkinsburg.

Boys write most of the fan mail received by Jesse Crawford, NBC "Poet of the Organ" . . . Jesse attributes this interest to the mechanism of the console.

Croonin' Sam is soon to be featured twice a week over WJAS . . . until further notice and beginning tonight, his program is to be heard Friday night at 8 o'clock instead of Sunday night at 9.

Carveth Wells' 18-year-old son, Jack, is hitch-hiking around the world . . . Carveth expects to speak to Jack over WGY and its short wave transmitter on Monday, November 30, when Jack arrives in Johannesburg, South Africa. . .

Rubinoff doesn't lead the orchestra that plays for Eddie Cantor . . . Monoti Salta is the maestro . . . Rubinoff concentrates on his violin solos. . .

Virginia Gardiner, of "Death Valley Days" and other radio plays, has turned down an offer to "go Broadway" with a new George Gershwin show . . .

Lottice Howell, belle of the South, is to sing "Beautiful Blue Danube" over NBC Sunday afternoon at 12:45 . . . should we remind you that Lottice and C. A. (Tony) Wakeman, of KDKA, became fast friends last time Lottice visited Pittsburgh?

Egbert Van Alstyne, who wrote "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" back in 1903, is to play a piano medley of his tunes over KDKA next Tuesday at 12:30 during the Farm and Home Hour . . . "Memories" and "Little Old Church in the Valley" are other Van Alstyne compositions . . .

Peter Higgins, Pittsburgh tenor, and "Doc" Rockwell, Quack, Quack, Quack, are to divide honors on next week's "Theater of the Air."

Today's Tid Bit:

Raymond Knight, otherwise Ambrose J. Weems, of NBC, hit on a bright idea for discouraging panhandlers, and replied in unintelligible gibberish to the first one who accosted him.

"Yah, yah, yah—from mine own country," responded the beggar, and Knight parted with a quarter.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Best tenor voice yet heard on the radio is that of Richard Tauber. Not often do you find power combined with liquid beauty. Tauber has both. Moreover, his selections, with the exception of the banal ballad, "Always," gave him fine opportunity to show his qualities.

The telephone company, which sponsored the German singer, has now one of the superior programs of the air. Good music is emphasized. Advertising is minimized. And through it all runs a welcome note of informality. People talk easly and casually . . . All sponsored programs will eventually have to adopt the technique now being carried out by the telephone company and the R. J. Renolds Company if listeners to be held to their seats . . . Comes that long-awaited battle of Notre Dame and Southern California and the parlors will be more occupied today than at any time during the football season.

Radio mahatmas are finally leading Rudolph Friml to the microphones to tickle the keyboard. They have been after him a long time, meanwhile giving the air regularly to the Indian love call, his song of the vagabonds . . . In the melody and vitality of his music, Friml is not so far behind Victor Herbert. So renowned has he become as a composer that you never think of him as a pianist. Yet he came to this country originally as accompanist to Kubelik, the fiddler . . . Another expert musician now regularly on the air is George Barrere, the world's foremost flutist. Chief burdle for Barrere is not to make his programs too highbrow—he has been so long in the rarified air of the concert stage, so he picks out just class music by Frenchmen who wrote in a lighter vein. Making good music popular is his aim . . . He told us that his musicians have to work as carefully for the radio concerts as they do when facing the lorgnettes of Carnegie Hall.

Will the Rio Grande eventually attract all station owners having trouble with the Radio Commission? They can live in Texas, shoot their programs from powerful transmitters on the other side of the river, and there is nothing the commission can do about it. Nothing, that is, short of war with Mexico . . . There's an idea for some Gilbert and Sullivan, going to war with Mexico over a radio station that has come under the ban of Washington! . . . Opening song of comedian might run: "You don't know why you went to war; you don't know who you're fightin' for. But I know. You're fighting for the Federal Radio Commission, by special permission of the copyright owners" . . . Broadcasters have now moved from Gandhi to Grandi.

War In Orient

Recent activities of Gen. Mah, spearhead of the Chinese resistance against Japan, will be dramatized.
It was the war lord from the North who declared that China would resist to the last man, and who since has been a cause of great worry to the Nipponese.
Other dramatizations will include a recent kidnaping in St. Louis, wherein it was found that the gangsters had retained a lawyer, who was to get one-third of the ransom, and the indictment of the ex-King of Spain by the Republican government.

MORE TRAFFIC RULES URGED

A proposal for curb cut-backs on Brightridge street and two 60-day trial parking restrictions were recommended to the Department of Public Safety and City Council by the Better Traffic Committee meeting in Council chambers yesterday.

The proposed curb cut-backs adopted as a possible part of the unemployed relief program would widen Brightridge street at least two feet by narrowing the sidewalk on the south side.

Parking restrictions proposed include prohibiting of parking on the north side of Isabella street between Anderson and Sandusky streets, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. and a one-hour parking restriction on both sides of Parke street from Truax street to its dead end from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

WIFE'S SLAYER DIES TONIGHT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Gov. White yesterday denied executive clemency to Tilby Smith, 26, Jefferson, O., confessed plotter of the slaying of his wife, Clara, May 29, 1930. Smith must die in the electric chair at the Ohio Penitentiary tonight for the crime.

All legal obstacles to the execution were cleared away more than a week ago when the State Supreme Court overruled his plea for a review of his conviction. His alleged co-conspirator and the alleged gun-woman in the case, Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 23, a quarter-breed Indian, is awaiting a second trial at Wooster next month on a murder charge.

As a last resort, attorneys for Smith appealed to the Governor for a commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment, claiming Smith was mentally incompetent.

TWO POLICEMEN SUED IN DEATH OF PRISONER

THREE GROUPS SEEK TO SOLVE COAL ILLS

International Parley Ends With Science, Industry Still Grappling Problem

The third international coal conference, as its scientist-delegates turned homeward today, left three contributions to the bituminous industry on the laps of the gods.

Science suggested a chemical revolution that would, with simple, economic formula, provide new by-products and open new markets.

A group of the 1,200 scientists and industrialists empowered Dr. Thomas S. Baker to send the governors of the coal producing states a report which emphasizes six plans to lead the industry back to prosperity. State and federal control, price fixing, production pro-rating—these were its chief planks.

The third way was suggested by Capt. R. D. Gatewood, of New York. In frank, understandable words, he flayed the industry for its backwardness, pointing out that it let the steamship coal business get out of its hands and be supplanted by the oil industry.

POLITICS OR SCIENCE?

Conflicting opinions lingered today as to whether politics or science would lift the industry out of the trough, following the concluding blasts at the conference, which closed in Carnegie Music Hall late yesterday.

The revolution in chemistry which, now on the up-grade, will within 10 years demand millions of tons of coal for by-products to make hundreds of things—including rubber, textiles and fertilizer—was predicted by Dr. William J. Hale, research chief of Midland, Mich., and former head of the University of Michigan chemistry department.

Roosevelt Candidacy Boomed by Wheeler

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—That Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is the one man who can lead the Democratic party to victory in the 1932 presidential election, was the opinion expressed today by United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana.

Wheeler is here to defend David K. Niles, manager of Ford Hall Forum, as a result of his arrest during the textile mill strike.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

MEDFORD, Ore., Nov. 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Breezing along over the snow capped mountains of Northern California—breakfast in Beverley, dinner in Seattle. There is nothing more beautiful in America than looking down on this redwood highway. Say, Texas has got a chance, next Tuesday, to put the Democratic congressional majority over the top and cinch Garner for speaker if they elect Kleberg at San Antonio. I would like to see a real cowpuncher get in there even if he was a Republican. Say, we are running into a snow storm and may have to set her down at Medford but you can always trust a good airline pilot. This one has flown this route five years.

Yours, WILL.

WIDOW, MOTHER OF 4, ASKS $25,000

Charges Mate Was Brutally Beaten; Clash of Doctors And Officers Recalled

Patrolmen Harry O. Buch and Louis Lefkovitz, of the North Side station, are named defendants in a $25,000 damage suit today by a widow for the death of her husband who, she avers, was brutally beaten by police.

The complainant is Julia Radakovic, 2164 Straub's lane, mother of four children, and widow of Lazo Radakovic, who died August 23 in Allegheny General Hospital of a fractured skull, after having been found unconscious in Sunderman street the day before.

Radakovic's death was followed by a bitter controversy between police and authorities of the Allegheny General Hospital as to treatment Radakovic received when being taken to the police station after a preliminary examination.

At the inquest Dr. H. E. Muser, an interne, testified police had tossed Radakovic into a patrol wagon. Taken back to the hospital following a night in the police station, the man was found to have a fractured skull.

Police charged that the hospital attendants made only a superficial examination which did not disclose the extent of the man's injury. They denied mistreating him. The coroner's jury did not fix the blame for his death. Testimony disclosed that he had been drinking before being found on the street.

OFFICER SUED BY SOUTH SIDER

Alleging he was severely beaten in an unwarranted attack by Stanley Fajenski, city policeman, not in uniform or on duty at the time, Thomas J. Frauens, South Side truck driver, filed suit in Common Pleas Court, asking $5,000 damages for his injuries. Judge Elder W. Marshall granted a capias, with $300 bail.

Fajenski assaulted Frauens without cause or reason at South Fifteenth and Bingham streets August 31, beating and kicking him, fracturing his skull and inflicting internal injuries, the suit charged.

Seeking $50,000 damages for the death of her husband at a railroad crossing and alleging the gates were lowered about the time he was struck, Mrs. Catherine Faulkner, of Hazelwood, filed suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in Common Pleas Court. Her husband, Harry Faulkner, while walking across the Hazelwood crossing, July 10, was struck by an engine and died 15 minutes later, the suit charged. Attorney Kivie Wolf filed the suit.

We Can Handle Those Diplomats One at a Time

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We're doing better with European diplomats since Mr. Hoover is grabbing 'em one at a time.

The President has taken on Ramsay MacDonald, Pierre Laval and Signor Grandi for short, no-decision bouts.

Nobody knows what has happened. But it's okay with us. This is one administration in which no news is good news.

Borah has been having a lot of fun chasing all the distinguished visitors down the Polish corridor.

Arguing with our esteemed contemporary from Idaho is a tough assignment. He is a man who refuses to take yes for an answer.

We haven't got a bit of grapevine information from these last three conferences. That fire in the wing of the White House must have destroyed that telephone leak.

Looks like we will have to take a trip to London, Paris and Warsaw to get a bird's-eye view of the eggs that were laid in our own nest.

HIT-RUN AUTO KILLS ONE

Police today sought a hit-run driver of an automobile who fled late last night after causing the driver of another machine to crash against a pole on Sawmill Run boulevard, killing one man, seriously injuring another and inflicting slight injuries to two other men and three women.

The dead man was Robert Rohlfe, 23, of Uniontown, who was dead on arrival at Mercy Hospital. John Collins, 17, of House No. 146 Mollenauer, was seriously injured. He was taken to Mercy Hospital. The others injured were: Mary O'Brien, 28, and Anna Vock, 23, both of Uniontown; Alice Collins, Joseph Collins and Edward Carnahan, all of Mollenauer. They were treated at South Side Hospital and sent home.

BLAST WRECKS LANDMARK

Walter L. Smith, 58, had singed eyebrows today to remind him of an explosion which fired his home at 723 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, last night.

The house, a landmark in Wilkinsburg, was built 75 years ago by the Rev. Mr. Hastings, and later was the home of Prof. Samuel Langley while he was experimenting on airplanes.

Smith, returning home, opened the front door of the two-story frame structure and was met by a blast which knocked him reeling to the porch and caused fire with damage estimated by him at $7,000.

Fearing his wife and son, Walter, Jr., were in there, he rushed into the smoke-filled house twice, calling to them. When firemen arrived they took him to the street. Later Mrs. Smith and young Smith returned home.

Intoxicating Beverages Flow Freely at Party in Deserted House

CHAPTER II.

Laurel drove her small roadster swiftly in the moonlight.

She had jotted Imogen's instructions on a scrap of paper. But she remembered them perfectly, for the "clues" had been lucid.

Rather fun, this stunt of Im's . . . but more agreeable to have had a companion with her!

Still, she'd soon be there—wherever it was—and "the crowd" would drink her health, and a snifter on her own would be immensely heart-warming . . .

Her car bounded over the little bridge that had been specified by Im, and a couple of minutes later there appeared what seemed to be a field of ghosts—no, tombstones! Laurel didn't know this road so well, and she'd forgotten that hereabouts was a cemetery . . .

Well, what of that? Why shiver so? We all had to die once, hadn't we?

But her small foot stepped on the gas, so that this eerie reminder of the flight of time might be outstripped . . . and she had to ram her brakes on hard at the first "left turn" in her instructions and proceed more quietly.

For it was a deep, rather rocky lane right here, with woods on both sides, and her destination was somewhere farther down this track and to the left.

She found the second turn, and bumped along, and pretty soon she saw an abandoned house rise spookily in the moon-

GRAPE COMPANY DROPS APPEAL

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The Ukiah Grape Products Company, Inc., of New York, dropped its appeal from conviction on a charge of violating the national prohibitory law in the sale of grape concentrate and paid a fine of $700.

Leslie J. Lyons, attorney for the corporation, also paid a fine of $250 assessed against Albert E. Brunett, manager of the Ukiah Kansas City office at the time prohibition agents seized some of the company's product.

Lyons said the company accepted as final the decision of Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis that the sale of grape concentrate for wine making is unlawful. The formula under which the grape concentrate involved in the charges was manufactured will be abandoned, he added.

Busch Ready to Quench 'Great American Thirst'

Four and one-half per cent beer will be legalized shortly after the next presidential election, declared August A. Busch, Jr., of Anheuser-Busch, St. Louis, who stopped in Pittsburgh yesterday. Such beer is not intoxicating in fact, he said, so Congress will soon amend the Volstead act. When that time comes, Busch declared, his company will be ready to do its part toward quenching the great American thirst.

Declaring that lawlessness, hypocrisy, drunkenness and crime are to be laid at the door of prohibition, he said:

"They've got to do something about it. And they will."

The return of legalized beer, according to Busch, will solve the economic ills of the country.

A new industry—the manufacture of soft drinks—was in the making before prohibition, Busch declared, but prohibition came along to kill it. The American public turned to hard liquor and home brew.

South Hills Woman Loses $25,000 Balm Suit

Mrs. Anna Bruce, 50, of the South Hills, seeking $25,000 heart balm from Howard E. Bolton, 47, Jeannette automobile salesman, was denied damages by a jury of nine women and three men in Common Pleas Court before Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Their acquaintance began in McKeesport in 1915 and continued until about a year before Bolton was married in 1929. Mrs. Bruce was married to A. D. Bruce in 1904, and obtained a divorce in 1921. Several witnesses testified Bolton frequently referred to her as his future wife, and Mrs. Bruce told of his alleged proposal of marriage in 1921 and at subsequent periods, their trips to Johnstown and Cleveland and his steady attentions.

Bolton denied proposing marriage or calling her his future wife. When the suit was filed Mrs. Bruce lived on Bates street and Bolton in Haddon Hall.

THREE GROUPS SEEK TO SOLVE COAL ILLS

Developments in the fertilizer industry, coal cleaning and coal carbonization were other subjects discussed by scientists.

Thomas Fraser, consulting engineer of Pittsburgh, described his process of cleaning coal by means of air sending sand through the coal. Dr. J. P. Wibaut, University of Amsterdam, Holland, described the forms of sulphur and nitrogen in coke.

SIX REMEDIES

The committee named by Dr. Baker submitted six plans for remedying ills of the industry. At the suggestion of Mr. Fairweather copies of the six proposals will be sent to the governors of soft coal producing states east of the Mississippi.

Plan No. 1 provides that a permanent body be named by the governors of the coal producing states with Dr. Baker at the head to determine means for stabilizing the industry.

A second proposal calls for a segregation of producers to settle problems as to marketing, working days, sales volume, required capacity of each mine and grouping of operating units supervised by a state commission.

The third plan suggests that the governors name representatives meet as an advisory committee and grant hearings on the various plans for betterment.

No. 4 proposes that governors and coal operators get together to decide on discontinuing sale of coal below cost, similar to Oklahoma's action in the oil industry.

A fifth suggestion is that someone outside the coal business be selected to point out the desired remedy.

The sixth plan calls for a modification of the anti-trust laws and passage of enabling legislation by Congress providing a co-operative board, representing the federal and state governments, producers and consumers, with power to negotiate with all consuming organizations to fix the minimum price of coal and of labor and to pro rate production.

CLEAR SENATOR IN LOBBY QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—After a solid year of investigation, the Senate lobby committee has found no substantiation for charges that a senator received $100,000 or more from a sugar company to lobby for a high sugar tariff.

The result of the investigation into these accusations, which were aired on the floor of the Senate, will be written into the committee's record at a public hearing Monday.

The inquiry revealed that a number of senators and other public figures had invested in stock in the company concerned, but uncovered no evidence of large gifts either of money or stock. The origin of the charges has not been revealed.

Senator Davis, (Rep.), Pennsylvania, appeared before the committee last spring and testified that the charges were "a contemptible lie" if aimed at him.

Convicted of Murder In W. Va. Rum Raid

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Jerry Crowder, 31, Wheeling, was convicted of murder in the first degree early today in the slaying of Albert Bryan, 28, also of Wheeling. The jury recommended life imprisonment. Crowder was charged with having shot Bryan to death last July in a liquor feud.

Counsel for the defense immediately moved for a new trial and the court deferred sentence until a week from next Saturday.

PANTAGES CRIES ON STAND

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Alexander Pantages wept on the witness stand yesterday in his second trial on a charge of attacking Eunice Pringle, young dancer, in 1929. He vehemently denied the accusation.

The testimony told how Miss Pringle went to Pantages with a request that he book a vaudeville act in which she was to dance, and how they were closeted in a small conference room in his downtown theater building. Pantages told the jury:

"She grabbed my necktie and pulled out my shirt, and I had to throw her out of the room. When they brought her back to my office, I told the police officer who was with me, 'There's the dirty blackmailer, the framer. Get her out of here.'"

Missing since Wednesday when he went for a ride, his body was found in a mountain gulch near Waianae. A search was started for the officer when his horse returned without him.

'BROWN JUG' RETURNED

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20.—(INS)—The 28-year-old "Little Brown Jug," symbolic of gridiron superiority between Michigan and Minnesota, which mysteriously disappeared from the athletic hall here September 21, today was returned in a spectacular fashion on the eve of the annual football game between the two schools.

The highly-prized trophy was tossed from a speeding automobile onto the lawn of a filling station and returned to the school.

The "Little Brown Jug" came into existence back in 1903 when a Minnesota trainer appropriated a Michigan water jug. The Wolverines hotly demanded its return and were challenged to "come and win it back." Since that time, it has served as the award for the winner of the annual football tilt.

Auto Driver Held In Passenger's Death

A coroner's jury today held Joseph Kovacok, 45, of 347 Beech street, East Pittsburgh, on a manslaughter charge, at the inquest into the death of Anna Turez, 15, same address. She was killed November 7, when she was thrown from an automobile Kovacok was driving in the Boulevard of the Allies as the machine collided with two other cars at Seneca street.

Radio Work Not to End Screen Career

Charles (Buddy) Rogers will not desert the screen when he becomes a radio star, he said at Paramount's Hollywood studios today. Although he expects to be a headliner with Ziegfeld's "Follies" in January, and shortly afterward commence his radio programs for the National Broadcasting Company, he will continue to make two or three pictures a year. Rogers will complete "Second Chances" and "Dance Palace" for Paramount before going to New York to negotiate with Ziegfeld and to assemble a symphonic jazz orchestra for broadcasting.

Irene Dunne Assigned To 'Hullabaloo'

Irene Dunne, who was recently elevated to stardom in "Consolation Marriage," has been assigned to play the starring role in the forthcoming production "Hullabaloo," which was originally announced for Mary Astor.

Laurence Olivier, former stage player, and recently signed to a contract by Radio, is to have the featured role opposite the star. Already announced to appear in "Hullabaloo" are John Halliday and Hugh Herbert. It is to be directed by Gregory LaCava.

Robert Montgomery Does Nicely on Four Dozen Shirts a Year

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20.

Fashions for men come cheaper in Hollywood.

Whereas the feminine star must spend $10,000 a year on her clothes, a man can get by on a fourth of this.

Robert Montgomery

Bob Montgomery says clothes cost him about $2,500 a year. Ben Lyon, another of Hollywood's best dressers, figures he has invested $12,000 on wearing apparel since 1927. His wardrobe contains 45 suits.

According to Bob, he needs one riding suit, 2 golf outfits, 2 dinner suits (one single - breasted jacket and one double - breasted), 10 business suits, 3 overcoats, 3 robes, 1 cutaway and 1 full-dress outfit. Then, of course, flannels for summer, sweaters, gloves, hats and 3 or 4 dozen shirts.

Doubtless there are many men in private life who have a larger wardrobe. Bob does very nicely, however, on his $2,500 a year.

PERHAPS HE'S PREJUDICED

Cecil B. DeMille is one of those rare people who manage to get personality onto a postcard.

He writes from Russia:

"I've been down the Volga and the picture is still better than the river."

LATEST GOSSIP

One of the quickie companies is making a picture called "Fallen Star." So far, there is no rush to play the title role. . . . C. B. DeMille lands in New York on the twenty-fourth. He has been away seven months. Theodore Kosloff, the dancer, is a member of his party. . . . Saw Richard Bennett, arguing with the autograph seekers at a recent opening. He finally scribbled on one book: "To my dearest Eva. Ever your lover, as requested. Richard Bennett." . . . Harry Bannister will fly Ann Harding to Florida on a location trip. Another passenger will be Tay Garnett, who was an aviation instructor during the war . . .

Ann Harding

STUDIES METHODS

Visiting Hollywood is Miss T. Unten, scenario-writer for the Nikkatsu Studio in Tokio. Over there, she says, the best-liked American pictures of last year were "The Love Parade," "Rio Rita," "The Hollywood Revue" and "The Singing Fool." An actor who is a prime favorite among the Japanese is Gary Cooper. They call him—get this one—"The sweetheart of the world."

According to Miss Unten, the talkies have wrought havoc with the Benshi, that formerly important institution in Japanese motion picture theaters. The Benshi used to stand by the screen and translate titles, also providing sound effects such as the bark of a dog, the cry of a baby, etc. Now, there is nothing left for the interpreter to do but translate dialogue. The Japanese have a new name for him: Setsumeisha.

Richard Arlen Returns To the Old Town

Richard Arlen, who left New York seven years ago, an obscure young man about to seek his fortune in the oil fields of Texas, returned to the metropolis last week for the first time since gaining stardom in motion pictures. Arlen and his wife, Jobyna Ralston, will enjoy a brief vacation before he begins work with Nancy Carroll in "Wayward" at a New York studio.

Spider Spins Chills in Fulton

By MILDRED FILMORE

"The Spider," mystery melodrama, was good entertainment on the stage. And now, in the Fulton, it is good entertainment on the screen.

In fact, the medium of the motion picture, with the power of suggestion of its photographic lights and shadows, enhances the suspense in many instances.

Practically all of the action takes place in a crowded theater, where one Chatrand, magician, is putting on his act. The hand is quicker than the eye, he says. And, as it turns out, a revolver shot is quicker than both.

A man in the audience is murdered. The police come. No one is permitted to leave. An effort is made to solve the crime. And it is successful, thanks to the stage craft of Magician Chatrand.

Edmund Lowe does a capital piece of work as Chatrand. Lois Moran looks attractive and tearful as an innocent girl involved in the affair. There are others who contribute entertaining portions. El Brendel sits in the audience and thinks the murder is all part of the show. His Swedish lingo eases the suspense.

Goofy Hero; Botany in Stanley

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The goofy Joe E. Brown is in the Stanley again. His new picture is "Local Boy Makes Good."

And how! The great open spaces are in his face and the dream of being another Luther Burbank is in his soul. His ambition is to cross a cactus with a something-or-other. His picture is a cross between an insane asylum and a florist's catalogue.

The atmosphere is collegiate, with Joe being a student who goes in for botany in a big way. He knows all the plants by their pet names. But he's weak on romancing and balcony scenes.

BATHTUB GARDEN

He turns his bedroom into a conservatory and his bathroom into a back yard garden. His bathtub looks like a jungle. And the big mystery is: What does he do on Saturday night?

Though his first love is botany, there's a rival. She's a co-ed, whose picture he saw in the paper. He boasts what a great athlete and fraternity man he is, and she arrives on the scene to find him washing a window in a bookstore. If the window wasn't there, you'd think he was a cheer leader. He has more antics than a jumping-jack has neck.

A RUNNING FOOL!

However, he proves himself an athlete. The champion track man gets angry at him and chases him all over the place. And Our Hero outruns the "champ" and lands a job on the team.

Hip-hip-hooray! But the end isn't yet. Joe goes through some more antics. And the picture ripples on to its final guffaws. It's a funny!

Dorothy Lee, the little girl who used to run around with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, is prominent in the supporting cast.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Morris Gest, who has been associated with such theatrical spectacles as "Chu Chin Chow," "The Miracle," "Aphrodite" and "Mecca" as well as Balieff's "Chauve Souris," is the man behind "The Wonder Bar," European novelty that will bring Al Jolson to the Alvin next week. It takes its name from the fact that it originated in a bar—cabaret—in Vienna. Claire Windsor, erstwhile of the screen, is one of the wonders. Mats. Thu. and Sat.

The opening of "Three's a Crowd" in the Nixon Monday will mark the first presentation here of any Max Gordon musical production. A comparative newcomer in the producing field, this revue, and his two current New York successes, "The Band Wagon" and "The Cat and the Fiddle," have put him into the "big shot" class. Clifton Webb, Libby Holman and Fred Allen comprise the crowded threesome. Mats. are three, too, Wed., Thu. and Sat.

Small Timer says Europe may yet outstrip us, but not as long as our women are showing the world.

Irene Bordoni has signed to appear in a Buffalo night club, beginning next week . . . "The Grand Hotel," one of the hit dramas of New York, is to close December 4, so the play can get to the money on the road before the film of it does. . . George Jessel, at the same time, will quit Cantor-Jessell combination because he no get $1,000 increase wanted, he says, because Jessel gets the laughs and Cantor gets the dough . . . Lupe Velez and John Gilbert are among recent arrivals from Europe . . . John Barrymore, who is engaged with Lionel in making "Arsene Lupin" for M-G-M, has signed with Radio Pictures.

The Dance

William Bakewell attends a dance and meets a new girl in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," film opening today in the Sheridan Square.

RadioReplaces Megaphone

It is a far cry from sitting in a canvas backed chair on a studio sound stage telling players when and how to emote to maneuvering a fleet of war vessels at sea, but both come within the province of the modern motion picture director. Today, the director is as apt to transmit his orders by radio as through the megaphone and his field of operation is as likely to be the Pacific Ocean or the Mojave Desert as a Parisian boudoir.

In directing "Suicide Fleet," Director Albert Rogell faced the problem of maneuvering from six to ten warships and two sailing vessels at sea for days. These maneuvers were climaxed by a naval battle in which three giant submarines sent one of the sailing ships to the bottom by shell fire and were in turn routed by a division of destroyers.

Under these circumstances, Rogell issued his orders from a flagship instead of a directorial chair. Radio, the blinker system, and the semaphore and flag signal codes replaced the megaphone as mediums of transmitting directions.

Indigent Dreamer's Love Song

I'll buy anything your heart desires;
Camellias to tangle in your hair,
A rope of rubies, smoldering like fires.
For you there isn't anything too rare.
How would you fancy trinkets from Cathay?
Or precious scent to dab upon your ears?
Each morning orchids on your breakfast tray,
Or ivory bracelets, mellow with the years.
Some silver slippers for your little feet,
And other silly things that you adore.
A jade and scarlet plumaged parrakeet,
I'll see that you have all of these . . . and more.

But, just now, dear, I must go out and waylay
Some trusting soul, who'll lend me five 'til payday.
—Kathleen Lamb.

Broadway

A place where even your best friend won't tell you—but he'll tell every one else.

Absolutely!

Vivienne Segal, whose canarying in the better shows is something to admire, encountered a gent friend who was dejected. In responce to her query, he said:

"They just fired me."
"For what?" she asked.
"For doing nothing!"
"Don't be ridiculous," snapped Vivienne, "the only people who get fired for doing nothing are press agents!"

Eavesdropped

"Howz your son making out as a columnist?"

"He knows how to do imitations of all of them already—and is wearing a hat two sizes larger—"

Epitaph

No Angel ever could conceive
Of evil B'way column men,
Who in a single lifetime live
The loves and lies and hates of ten.

In Fewer Words

By David Murray: The elephant never forgets. And our creditors must have been taking lessons . . . And many a speculator who used to wear a flower in his button-hole now wears a creditor's thumb there . . . They say that there are many starving actors on Broadway. After seeing some of the new plays I've decided that they are the wrong ones.

Gag

It is said to have actually happened in the movie sector. Samuel Hoffenstein, one of the Broadway notables who clicked out there, was on the verge of a new contract and a stiff raise in salary. The impresarios plotted to hold him at a cut in wages. They summoned him, and consumed hours "selling" him an idea.

"Look," they commenced, "think it over. If you left here and went back to New York—where the depression is awful, what would you gain?"

That was the theme of it.

You know, or didn't you?—that all big movie companies spend fortunes on Reference Rooms—in which data or any detail of costume periods, etc., can be verified and found.

Hoffenstein sent for the head of the reference department—a gal.

"Do me a favor," dryly said Sam. "I understand there is a depression in America—will you look it up and let me know if this is true?"

"Very well," was the serious retort. "I'll look it up and let you know."

I've Met Her!

"And," screams Courtney Dunkel, "there's the story about the chorine who was so dumb her boy friend asked her how long she had been locked up in a closet."

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the Best Similes Dictionary: Elinor Bishop: Ridiculous as Gandhi in a suit of armor . . . Arnold Faulkner: Short as a Scot's cigaret stub. . . . Futile as what columnist trying to go to sleep without thinking of new ideas for a column? . . . Refreshing as a cinema ad without superlatives . . . Joe Hill's: Crooked as a man who double-crosses his T's . . . Al Schwartz: More knocks than a Reno judge's gavel . . . Tommy Lyman: As dangerous as a discharged stool-pigeon . . . Sid Parry: Happy as an apple seller would be if he had Adam for a customer.

New Cooling System

The author of a Broadway play, reports Charlie Washburn, complained to the producer that the theater was too warm.

"It ought to be better ventilated," he chirped.

"With all the holes in your play you should kick about ventilation," was the spanny retort.

The Comeback Comforting

Mr. Kelvin Keech, of Honolulu and 711 Fifth avenue, New York City, is one of the better chime-bongers. He also wears a tuxedo well.

In a broadcasting station recently a speaker's mouth suddenly became loaded with marbles. Meaning that the speaker garbled his words.

The blood rushed to his cheeks and during the next breath-taking period he said:

"Gee! Do you think any of those listeners noticed my mistake?"

"The only people who notice mistakes," comforted Mr. Keech, "are those who make them themselves."

Deb From the Neck Up!

The "Band Wagon" gave a benefit performance the other night, and backstage a chorus girl said to Frank Morgan, one of the stars:

"I should think it would be a better idea to give all these poor people a good meal, instead of letting them see the show."

Morgan thought this was pretty funny, and that night at a swanky party told one of the pretty debutantes about it. Much to his amazement, she replied:

"Why, I think that is very sensible. Why don't they do it?"

And they crack whips! And they kick goals! And they bang pianos!

And they Bing Crosby!!

"My complexion was very poor because of pimples and blackheads which covered my face and neck. I had been advised to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, but had tried so many other things without success I was disgusted with everything. However, a friend urged me to try a sample anyway. In three days' time the improvement was so great I could hardly believe it. I will always have a word of praise for Resinol." (Signed)—

FRIDAY CLUB TO HEAR COUNTESS

Wife of Former Hungarian Premier To Talk at Morning Meeting On 'History in Making'

Unusual interest is being shown in the visit here of Countess Margit Bethlen, wife of the former prime minister of Hungary, who is to address the Friday Morning Club at its opening meeting next Friday in Carnegie Music Hall. Countess Bethlen will be Mrs. R. Templeton Smith's house guest and probably will be guest of honor at one or two social affairs during her stay.

Probably no contemporary woman has led a more varied and eventful life than this charming Hungarian wife of her country's former prime minister, Count Stephen Bethlen. As a war heroine, short story writer, dramatist and poet, fame has come from many directions to this woman in whose veins flows the blood of ancient kings. She is famous as a hostess and has been the guest of royalty and in the talk which she will give Friday on "History in the Making and the Personalities Who Make It," she will present her impressions of many of the notable personages whom she has met.

The countess's war work included the rescue of 200 children from an orphanage under Rumanian fire. She had several narrow escapes during the revolution, notably from the Communists who had seized the government of Hungary under the leadership of Bela Kun. At the close of the war her husband, as prime minister, officially dethroned King Charles and Queen Zita.

Notable War Work

Countess Bethlen has been prominent in the field of literature, having produced a constant succession of short stories, magazine articles as well as some verse, and her play, "The Grey Dress," has been presented in five countries. Her writings have been published in Hungarian, German, Italian and English.

The Countess is the mother of three sons. She speaks English, it is said almost without an accent.

DESIGNERS SHOW NEWEST VOGUE IN EVENING GOWNS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 20—Black velvet and pale pink roses! What else does this spell but romance? And that is exactly what an evening dress should typify. Aren't you glad that we have left behind us the skimpy, short-skirted, tailored evening frock that held sway only a few years ago? Don't the new things make you feel like a lovely princess wandering in an enchanted kingdom where romance rules and every body's cares and worries are banished? And one does not have to be a very imaginative person to gain this effect from the frocks that are being offered and worn this season.

THERE IS A youthful freshness and a romantic aspect about many of them that is enchanting. A romantic gown will do wonders for you and it will supply that zest that life needs so much just now. And when the town is illuminated after dark and night beckons with all its allure, you will want to go places, not merely in an ordinary dinner ensemble, but in a real evening frock with a nice wrap to complete the romantic elegance. You will want to dance, be gay and carefree, no matter how much you may have on your mind, and you will be able to tackle your problems all the better. And so with this plea for just one evening dress, are shown some sketches of models deliberately to tempt you.

FIRST IS A MODEL by Philippe et Gaston, who have gone to the late eighteen eighties for their inspiration. Thin black ring velvet is draped in double bustle effect, but just to be different, the bustles are placed on one side rather than in back. The diagonal tiered flounce is also suggestive of that period. Pale pink roses nestle in the folds of the drapery and add their fragile allure to one side of the off-shoulder line.

IRENE DANA uses crepe mongol in a delightfully fresh pistachio green. One side of the bodice forms a capelet, as shown in the sketch, while the opposite side passes beneath the arm and is drawn tightly back into the large bow at the waistline. The side panel of the skirt is drawn up into this bow in such a manner as to give a snug hipline. The lower part of the skirt flares gracefully.

THIS IS MY FOURTH ORDER

Fill In With Pencil—Ink Blurs

The Doll Lady's Message

Dear Little Girls:

I am really proud of the picture of my big, beautiful "Honeybunch" that I am showing on this page today. Isn't she a beauty? She's really nearly four inches taller than the picture and she's my very own doll. What I mean by that, "Honeybunch" is absolutely not on sale in any of the stores. The dollmakers have been making "Honeybunches" ever since last year just for my Christmas distribution to the little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity. And she's a darling.

Words will not describe "Honeybunch." She's almost as big as a real live baby and she does so many really cute things that you'll be fascinated with her.

Yes, she's very, very much like my "Tickletoes" dolly that made so many hundreds of little girls happy last year. In fact, she's "Tickletoes'" first cousin—almost a twin sister.

Look at the picture. "Honeybunch" is looking right at you and she says "Take me!" What a thrill you are going to get when you get this big, glorious dolly in your arms and all your own. Read every word of the description of "Honeybunch" in the boxes surrounding the picture.

Incidentally, I have a warehouse crammed full of these different-from-any-other dollies. I have been working ever since last Christmas getting ready for my second annual visit to you, and I'll tell you that this big warehouse is just a storehouse of happiness. Every doll is waiting to get out and into some little girl's arms and some little girl's home.

This year you only have to get for me FOUR new readers for the Daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph. They must each agree to take the paper for six months and pay the carrier boy on the route, at the rate of 28c a week, in the regular order of his collections. You are to pay no money—nor collect any money.

With the help of your Daddy, your Mama, your sisters and brothers, you will not find it hard to get four subscriptions. Tell your neighbors and relatives and friends that you want a "Honeybunch" dolly all for your own and they'll all help you get this wonder doll.

HOW TO ADDRESS BLANKS

You will find subscription blanks on this page. Get them signed and send them in as fast as you can. Address them to THE DOLL LADY, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Before you know it, you'll be having "Honeybunch" for a playmate.

STUFFED BEEF HEART—One beef heart, 2 tablespoons bacon fat or drippings, 1 small onion, chopped, ½ green pepper, chopped, 3 cups bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped celery.

Wash the heart and remove the gristle and veins. Make a slit in the side and fill with stuffing made as follows: Melt the fat, cook the onion and green pepper for a few minutes, add the bread crumbs, salt and celery, and stir until well mixed. Sprinkle the heart inside and out with salt and pepper, fill with the hot stuffing and sew up the slit. Sear the heart in hot fat, place in a baking dish, add ½ cup of hot water, cover and cook until tender in a very moderate oven (300 deg. F.). This will require about 2 hours. Remove the heart and add flour to the drippings and enough water to make a thin gravy. Serve surrounded by the gravy. Serves five persons.

SAUSAGE CASSEROLE—8 sausages, link; 1 pimento, minced; 2½ cups canned tomatoes, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups cold boiled macaroni or spaghetti, 1 medium sized onion, minced.

Cut the sausage into one-half inch lengths. Cook until brown. Remove sausage to hot dish. To the drippings add the onion, green pepper, salt and pepper. Girls Who Pet Conspicuously Soon Realize Folly

"Why should I save my kisses?" snorted Rhonda, who wanted to go places 'n' see things—with plenty of Heavy Dates—

"It's a cinch the boys don't save theirs"—

We told her quite a few reasons why.

And here's Repentent with a few more wring out of her own painful and bitterly regretted experience.

"I've just got to say a few words to that kid Rhonda," she begins. "I realize there is not much that you left unsaid. But perhaps a few points from a wild woman may help.

"I'm not proud to be in a position to say them. And I'm not going to sign my name to this. I'm ashamed to. I'm one of those has-beens, those 'prize pets of yesteryear' that you spoke of.

UNRESTRICTED KISSES

"My philosophy? Oh, yeah! I had a good argument. Quite as good as Rhonda's. Be a good sport? Give the boys a treat? Keep up with their line-up? Sure! I was the world's best sport on that score. Indeed! Humph! Not me. But a few kisses 'n' well, if I liked a boy well enough to go out with him why be a wet blanket and cramp his expectations?

"So I handed them out—hours of them—kisses holding hands, sweet 'n' spoken words in the moonlight, cozy embraces during a dance or drive. And was I popular? I thought I was just about the smartest thing that ever smiled and how I did smile at all of them.

"I was 16 when I started out and there was no one to put any restraint on me. I just let myself be tossed about on youth's tempestuous billows, a little love here, a few kisses there. And men, they came and went. A steady? Humph! Not me. It was much more thrilling to have a new man every new mood. Wild, crazy, my style!

SORRY LATER ON

"Well, that was all well and good—until I met Frank. He 'one and only.' And then did I suffer tortures! Take my word for it, I did and still do. I'm 27 now and we have been married three years. But although our love is mutual, he always has heard stories about the cheap petting expeditions I'd been on and when he did it swept over me with maddening nausea that it was true. I should have kept my kisses most of them anyway. I was just a burnt out battery as you say, and Frank had to take what was left.

"Oh, we're happy in our way. But my conscience pricks me everlastingly because I didn't think of kisses as sacred things that went with love and treasure them accordingly.

"Cheap, tawdry petting killed every fine sweet thing in the girl that I might have been had I been wise enough to believe the advice I heard and not taken it upon myself and into my own foolish and inexperienced hands to set up a 'standard' of my own. Don't believe these cynical, hoarse, warns about love, Rhonda. Take a tip from one who has lived and learned. You'll buy yourself a lifetime of happiness if you'll keep your affections for someone worthwhile. As for the boys not saving their kisses, why bring that up?

ADMIRES FINENESS

"And if that story isn't enough to convince you, here's the word from one of the big boys themselves.

Dear Sally:

I want to tell you that you told Rhonda the absolute truth.

Maybe girls like she wants to be think they're popular but here is one man who is sick of these popular girls who laugh at every form of honest self-respect. And the ones I mean are not ladies of the shadows. Oh, no. They live in nice homes, go to our best schools and are members of our best clubs.

Your answer to Rhonda was like a breath of pure air in springtime. I salute you! Judging from a lot of the girls I've met, I thought the sentiments you expressed had long since passed out of our modern picture. I'm glad somebody still believes in them, because I admire girls who still believe in fineness and decency, and I'm not the only one who does. A worthwhile man wants a girl he can respect.

Many Shudder at Carrying Bundles, but Fay King Dotes on Toting Them

By FAY KING

Many would shudder at the thought of carrying a thimble home. But I love to carry bundles—the bigger the better.

Of course, if I am toting a bundle of tremendous size I try to skim along behind it, not seeing and not seen.

Not that I'd mind, but it might embarrass friends I'd meet.

Yet the other day I was just arriving home with a huge box when I was aware of a most charming and Chesterfieldian bow from one of my most fastidious friends.

It was most amiable of him, too, considering that at the moment I was being directed to take the tradesmen's entrance, which by the way is another delightful adventure only big bundles can bring about!

Madge Is Certain Chinese Letter Mentions Lee Chow

For a long minute after the conviction had flashed upon me that I knew what was represented by the Chinese characters upon the flaming red rice letter which Mr. Tiger had found fastened to the cushion of my car, I could not speak. It was not only the satisfaction of solving the thing which had so eluded my memory, and which was so important for me to know, but a far deeper emotion which was sweeping me. If this thing were true, and I knew it was then:

It's Lee Chow! I broke the silence jubilantly. He and Hugh must be alive and somewhere near.

The instant the words were out of my mouth I regretted them. I had interpreted aright Lillian's sudden halt when she was about to voice the wish that Lee Chow were at hand to cope with the menace of these mysterious Chinese who had demanded that we give up Marion's sandal-wood lock box and who were now even more insistent that we turn over the letter which Mr. Tiger had found an hour ago. She had not wished to arouse Dicky's jealousy by any reference, however remote, to Hugh Grantland. And here I had uttered Hugh's name in what could only be interpreted as a paean of thanksgiving even to a casual observer.

Useless to wish that I had been more discreet, useless to excuse my slip to my own soul by the plea that my exciting experience had so unnerved me that I did not possess my usual sanity, and was hardly responsible for what I said. The words were out. I could not recall them. The only thing I could do now was to act supremely unconscious of them, as if they meant nothing especially to me beyond my joy that now we might hope for expert help in our problem.

I did not dare to look at Dicky, but augured the worst from his silence. At any other announcement from me, he would have voiced excited questions. But now he said nothing, and it was Lillian who sprang into the conversational breach.

"What do you mean by Lee Chow?" she asked with assumed captiousness. "Do you mean that the letter is from him. If it is, all I've got to say is that the sapient old mandarin is losing his grip, strewing his social correspondence around like that."

Her flippancy had given me just the fillip I needed. I answered her with impatience as pretended as her flippancy.

"No, no. I don't mean the letter was written by Lee Chow. I mean that it is addressed to Lee Chow."

"Are you sure of that, Daughter?" my father asked gravely.

"Why?" I stammered, "of course I don't know how Chinese letters are addressed, but I do know that these characters here," I indicated the superscription—"are those of Lee Chow's name. And you all saw, didn't you, that the same characters are repeated several times inside it."

"And you deduce from that," Dicky's voice broke acidly, "that Faithful Fido and his equally faithful Chink will be appearing around these parts soon?"

My father rose suddenly, and walked to the door. I knew that he was deeply displeased as he always is when Dicky or anyone else says anything that could possibly be construed as a slight to me. But I also knew that he would say nothing.

Lillian was not so reticent, however.

"Miaouw, miaouw," she whined, so softly that my father could not hear it, and the expletive so often playfully—and seriously—used by women toward each other—to express a conviction of their feminine desire to scratch—the feelings of their acquaintances, evidently penetrated Dicky's self esteem, as she meant it to do. He threw up his head for an instant, and there was a look in his eyes—I saw it beneath my furtively veiled lashes—which he rarely sends Lillian, a fiercely angry stare. But she looked full at him with widely laughing eyes, and his face reddened with confusion. Then, with one of his unexpected changes of mood, he laughed aloud, naturally, gleefully, and at the sound my father turned abruptly from the window and came back into the room.

"Sorry, sorry," Dicky said. "I am an old tomcat just as my dear friend here so kindly intimates, and I beg everybody's pardon, my darling wife's most of all. But sometimes the very name of my dear old college friend Hugh just naturally rubs me the wrong way. But I don't deny that I wouldn't mind seeing him coming through the door right about now, especially if he were accompanied by his fidus Achates, Lee Chow. They'd be two handy lads in this scrape or scrap, call it what you like, that we've got on our hands."

Household Hints

Mint will keep fresh for some time if it is washed in cold water in which a little bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved.

When sending a small coin through the mail attach it to the note paper with a narrow strip of adhesive tape. This will hold the coin firmly until it arrives at its destination.

The leaves and flowers of your plants will take on a new brightness if you add one teaspoonful of turpentine to one quart of water and use it on them once a week. Ferns will grow more luxuriantly if you give them two tablespoonsful of olive oil at the roots, once a month.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Five minutes of complete relaxation twice a day is of benefit to the business girl whose nerves frazzle through too much noise, too much hurry, too many contacts. Close the eyes. Visualize a quiet, dark forest. Let the muscles of the body go limp. Rest.

It is a mistake to believe that oil treatments weaken the permanent wave. They soften the hair, make it more amiable. It drops more readily into the wave pattern. Alternating oil applications and shampoos are death on dandruff. Olive oil or mineral oil can be used.

Orange and apricot rouge have worn out their welcome. New shades of cheeks and lips match natural tones. Makeup is not banished; it is being controlled, applied with more skill and discretion. Which is as it should be.

There's a trick in making a permanent wave behave in an agreeable manner. Some women learn it, others don't. When dressing the hair, dip the fine part of the comb in hot water and comb the hair out straight. Push toward the parting and pinch the wave lines as they appear.

Removal of Cataract Is Painless

Recently we had a visit from the King of Siam. It aroused much interest as to the importance and significance of cataract of the eye. You will recall that the brave little monarch came primarily to have a cataract removed. It was feared he might lose his eyesight permanently and very sensibly he determined to escape this great calamity.

Dr. Copeland

As a rule cataract is a condition met in old age. But, as in the case of the King of Siam, it may occur in the young.

Cataract develops slowly, but ultimately causes blindness of the eye involved. Surgery is the only means of removing it. There is no known medicine for its cure.

Cataract is a haziness involving the crystalline lens of the eye. In the operation, the lens, and with it the cloudiness is removed. The cause of cataract is not yet known, but it is believed to be due to some interference in the nutrition of the lens of the eye. This interference in nutrition may be brought about as the result of some disease.

The cataract may be caused by a blow or other injury to the eye. In this type of cataract, which is called "traumatic cataract," the cloudiness of the lens is due to a rupture of the capsule of the eye. This permits the watery fluid inside the eyeball to find its way into the lens' substance, causing it to swell and become opaque.

If the rupture in the capsule is tiny, the opacity may be found only in the small area of the injury. If the rupture is large, the entire lens becomes opaque and swollen. As a result of the swelling there may be an increase in tension of the eyeball, rather a dangerous condition.

In any such accident the patient should be placed in bed at once and applications of ice applied to the eyelids. A physician should be summoned immediately. Sometimes, in such a case, it is necessary to perform an operation, and it is best to do this at once, before permanent damage is done to the eye.

Occasionally cataracts are seen in young children. They are born with them. These cases should be operated upon as soon as possible so that there is no loss of the seeing power of the eye.

In an adult if one eye has a cataract and the sight of the other is good, there is no immediate hurry about operating. But it is a mistake to wait too long.

Of all the serious things that can happen to one, I regard cataract as the most satisfactory. It is satisfactory because by a painless operation the trouble can be speedily removed.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. S. N. A. Q—What do you advise for head noises?

A—This is usually due to nasal catarrh which has extended to the middle ear. The catarrhal condition must be cleared up first of all.

Mrs. J. A. P. Q.—What causes the eyes to get sore and red?

A—It would be wise to have your eyes examined to determine the exact cause of the trouble.

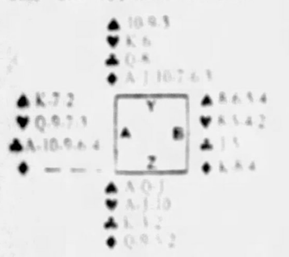
Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Holding Back at No-Trumps

A very important rule for no-trump play is to hold back a single winner of a suit until the third round, so that you have only one opponent to fear.



Z opened contracting on the above hand with 2-No-Trumps. Y overcalled with 3-Diamonds. Z ended the bidding with 3-No-Trumps. A's opening lead was his 7 of clubs, the "rule of eleven" showed that B held only one higher club, which might be either the A, J, or 10, more probably the J or 10 as that would prevent an opening lead of the J from either A-J-10 or J-10-9, with one or more lower cards. Possibly, but not probably, B might hold the A, as players often lead their fourth-best from J-10-9-X.

Z's only chance to win two tricks in clubs lay in the possibility that B held the ace which he would have to play or lose the opening lead to Y's 8. Y's lowest club was played and B covered with his J, which Z passed, and let B lead back his suit. A played his ace, capturing dummy's Q and returned a club; B discarded his lowest heart and Z won the trick, knowing that B had no more clubs and that A held three long cards of that suit.

Z led his top diamond, upon which A discarded his lowest heart. As B had no clubs to lead back, he was allowed to win the trick, and his return lead was his lowest spade. Z could count game without taking the spade finesse (one club, one spade, five diamonds, and two hearts, nine tricks total), so he put up his ace. A dropped his 7 as a come-on in case B ever again could lead.

Z proceeded to run off five diamond tricks in dummy, discarding from his own hand the Q and J of spades on the last two diamonds. The 10 of spades in dummy was just as good as either of Y's two discarded spades, and obliged A to retain his K of that suit.

When Y made his lead of his last diamond to the tenth trick played, Z was stripped down to three hearts (A-J-10), and A, having let go his last club, had to choose a discard from his top space or let go a heart from his Q-9-7. A was "squeezed"; he must hold his spade or deliberately give the eleventh trick to dummy; he had to unguard his queen of hearts. Y's king of hearts was led, followed by a small heart upon which Z played his ace, dropping A's bare queen, and giving the last trick to Z's J. Four-odd were made because Z won his one club trick on the third lead of that suit; had he won the first lead with either his K or Q he must have also lost the game.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thoughtful Gesture

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Just recently I made an "All Expense Tour" and I enjoyed it very much. As it was the first time I had ever made such a tour, I would like to know whether or not it was good form to have sent in to the tour conductor a letter of appreciation for the courtesies extended (meaning, of course, for the careful and prompt handling of my baggage and for the satisfactory hotel and boat reservations.)

I personally can see no wrong in having sent in such a letter, because it was a great relief to have been freed of such responsibilities yet on the other hand, because the trip in itself guaranteed such courtesies, was my letter out of line?

I had decided quite suddenly to make the trip and without much knowledge of the nature of it. I really felt that the accommodations made were very satisfactory. H

I am proud of you for writing this letter of appreciation. gestures like this make life gracious and smooth and sweet. And think how delighted these travel agents must have been to receive your spontaneous message of appreciation. Of course, as you say, they promised that all details would be attended to, but that never takes care of the spirit of this sort of thing, and apparently they had and have the right spirit too.

Breaking an Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going out with a man quite regularly for two years. Incidentally, he is my superintendent and employer. His sister, whom I have never met, is quite ill and may not recover. Should I just send my card in case of death, write a personal note, or go in person and leave my card? Would flowers be unnecessary or be a kind expression of sympathy?

2. When one is unable to keep an engagement and writes to the man, should one give a reason? I realize that this would be the courteous way to make the explanation, but the truth may be misconstrued so isn't it much better to be vague?

C

1. Since you have never met the sister, I think that if you merely sent your card with "Deepest sympathy" written on it you will show the best taste. To write a note of sympathy and to send flowers would, I think, be interpreted as too much of a gesture.

2. If possible, if at all possible, we should give the reason for breaking an engagement. I believe that if it is directly and honestly set forth there will not be a misinterpretation and even if there is it will be better than an evasion on such an important occasion.

Add remaining seasoning and stuff squabs. Fasten wings securely across the back and put in roaster. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle lightly with flour and cover tightly. Bake in a hot over (450 degrees F.) 45 minutes, then reduce to 400 degrees F. and bake 45 minutes longer or until thoroughly browned. Baste frequently with the drippings during baking and turn occasionally to brown both sides. Serves 6.

Canned, Home Made Soup Show Little Difference

Careful Government supervision and improved methods of manufacture insure perfection of these tasty products.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

As a result of the tremendous strides made by the canned industry, it is difficult to distinguish between canned soups and home made soups. It is comforting that the commercial world is making use of tons and tons of vegetables that formerly rotted in the fields and gardens. The canners have learned how to preserve their nutritive and delicious qualities.

For example, canned tomato soup is made from the juice and pulp of tomatoes, cooked down to about a third their raw state. To this stock is added salt, sugar, corn and wheat flour, onions and a few ground spices. This combination makes a most delicious soup.

Then we have cream of tomato soup. This is a cream soup having a much milder flavor than the tomato soup. Tomato bouillon is prepared from the juice and pulp of tomatoes, to which beef broth is added.

One of the most popular of the canned soups is "mulligatawny soup." This soup derives its name from the Indian word "milagutanir" meaning "pepper water." The soup is so called because it is seasoned with curry powder or pepper. It contains thickened chicken stock and ground tomatoes. It is a hot and spicy soup and particularly tempting during cold weather.

During the spring months a popular and delicious soup is "printanier soup." Printanier is a French word for spring. It is a vegetable soup, containing carrots, string beans, turnips, fresh peas and lima beans.

Another canned soup in great demand is "mock turtle soup." It is usually made of tomato and meat juices, thickened with rice flour and flavored with various spices and herbs. The meat it contains is in the form of small squares.

"Green turtle soup" differs from mock turtle soup in that it is made from rich turtle stock, thickened with brown flour and seasoned with herbs.

There is a variety of 50 soups, at least, each catering to the individual desire. One should have no fear or hesitancy in the purchasing of these products. Their manufacture and sale are under the rigid regulations of the pure food law and their makers take pride in their products. These foods make a fine beginning to our meal, preparing the digestive organs for more substantial things.

BEAUTY IS NOT JUST A GIFT

For every woman who inherits beauty, there are five who win charm and good looks. Without health, there can be little natural beauty. And a serious handicap to health is constipation.

This widespread ailment often causes headaches, listlessness, sallow skins, pimples—undermining both health and beauty.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal provides "bulk," which gently clears out the wastes. And Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce.

Try two tablespoonfuls daily—usually sufficient for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEIGHBORS BAIL PLOT SUSPECT

PEKIN, Ill., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—The confidence of townspeople in their country doctor was graphically exemplified today in the court records of Tazewell County.

Because of this confidence inspired by 23 years of practice in the little town of Emden, Dr. B. M. Barringer was out of jail on $10,000 bonds and was afforded the opportunity of preparing his defense against the charges of Mrs. Alice Mason, 50-year-old widow, that he aided her in the arsenic murders of her husband and her 12-year-old daughter. The $10,000 was publicly raised by leading citizens.

In her statement to the authorities, Mrs. Mason had declared that Dr. Barringer supplied her with the arsenic used in poisoning her husband, John, and her daughter, Mildred. She also accused the physician of sharing with her the $2,000 derived from insurance policies on the lives of her victims.

INSURANCE MEN FETE FUREY

William M. Furey today celebrates the forty-fifth anniversary of his connection with the Berkshire Life Insurance Company in Pittsburgh. He started November 20, 1886 as an office boy.

Mr. Furey

He became general agent for the Western Pennsylvania territory in 1898. This afternoon a reception will be held in the local offices, 1207 First National Bank Building, which will be attended by many of the leading life insurance men of the district.

A dinner will be given in honor of Mr. Furey tonight at the William Penn Hotel. Many local representatives and visiting officials of the Berkshire company will attend.

HEROIC PILOT KNOWN HERE

Sebastian F. Hodges, pilot of the port of San Juan, Porto Rico, recently decorated by the United States Treasury for having saved from drowning nine sailors and a boy from the steamer Antigracia on September 18, 1929, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Phillips Hodges, former Pittsburghers, whose ancestry here dates back to the Revolutionary War. Hodges was first officer of the Catherine when the thrilling rescue took place.

Hodges' father was the grandson of Capt. Elias Phillips, U. S. A., and Mary Ormsby Phillips. The grandmother was the daughter of Oliver Ormsby, owner of considerable land in the South Side and the boroughs. Many of the South Side streets were named for his children.

The Hodges left Pittsburgh more than a score of years ago. Their son teaches seamanship in San Juan.

HUNGRY PRINCE SHUNS FETE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—The Maharaja of Burdwan, ranking potentate of Bengal, India, and who is reported to have an annual income of $15,000,000, outmaneuvered the official welcoming reception committee yesterday by arriving beforehand on a special train, thereby eluding the welcoming contingent of the local greeters awaiting his arrival at the union station. Later, the Prince said:

"I was in a hurry and wanted to get some grub."

The noted United States visitor, who is known as the largest taxpayer in the British Empire, said his land possessions are scattered through 4,000 square miles in which there are 2,000,000 people. He said:

"Oh, yes, I have all the Western adornments, including automobiles."

Jacks, British Editor, To Stop Here on Tour

Dr. Lawrence Pearsall Jacks, British editor and former head of Manchester College, Oxford University, will be in Pittsburgh December 4 and 5, it was announced today. The visit to this city will be a part of his tour of the country under auspices of the National Recreation Association.

He will be the guest of the Hungry Club at a dinner in Fort Pitt Hotel December 4. The following day he will attend a banquet in William Penn Hotel.

Detective Sigmund Gorskey declared labor trouble was responsible for the bombing, and that Ralph Freeman, business agent for Local No. 171, Motion Picture Operators' Union, had hired a gang of thugs to intimidate owners of picture theaters.

Gorskey said he had arrested A. D. Ackerd, of 822 Broadway, McKees Rocks, after he had gone to pay $150 hush money to members of the gang who had threatened an expose.

Besides Freeman and Ackerd, those at liberty in $2,000 bond each on charges of being suspicious persons are Anthony Ritchie, of 44 Fleming avenue, Stowe Township, and Mike Ciamacco, of 593 McCoy avenue, McKees Rocks, poolroom manager.

Sues for Divorce On Her Golden Wedding Day

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 20. (AP.)—On Mrs. Michael Zillmer's golden wedding anniversary yesterday there was no family reunion with eager grandchildren crowding around a huge cake. Mrs. Zillmer chose the anniversary to file a divorce action.

Children and friends tried valiantly to bring about a reconciliation. The aged woman shook her head. She said:

"I have had half a century to make up my mind, and I won't change it now. No sentiment on the twilight trail for me."

She charged cruelty.

CAROL NURSES BLACK EYE

By GEORGE BALINT
International News Service.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 20.—Rumania's royal black eye, adorning the face of King Carol, continued to keep that monarch in seclusion today at the royal palace in Bucharest as further reports reached here of his fiery quarrel with his younger brother, Prince Nicholas, over the latter's marriage.

Nicholas, who gave Carol the black eye, as well as a stiff crack on the jaw, remained meanwhile at his Bucharest residence with his pretty bride, the former Jana Lucia Deletji, despite the refusal of his sovereign-brother to approve his marriage with a commoner.

Private information from Bucharest indicated jealousy between Mme. Deletji and Mme. Magda Lupescu, King Carol's companion, was responsible for the annulment of Prince Nicholas' marriage and the royal fist fight.

Mme. Lupescu was said to have objected to the marriage of Nicholas and Mme. Deletji because King Carol did not marry her while he was living in Paris.

SUPPER HONORS G. A. R. VETS

Veterans of the Civil War were guests of honor at a supper in Memorial Hall as Grand Army of the Republic Day was observed under the auspices of the Federated Patriotic Orders, including the women's relief group, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic; Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War and auxiliary to the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Thursday, November 19, was selected because it comemorates the anniversary of the delivery of Lincoln's famous Gettysburg address upon the dedication of the National Cemetery there in 1863. Following the supper last night, the veterans gathered around a camp fire and listened to reminiscences and melodies of the Civil War period and to an address by Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, national chaplain of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Wife Suicide, Man Kills Son and Self

PLAINWELL, Mich., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Carl Denning, 20, was shot to death at his farm near here this morning by his father, William Denning, 62, who then committed suicide.

Authorities said they believed the father was deranged by worry over ill health and brooding over the suicide of his wife, who took poison several years ago.

Sheet-Tube Dividend Actions Dismissed

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Release of $1,100,000 in Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company common dividends withheld from opponents of the now abandoned merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation came a step nearer realization today with the dismissal of 19 actions pending in Common Pleas Court here.

The suits dismissed were filed by merger opponents who asked the court to set a fair cash value for their shares. After the merger was canceled by Bethlehem, Sheet and Tube announced it was ready to pay the withheld dividends as soon as the suits were dropped.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say gently strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

NORTH DAKOTA RANKS WITH HEAVIEST

WHEN LOCAL FOOTBALL fans at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon get the first daylight glimpse they have had of the Duquesne University team this season, they will see Elmer Layden's gridders up against one of the heaviest teams in the country. There are only two men in the North Dakota lineup—Ralph Pierce at left halfback and Joe Bourne at center—under 180 pounds, and even those two scale 175 and 178, respectively.

Elmer Layden

The average weight of the Flickertail players is a fraction above 185 pounds, against 175 for Duquesne. The average weight of the regular backs for the visitors is 185, against 171 for Duquesne, and the average poundage of the Nodak linemen is a shade over 185, against 179 for Duquesne. There isn't a 200-pounder among the North Dakota starters, but the weight is so evenly distributed that from end to end and throughout the backfield the team is one of the huskiest in the college ranks.

THE NORTHWESTERNERs HAVE class as well as bulk, as the Dukes learned in a 14-to-6 defeat at their hands last year. Undefeated this fall and boasting a scoreless tie with Oregon, the Flickertails have lost only two games in three straight seasons. Their only reverses during that period were administered by Haskell in 1929 and by Army in 1930.

However, the Dukes are well prepared for the hard job of tomorrow after two weeks' rest since the Holy Cross game, and the rugged invaders will encounter opposition that assures one of the hardest fights of the local season. The Bluffties figure that they have tradition in their favor, too, as they have never lost five games in a season since Layden became coach and they have already taken four on the chin this fall.

PENN STATE MEN in this district who have been wont to watch Pitt and State clashing annually, though deprived of the chance to watch those teams in action at the Stadium on Thanksgiving Day, will have an opportunity to see the Lions tomorrow when the Mt. Nittany eleven goes to Morgantown to play West Virginia.

The Mountaineer game will close the regular schedule for Penn State, though a post-season game is booked for next week in Philadelphia. It will be the second visit of the Lions to Morgantown, the first having been made in 1925, when State was the guest team for the dedication of Mountaineer Field.

A NUMBER OF Penn State players will be performing before home folk in the Morgantown game. The southwestern section of Pennsylvania is well represented on the Lion roster. Capt. George Lasich, of Clairton, is at the head of the list. The starting quarterback probably will be Donald Conn, of Uniontown, who won a first-team position after reporting at the opening of classes, two weeks after the first pre-schedule practice. Others from this section of the State squad are Stanley Stempeck, of Wilmerding, a tackle; Tom Slusser, of Schenley High, end; Johnny Wahl, of Beaver Falls, guard; Tom Harper, of Pittsburgh, who attended New Castle High and Kiski, halfback; Carl Wille, of Crafton, halfback; John Torrance, Greensburg, center; Ed Lautu, of Monessen, halfback, and George Collins, of Youngstown, O., former freshman captain who returned to college this fall after a two-year lapse, halfback. Tomorrow's game will bring together as head coaches two former West Virginia Wesleyan mentors in Greasy Neale and Bob Higgins.

A. G. Pratt

A VENERABLE PITTSBURGH sports figure who was one of baseball's earliest and best professional players has reached another milestone on the roadway of life. He is A. G. (Uncle Al) Pratt, of 706 Summerlea street.

Uncle Al was 83 yesterday, but it found him just as young in spirit as he was on the day when he threw his first ball. One of the most widely known and popular veterans of the diamond, he was showered with birthday congratulations and good wishes by an army of friends.

ONE OF THE best young pitchers in the country in his day, Al Pratt was winning fame in baseball even before the National League came into existence. Following service with the Union Army in the Civil War, he started with the old Enterprise team in 1866 on the North Side, where he was born, and after pitching a season in Portsmouth, O., he became a member of the famous Forest City club, of Cleveland, in 1869.

On that team he had the distinction of pitching in the first professional league ever formed in baseball, the Professional League of Baseball Players, which included the Forest City club. Jim White, one of the most famous backstops of the early days, was his catcher.

AL REMAINED WITH the Forest City club four years, returning to the Enterprise team in 1873 and later joining the Xanthas, another of Pittsburgh's famous early independent teams. When the National League took the field in 1876, he pitched for Cincinnati, and when forced to give up pitching he served as a National League umpire from 1877 to 1880. As leader of the local club in the old American Association in 1882 and 1883, Manager Pratt was one of the men to introduce major league ball in Pittsburgh. He went into business with the Spalding firm here in 1884 and his only baseball work after that was to assist in the handling of the Pittsburgh National League club during the disastrous Brotherhood season of 1890. No one in the game in these days had a more brilliant career than Uncle Al and no one did more for the future good of baseball in general and in Pittsburgh in particular.

IT DOESN'T TAKE a champion, by any means, to beat King Levinsky, yet in winning a 10-round decision over him in Chicago last night, Primo Carnera must be admitted to have shown considerable improvement.

It is doubtful if Carnera could have done that in his form of a year ago. He is beginning to look more capable, as well as more willing to meet opponents other than setups. Incidentally, Primo has demonstrated that the Sharkey beating didn't take much out of him.

Kid Chocolate

In spite of the 2-to-1 loss to Buffalo here last night, Pittsburgh's rebuilt hockey club deserves to be appraised as playing well enough to offer plenty of hope for the future.

While they haven't won a game in three starts, the local icers have come out with two ties and were barely nosed out in their only defeat, played under conditions which made good hockey impossible, and that's a much better beginning than they made a year ago.

THOUGH THERE IS a prospect a bout close enough to wind up either way, and fast enough to look like a leather shower, the dope appears to indicate that Tony Canzoneri will retain the world lightweight championship in tonight's 15-round title bout with Kid Chocolate in New York. Chocolate is not to be underrated as a challenger. He is a speedy, clever boxer and a sharp hitter, who must be conceded a chance against any man of his weight at any time, but in Canzoneri he will be facing one of the game's best money fighters, and on all-around form the champion seems to have an edge that ought to win for him.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

By CARL W. SHATTO

In a hockey game which because of a heavy fog that clouded the ice, was little more than a burlesque on the fast winter sport, the Buffalo Bisons nosed out the local Yellow Jackets, 2 to 1, in an International League fixture decided in an overtime period before a crowd of approximately 4,500 fans at Duquesne Garden last night.

The first period, although it produced no score, was the only stanza in which the players had a clear view of the puck and of each other. The boys had to skate around the arena to persuade the fog to lift from the playing surface before the second period, which produced no score, got under way, and in the third and overtime stanzas all efforts to remove the thick white cloud from the ice proved vain.

HARD TO FOLLOW GAME

Several times in the late stages of the fight play was halted while arena attaches swirled blankets through the air in an effort to bring the goalies out of the fog bank and into view. Shots from one end of the rink to the other became the best method of attack, because the goal guardians could neither see the man getting off the shot nor the direction of his drive. The recesses usually were called when a player stationed near Referee Tommy Hughitt sent a drive into the fog bank, and neither official nor would-be scorer could tell where the shot had landed.

At times the puck could be located only by the cheering of the fans. The customers, eager to see the action, let out a cheer every time the battling moved into their territory, and an outburst of applause often was the only indication as to where the play had moved.

REFEREE BAFFLED

All players looked so much alike in the dense mist that only those who shared in the scoring of goals knew who had contributed the tallies. The referee, too, was baffled, and consultations with the coaches and players were held before goals and assists were awarded.

At the conclusion of these parleys it was announced that Buffalo was first to score, Martin registering on a pass from Gross, at 3:27 in the third period. The Pittsburgh goal, which forced the game into an extra period, was credited to Capt. Tory Gregg, on a pass from Gordy Fraser, seven minutes later.

The victory goal, recorded after a little more than six minutes of overtime action, goes into the records as being scored by Gross, Martin and Voss getting assists. The only indication of this goal was the flashing of the red light, and it was not until after Coach Frank Nighbor had gone into a huddle with his Bisons, after the game, that anyone knew how the scoring came about.

GOALS PROTESTED

Each and every goal was protested, both on the grounds of player interference and dense fog, but Referee Hughitt, who was kept busy trying to decide when the fog was too thick for play, had no time to listen to complaints.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A MACHINE THAT CAN TASTE FOOD—What is believed to be the world's first electrical taster is used by the Birdseye development laboratories of the General Foods Corporation to test the freshness of liquid foods. The device resembles a small portable radio set. It consists of a few dials and a gauge, which registers the resistance of the liquid to electricity and eliminates the human equation in tasting. So far the taster has been applied only to liquid foods, but its inventor hopes to make it applicable to solid foods as well. FLICKERTAILS WORK OUT FOR DUKES TILT

By JESS CARVER

Another undefeated football team, the fourth this year, the North Dakota Flickertails, invaded Pittsburgh today.

Al De Luca

The Flickertails are here to assist Duquesne University in celebrating its annual Homecoming Day tomorrow by battling the Dukes at Forbes Field.

This isn't the first time North Dakota has exhibited here, the Flickertails stopping off last fall for a night game. On that occasion they bumped the locals by a 14-6 score. The team was one of the best drilled and most pleasing to show here all fall.

Since last year's contest the Flickers haven't lost a game and boast a scoreless tie with Oregon, the same Oregon that defeated New York U. in one of the present campaign's greatest upsets. Big, powerful and fast, boasting a possible All-America end and a backfield constructed about big Buster Burma, the captain-fullback, the Flickertails are confident of repeating last year's triumph.

27 ON SQUAD

Coach West led a squad of 27 players into town and has 'em quartered at Webster Hall. The team likely will work out at Forbes Field this afternoon, or may use the Pitt Stadium gridiron.

Coach Elmer Layden will put his Dukes through their final workout this afternoon. All week, the Dukes have been stressing their offense. The backfield has been shaken up. Cristina inserted at fullback; Pawlina, sent to right half, and Zananelli benched. De Lucca figures to get the call at left half and likely Devenney at quarterback, for the start at least.

The line is about intact. Ben Barrett is in good physical trim for a change and likely will be at center. Maroon Antoon, DeCarbo and Capt. Mike Ferrera are ready for yoeman service at the guards, or if that sort of service won't do, they're ready to go even further and die for dear old Duquesne. Sinko, O'Donnell, Weinberg and Donaghue are the tackles; Murphy, Baker, Niccolai and Powell the ends. Noccolai, who has been playing right end since being converted from a tackle, has been shifted to left end and will pair off with Sinko to give the Dukes a formidable left side.

LINE IS HEAVY

The North Dakota line is both rangy and heavy. The ends are guarded by Freddy Felber, the all-America prospect, and Bill Merback. Felber, aside from being an ace on the defense, both catches and throws passes. Long, 190 pounds, and Purcell, 195, are the varsity tackles. Two 185-pounders, Dablow and Lowe hold

THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College coach, and former all-America star at Carnegie Tech.

Tomorrow finds many of the country's college football teams playing their last game of the season . . . There will be quite a few games next week, on Thanksgiving Day, and the Saturday following, and even a few teams will play as late as the first and second weeks in December, but, for the most part, tomorrow officially ends the schedules . . . As might be expected, there are a great many interesting and colorful games on the slate.

Heading the list is the Southern California-Notre Dame tussle at South Bend, while the Harvard-Yale game ranks as a close second both in public interest and importance . . . Other games which will be closely watched and likely will prove to be the most interesting of the day are Michigan-Minnesota, Northwestern-Iowa, Georgia Tech-Florida, Wisconsin-Chicago and California-Stanford . . . In this district, Duquesne plays North Dakota, Grove City and Thiel will stage their annual fight, Allegheny meets West Virginia Wesleyan and Geneva takes on Westminster.

Howard Harpster

The Harvard-Yale game has all of the fans guessing, and, although Harvard likely will enter it a slight favorite, most of the people I have talked with seem to favor Yale . . . Judging from their records for the season, the two teams appear to be nearly equal . . . Both have played the Army, Harvard winning, 14 to 13, while Yale tied the Cadets, 6 to 6 . . . The Crimson has the only perfect record in the East, not having lost any games nor having been tied . . . Yale dropped a game to Georgia, and was tied by Dartmouth in a wild game which ended 33 to 33 . . . Each squad boasts in its backfield a star of the first magnitude, Harvard swearing by its captain, Barry Wood, while the Eli backers are counting on little Albie Booth to rip the Crimson to pieces . . . It would not surprise me to learn that both of these stars are "bottled up" for most of the game, for, in a battle such as the Yale and Harvard teams put up against each other, all 11 players of both sides delight in making it as miserable as they can for any particularly brilliant player on the other team.

The Duquesne-North Dakota game promises to be one of the best that has been played at Forbes Field this season . . . Elmer Layden's squad will be out to avenge the setback received last year from the Dakota team and will play doubly hard in an attempt to be the first team to hand the visitors a licking this season.

Another undefeated team and one which I believe is in for a long afternoon is Allegheny . . . Coach Crum's eleven meets the powerful West Virginia Wesleyan aggrega-

H. GROSKLOSS ON MEND

Howard (Howdy) Groskloss, of Sheraden, recuperating from a knee operation in a hospital at New Haven, writes his Pittsburgh friends in a very hopeful manner concerning his condition.

The clever Bucco infielder, who is a student at the Yale Medical School, underwent a surgical operation a few days ago. Although the operation was somewhat complicated, Howard is confident he will be O. K. eventually.

"My operation proved quite a complicated one, but I am destined to have a perfect knee again," writes Groskloss. "I expect to be out of this wheel chair by Saturday and will leave the hospital on crutches. I anticipate walking within a few weeks. My physician has my system of exercises worked out for me right up to the day I shall leave for camp, and he feels that I will be in fine shape by that time. This operation is putting me so far behind in my work that I shall have to stay in school and study during the holidays. Hence, I will not get home."

Washington Trade Keeps Soccer Title

The Washington Trade School soccer team captured the junior booting title of the city yesterday, winning the honor for the fourth successive year through its defeat of Langley, 3 to 2, in an overtime game yesterday at Oliver High School Field.

PITT TO AID RELIEF FUND

Daily the idea of having football do something worth while for the relief of the unemployed grows in the Pittsburgh district.

The University of Pittsburgh announces through W. Don Harrison, athletic director, that it will donate a portion of its receipts from the closing game on its schedule, with the Nebraska University Cornhuskers, at the Stadium, on Thanksgiving Day, in addition to granting the use of the Stadium gratis for the benefit contest between Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University on Saturday, December 5.

TO REDUCE BUDGET

The plan to hook up the Nebraska game in the general scheme of things has been given the O. K. of the athletic council of the University of Pittsburgh and yesterday was accepted by Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, who is chairman of the general committee in charge of the relief program.

As explained by Director Harrison, Pitt budgets each game on its schedule for a minimum revenue to cover its operating cost for the year. For the Nebraska game, it will reduce this budget to the bone and then accept a cut of 25 per cent in the budget, this 25 per cent and any sum over that amount going to the relief committee.

This amount may reach a substantial size. A cash guarantee offered by Pitt will give the committee an assured return from the game.

COMMITTEES NAMED

The general committee for the Tech and Duquesne game was announced by Chairman Phillip as follows:

CLAIRTON, MIDLAND LOOM AS FINALISTS

Pittsburgh Celtics Withdraw From National Amateur Soccer Tourney

POINT SYSTEM MAY DECIDE CHAMPION

By JULIUS LEVIN

The football committee of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League failed in its attempt to clarify the championship situation after a long-drawn-out session yesterday afternoon n the Fort Pitt Hotel.

With representatives from all four contending teams, Clairton, McKeesport, Midland and Washington, in attendance, the committee made a recommendation that Midland meet Washington on Thanksgiving Day, the winner to meet the victor in the Clairton-McKeesport game, to be played the same day, in a post-season contest.

Midland, having completed a tough nine-game schedule, did not feel inclined to meet Washington, which will have played seven games when it winds up its season against Monaca at Washington tomorrow. Midland's officials announced themselves as willing to abide by the point system adopted by the football committee last season.

CLAIRTON LIKELY VICTOR

If the point system is adopted, Clairton likely will be declared the winner, provided it defeats Duquesne tomorrow afternoon at Duquesne and McKeesport at Clairton on Thanksgiving Day. If successful in both of their remaining games, Woodman's gridders would have sufficient points to give them an advantage over Midland and Washington.

The point system would benefit Clairton immensely, inasmuch as a victory over McKeesport would help its cause more than a decision over any other Class A eleven, due to the fact that Woodman's team would get the benefit from every victory registered by the Tubers. McKeesport, undefeated in eight games played so far this season, thus would provide Clairton with a winning margin if it lost to Woodman's team next Thursday. A winning team is given so many points for a victory, depending on the rating of its opponent and it also receives points for every team the beaten eleven has defeated.

THREE TO SURVIVE

The football committee cannot take any action until after the close of the season, which will be on Thanksgiving Day. With Midland finished for the season and Washington slated to finish its campaign undefeated tomorrow, the football committee will have three undefeated elevens on its hands at the close of the season.

With Midland, exercising its prerogative of rejecting an extra game with Washington, the only method left for the committee will be the point system, which is certain to cause a furore both in Midland and Washington. However, the committee may order a post-season game between the two teams holding the highest points, in which event Clairton will meet Midland.

Prior to the meeting of the football committee, the W. P. I. A. L. decision group declared Alex Waleski, East Pittsburgh star, ineligible to play against Turtle Creek Union tomorrow afternoon. Waleski, it was brought out, had registered at Turtle Creek Union and transferred to East Pittsburgh after Union had played its first game. W. P. I. A. L. rules call for a student to be in school five months before he is eligible to compete in athletics.

CITY FINALISTS

Schenley and South Hills, finalists in the fight for the City League championship, concluded their workouts this afternoon with light drills and will enter their battle tomorrow at the Stadium in the best of physical condition. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock.

With the majority of important games scheduled tomorrow afternoon, today's scholastic card offers few attractive contests. South Union plays at Connellsville, German Township at Uniontown, North Union at California, Ben Avon at Sewickley, Burgettstown at Centerville, East Pike Run at East Bethlehem, Rankin at Elizabeth, Richhill at Ellsworth-Cokeburg, Imperial at Oakdale, Dunbar Borough at Masontown and Avalon at Bellevue.

down guard jobs, and Joe Bourne is the center.

In the backfield, Capt. Burma goes to fullback. He went here last year and he's still clicking. Wexler, a repited smart young chap, is at quarter and Pierce and Richmond hold down the halves. Pierce, they say, is the best ball toter North Dakota ever has boasted.

Of course, this all may be the old hooey, and the Dukes, having rested since holding strong Holy Cross in check two weeks ago, may be depended upon to make a ball game out of it. They'll be bothered by the double wing back system of attack used by the visitors, but the Dukes so far have shown themselves to be good money players. Western Maryland and Georgetown both figured to take the locals, but were held to scoreless deadlocks.

Tomorrow's contest will be the final home game of the regular schedule for the Dukes, as they wind up their season against Howard College at Birmingham, Ala., Thanksgiving.

SUTHERLAND WORRIED

You likely won't go for this, but this fellow Sutherland is more up in the air over the game with Nebraska than he has been for nay contest this season, and that goes for Notre Dame, too. The good Doctor knows, from past experience, how tough the Cornhuskers always are, and this year, since losing their second game of the season to Northwestern, the Huskers have been knocking 'em off, right, left and middle. If they get by Iowa State this week, they'll be Missouri Valley Conference champions, which is something or other.

In the workouts this week, Sutherland has been using Cutri at quarter, alternating Clark and Luch at fullback and working big Tar Onder plenty at right guard. Capt. Eddie Hirshberg and Hogan are still on the sidelines and may not be able to start next week.

Meanwhile, Bob Waddell is whipping his Techs into trim for the New York University game. The team clicked so niftily against Temple, especially during the first half, when it ran up a total of 19 points and won the ball game, that the Skibos have high hopes of springing a surprise and upsetting Chick Meehan's not too violent Violets.

ALUMNI SPORTS CONTROL AT YALE ENDS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The Yale Athletic Association, born of graduate interest in undergraduate athletics, and heretofore controlled by alumni with but indirect direction by the Yale teaching staff, is to pass under almost complete faculty domination.

President James Rowland Angell today explained to an alumni committee the new constitution whereby the organization that built the Yale Bowl is to be henceforth governed. This new constitution will go into affect during the current school year.

Under the new constitution the position of athletic director will be combined with that of chairman of the board of control.

The board of control is to be reduced from 24 to 12 members.

Alumni representation on the board will be decreased from six to two members.

Five alumni committee chairmen, one alumnus representing major sports, and two undergraduates are to be eliminated from the board.

A business manager will be appointed by the University Corporation on the nomination of the board of control.

The membership of the board of control is to include the chairman, the university president and the deans of Yale College, Sheffield Scientific school and the freshman year.

Other members of the board of control will be a representative of the treasurer's office, the director of university health, a faculty member representing the council of masters of the colleges (house plan units), two alumni and two undergraduates.

TURKEY SHOOT CARDED

The first of the season's mid fashion turkey shoots will be held at the South Hills Sportsman's Association traps, located on the Brownsville road, near the South Hills Country Club. The competition will be on a handicap basis and will be open to non-club members as well as club members, on an entry fee basis.

CARNERA WINS, ARRESTED

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—All in all, Primo Carnera, the giant Italian heavyweight, had quite a time of it here last night.

He won the unanimous, but boeed, decision over King Levinsky, Chicago's own, in 10 rounds at the Stadium, and then was arrested and placed under guard in his hotel room until this morning, when he was called upon to post bond to satisfy a judgment obtained by a Fort Wayne fight promoter.

Twenty-one thousand fans saw the fight, in which Levinsky was the aggressor all of the way and had Carnera looking bad at the finish.

Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, knocked out Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., in the first round of the semi-final. A right to the jaw and left to the body finished Bushy, who had lost and won in two previous meetings with the champion.

LOCAL BOOTERS FORFEIT GAME TO SHANNON

By TOM BIRKS

One of the biggest upheavals in local soccer circles came this morning when the Pittsburgh Celtics, for many years one of the outstanding teams of Western Pennsylvania, withdrew from the National amateur cup tourney on the eve of its second-round game with the Castle Shannon-Morrys, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at Leslie Park.

The withdrawal followed the resignation of Manager Tom Edwards and Secretary W. J. Kerr because of internal strife on the club.

Harold Farmer was named manager and this is the second time that the Lawrenceville man has been at the head of the club. Followers of the club criticized the selection committee following the poor showing last Saturday when the Rovers defeated the Celtics in a league game.

However, the Celtics will continue in the league as usual, and the Morrys, of Shannon, will pass into the next round of the cup by default.

The only other National cup battle finds the German Sport Club, a senior team, clashing with the Castle Shannon Juniors at Sullivan Field.

HEAVIER GOLF BALL FOR '32 ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The "balloon" golf ball made its exit today with the announcement by H. H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf Association, that the executive committee had adopted a new and heavier ball effective January 1, 1932.

Ramsay's announcement follows:

"Effective for play January 1, 1932, the size of the golf ball shall be not less than 1.68 inches in diameter and the weight shall be not greater than 1.62 ounces avoirdupois.

"The foregoing specifications retain the size of the present ball and change the weight specification back to the weight of the old ball."

The "balloon" ball, which has born its official stamp of approval for the last year, weighs only 1.55 ounces and was the object of widespread complaint. The ball was too light to hold its true course in the wind.

The executive committee, which was in session almost 12 hours yesterday, passed no other important legislation, said President Ramsay. It did not set dates for the 1932 Walker Cup matches, which it is rumored may be postponed for a year due to economic conditions in England.

BUCS TO REJECT $50,000 OFFER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

A $50,000 offer by an American League club for a sensational Pirate recruit was admitted today by Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the local club.

Floyd Vaughn

In confirming the report of the stupendous offer Dreyfuss indicated he would turn it down.

The remarkable rookie is Shortstop Floyd Vaughn, a strapping boy who in his first year in organized baseball proved a big factor in the winning of the first half of the Western League pennant by the Wichita Aviators. Wichita is controlled by the Pittsburgh club.

Floyd was an obscure actor in the Pirate spring training production. Art Griggs, Wichita pilot, took the lad along to Art's domain and soon Vaughn was a playing member of a Class A club. He failed to click at the plate in the first month of the season, but once he found his stride he kept the pace of Tony Piet, another sensation of the league.

Vaughn batted something like .340, he made homers, triples and doubles in profusion and he gave Tony a great run on the basepaths. He swiped more than 40 sacks and in a general way disported himself in a startling manner.

Several major league scouts, including Johnny Evers, of the Braves, and Eddie Herr, of the Yankees, were scouting the Western League when they ran upon the amazing Pirate farmhand. News of Vaughn's prowess was scattered to all corners of the baseball world, but the sleuths knew it was useless to follow Vaughn when they saw the name on his shirt—they knew he was an embyro Buccaneer.

Trojan Squad Holds Drill in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Southern California's football squad steamed into Chicago today respectful of the prowess of Notre Dame's grid machine but "not scared a bit."

Coach Howard Jones, 34 players and their followers detrained at a station near the University of Chicago and went immediately to Stagg Field for limbering up exercises and signal drill.

Jones was conservative in his predictions as to the game. He realized he said that Notre Dame has "one of the best teams in the country," and that his Trojans' chances were not rated very high.

tion, and unless a decided improvement is shown in the Gaitors' offense over last week's play, the team will suffer its first defeat. . . . The Grove City-Thiel game looks like a toss-up. Thiel having improved considerably during the past few weeks.

The Tri-State Conference, as well as the Tri-State Class B title, are at stake when Geneva and Westminster meet at Beaver Falls. . . . The Westminster team always is at its best when playing Geneva, and has come to Beaver Falls on various occasions to hand the Covenanters decisive defeats. . . . The Geneva team will have to "click" if the laurels won last year are to remain in its possession.

'Local Boy' Airmails Lowdown on Trojans

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Comes to hand from far-off Los Angeles a hurry-up air-mail letter from Henry Levy, former Carnegie Tech end, who has been sojourning out there for several months.

Henry is one of the keenest observers of football in the land. He has been a close friend of Coach Wally Steffen, of Tech, ever since his playing days with the Tartans.

This season he has been taking in all of the big games on the Coast and he writes interestingly his views of the famous University of Southern California Trojans and their battles against Notre Dame at South Bend tomorrow and in the Tournament of Roses game for which they have been selected as the Coast representatives.

PICKS NOTRE DAME

"My guess," Levy writes, "is that Notre Dame will win. They are two touchdowns better, and maybe more if they get off to a good start.

"Southern Cal is strictly a great power team. It machines down its opponents with sheer man power and has no great deception or dazzling speed in its running attack. It very much resembles N. Y. U. on the offense, with more and better power.

"The power house attack predominates when the starting backfield combination of Shaver and Musick is on the field. The Mohler-Shaver combination which follows with Shaver moving to fullback and Mohler playing quarter, develops more speed and deception because Mohler has the speed to run on the outside. If Southern Cal should win it will be with Shaver and Mohler in their. With Mohler playing only part of the time the Trojans chances are reduced. I don't think any team can simply run over the always strong Notre Dame line which is too tough, with its reserves. The Notre Dame line must be outmaneuvered and Southern Cal lacks that sort of an attack. Ernie Pinckert, a halfback who carries the ball only on weak side reverses (like Kavel of Carnegie Tech), is a great blocker and defensive player, probably the Coast's outstanding backfield choice for all-America honors, but he is not a scoring threat.

WEAK AGAINST PASSES

"The line from tackle to tackle is big and strong and should hold its own if it remains intact. Baker, a running guard, and another Spaniard named Rosenberg, are you kidding us, Hennah's are outstanding. The ends are only fair and certainly will need secondary defensive help to stop the Notre Dame running attack. And when those halfbacks get to coming up fast to help stop the Schwartz running plays the Irish who can pass when the occasion demands are sure to give that secondary a busy afternoon.

"A similar state of affairs in the game with St. Mary's cost Southern California its only defeat. St. Mary's was outrushed, 16 first downs to three, but two passes were good for two touchdowns and the score was 13-7. Passing should play an important part in Saturday's game, and this Coast team is extremely weak in its defense against this type of play. Coach Jones has recognized this, for he has played a six-man line all season to strengthen the secondary. A six-man line against Notre Dame's running plays figures to be rather dangerous.

SUMS UP FACTORS

"The reserve strength, always a deciding factor in Southern Cal's game, should favor Notre Dame. There is a great difference between the first and second string of Southern Cal.

"Add to this the fact that the game is being played in South Bend, where, if memory serves me, the Irish have lost only one game in 27 years—to Carnegie Tech in 1928. Southern Cal needs plenty of home encouragement. It is a front running team and does not come from behind as a rule. It is susceptible to early discouragement and Notre Dame teams have the rare faculty of discouraging opponents. A hostile crowd will not help the Trojans.

"Pre-game psychology favors Southern Cal because overconfidence does not lie on its side after the 27-0 defeat of its considered unbeatable team by the Irish last year.

"Summing up, the advantages of Southern Cal are:

"1—Great power offense.

"2—Fine running back, Mohler; great blocker, Pinckert.

"3—Favorable pre-game psychology.

FACTORS AGAINST SUCCESS

"Factors against Southern Cal:

"1—Lack of real team speed and therefore deception on offense.

"2—Mediocre ends, which must weaken the secondary and present a weakened forward pass defense.

"3—Unfavorable balance in reserve strength.

"4—Playing at South Bend."

Levy adds that he would like to see Notre Dame win to knock some of the cockiness out of the Coast fans and critics who think the best football is played in their backyard and point to Oregon's 14-6 victory over N. Y. U. after losing 53-0 to Southern California. He also says that no matter what team is selected to play Southern California in the Tournament of Roses game on New Year's Day, regardless of the outcome of the Notre Dame game, it is doomed to defeat because, in addition to the disadvantage of the visitors in playing in California's climate, Southern California is strong enough to beat any team except one of Notre Dame's proportions.

ROSE TOURNEY DOPE

Levy tips the mitt that Northwestern can have the bid to play the Trojans, if it wants it, and that Tulane, 20-7 victor over Georgia last Saturday, is the second choice.

(What about the reports that our Pitt Panthers may yet be invited out there again, Henry, old bean?)

Y. M. H. A. FIVES COP

The Y. M. H. A. basketball team walloped the Grove City Merchants, 51 to 16, on the Y. M. H. A. court last night. The Y. M. H. A.'s B team defeated Downtown Y, 33-21, at Downtown Y.

CASTLE BOWL REOPENS

FIGHTS TONIGHT

Bucky Lawless vs. Jackie Stewart, 10 rounds; Johnny Kusic vs. Frankie Stellmack, and Eddie Flick vs. Angelo Verglone, 6 rounds each, and Petey Jahn vs. Bobby Rowe, 4 rounds, Castle Bowl, New Castle, Pa.

Baby Stribling vs. Bob Allison, 10 rounds, Bluefield, W. Va.

Maxie Rosenbloom vs. Bob Godwin (now title), 10 rounds, Birmingham, Ala.

Eddie Simms vs. Jack O'Dowd, Joe Sekland vs. Jack Brezenbar and Frankie Chatterton vs. Eddie Rojack, 6 rounds each, Cleveland.

Lou Bloom vs. Manuel Castro, 10 rounds, Dayton.

Danny Russell vs. Danny Devito, 10 rounds, and Billy Kilrain vs. Lew Lafferty, 8 rounds, Philadelphia.

Jake Friedman vs. Joe Glazer, 6 rounds, Baltimore.

Boxing will be resumed in New Castle tonight, following a long layoff, when Apples Meyers blossoms forth as the new promoter in the Castle Bowl, formerly the Jolly Bowl. The show originally was billed for last Friday night, but was set back a week.

Bucky Lawless, of Syracuse, and Jackie Stewart, of Chicago, subbing for Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, a pair of experienced welterweights, meet in the 10-round main bout with Johnny Kusic and Frankie Stellmack in the semi-final. Eddie Flick and Angelo Verglone in the second bout and Petey Jahn and Bobby Rowe in the four-round opener.

Mose Butch and Jackie Rodgers will meet in a return bout at the Bowl next Friday night. Butch also has a match in the making with Al Brown, the world bantamweight champion, at Motor Square Garden on December 14. If it is arranged, Brown's title will not be at stake as the bout will be signed at a pound or two over the bantamweight limit.

Between Rounds

The card is complete for the George Parisi-Tom Grande show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, with Sid Terris meeting Leo Petrone and Johnny Cooper engaging Young Rudy in two eight-round bouts and Dan Fraser and Lou Saunders boxing the six-round opener. Tony Herrera and Johnny Jadick box a return bout at the garden one week from Monday, with Carlos Herrera, Tony's welterweight brother, in the first local appearance carded against Marty McHale in the semi-final.

Jimmy Moore, local middleweight, who has beaten Tiger Joe Weil twice and recently evened his record with Jack Fegers at the Garden, says he will protest a plan whereby Mickey Nguyen, Garden mainstay, is slated to show West against Ben Jeby when the recent conqueror of Buck McTiernan returns here. According to Moore, he will insist that West go through with a contract for a bout slated with him, called off when West was taken ill. At least Moore will demand that West pass his scheduled bout first, before he will stand aside and agree to the scheduling of a West-Jeby affair.

Moore has quite a record at that. He is an experienced boxer who has a lot of good fighting before coming here. Among others he has defeated are Jimmy Roberts, Al Gleason, Joe Glass, Red Chase and Tiger Paine, and he says he can box better with good opponents than against ordinary ones.

Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, continues his comeback attempt in a 10-round bout with Hunter Brown at Baltimore, Monday night.

Tony Canzoneri expects to scale 10 to 131 pounds or less for his bout with Kid Chocolate in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, and if he does, he will be in line to win his fourth world title and become the record holder of those champions who won three championships. Tony is the former featherweight champion and won and lost his lightweight and junior welterweight crowns against Chocolate while holding but the latter's junior-lightweight diadem.

Bassey Ouzts showed a return to his best form in his bout with Eddie Eberman at Wheeling last Monday night, and should be ready when he tackles Sammy Fuoco, of New York, at Motor Square Garden, December 7.—HARRY KECK.

DOLLAR GAINS WORLD-WIDE PRESTIGE

Demonstration in Recent Crisis Strengthens Hold Of New Money Capital

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—In connection with the recent historic supplanting of London by New York as financial center of the world, the new capital of money demonstrated its impregnability in recent weeks by meeting calmly and courageously the panicky and hasty foreign withdrawals of gold in an amount in excess of $200,000,000.

Mr. Rukeyser

The demonstration of power during the recent crisis has heightened the prestige of the dollar everywhere, and as a result there has been a cessation of abnormal foreign withdrawals and a decline in hoarding at home.

After analysing the gold holdings that remain in the United States, Dr. B. M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank, the largest commercial bank here, concluded that New York is in a position to pay out more gold than the rest of the world is in position to call for.

GOLD ABUNDANT

"The ability of the Federal Reserve System to pay out gold is enormous. It can certainly pay out far more gold than foreign countries are in a position to demand, and still have an adequate reserve of lending power. The only complication that could arise would be if the member banks were not in a position to borrow from the Federal Reserve banks, through lack of eligible paper and government securities. The answer to this point is absolutely reassuring, as the member banks of the Federal Reserve System hold approximately $7,500,000,000 of eligible paper and United States government securities on October 21, 1931."

The Chase economist scolds London bankers, and indicates that they could have avoided going off the gold standard if they had had the courage to raise interest rates sharply.

KEYNES ANSWERED

Shortly after England went on an inconvertible paper money basis, John Maynard Keynes, heterdox British economist, said: "Would the gold standard countries be interested to learn the terms, which must needs be strict, on which we should be prepared to enter the system of a drastically reformed gold standard?"

By way of reply, Dr. Anderson said:

"The answer to Mr. Keynes on this point is that we are not interested. The rules of the gold standard are based on economic laws, and not on political choice. They are: Paying out gold on demand; keep demand liabilities within such limits that creditors trust you to do this; reinforce the confidence of creditors by courageously meeting demand liabilities in critical situations, and by building through the generations a reputation for doing this, even though your gold reserves go low."

National Steel Declares Regular Dividend

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NATIONAL STEEL CORPORATION is the only outstanding organization in its industry which has neither cut nor passed its dividend during the past two years of depression.

Directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable December 10 to stockholders of record November 30.

This dividend was established with an initial payment March 10, 1930, shortly after the formation of the National Steel Corporation by the merger of the Weirton Steel Company, Great Lakes Steel Company and the ore, steamship and blast furnace properties of the M. A. Hanna Company. Early this year the Michigan Steel Company was acquired.

Earned $3.91 a Share

THE COMPANY EARNED $3.91 a share in 1930, the first year of its operations. Profits this year are expected to be close to the annual dividend requirement. The company was the only steel company to earn its dividend requirements in the first nine months of the present year. Earnings for the fourth quarter probably will be less than dividend requirements, but the margin over dividends in the early part of the year will bring 1931 earnings close to the $2 mark.

In the first nine months of the year net profit was $3,774,610, or $1.75 a share on 2,156,832 shares of stock. This was 25 cents a share in excess of dividends for the period. In the third quarter net profit was $326,113, or 15 cents a share.

During this period most other steel companies reported losses or comparatively small profits.

Rivers Used

THE EXCEPTIONAL RESULTS shown by National under adverse business conditions are attributable to the fact that operations are concentrated at a few strategically located plants. All these are modern and fully integrated operating units.

The principal plant at Weirton makes extensive use of river transportation in securing its coal from the upper Monongahela and also uses the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers for the distribution of its products. The plants at Detroit are in one of the largest steel consuming centers. None of the other large steel companies has important plants so near to the automobile district.

Steel Dividend Cuts

NATIONAL'S RECORD OFFERS a sharp contrast to most other steel companies. During the past two years all the major producers have been compelled to either cut or pass dividends. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Inland and Allegheny have reduced their common dividends this year.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Jones and Laughlin, Colorado Fuel and Iron, and Wheeling Steel have passed their common dividends this year.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The bond market continued heavy today, and such activity as developed was concentrated among a few leading issues.

Trading in obligations of the United States government continued of moderate proportions, but the downward trend was plain.

Public utility, railroad and foreign obligations experienced larger sales as a rule than the industrial loans.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Stocks Decline — Local Market Quiet

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DECLINE

Share Selling Relaxes After Heavy Opening, But List Again Slides

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP.)—Most of the financial markets skidded today, although in the case of securities the downward movement was accompanied by little increase in activity.

Stocks had a heavy tone and the bond market again assumed a spongy appearance. The breast on wheat contributed to the speculative gloom in the moment here and many so-called pivotal issues lost at least a couple of points, several touching new lows. But silver up ⅛ of a cent to 30¾ cents an ounce, held the fort alone for the almost forsaken cause of the advance.

Selling in shares relaxed somewhat after a heavy opening and partial recoveries of moderate losses were made, but the decline was resumed coincident with the opening of the Chicago grain pit. United States Steel met particularly insistent pressure dropping more than 2 points to a level that closely approximated its bear market low. National Biscuit, Coca Cola, American Telephone, International Harvester, Air Reduction, Columbian Carbon, Montgomery and Lambert yielded 2 to 9, while in the rails New York Central, Union Pacific, Nickel Plate, Delaware and Hudson, Chicago Northwestern preferred and Illinois Central reached new minimums on losses of 1 to 4 or more.

The favorable banking and credit situation revealed by the weekly Federal Reserve statements was ignored by a market which obviously felt the decline had gained sufficient momentum to warrant lower prices, especially since weekend trade reviews made rather negative comment on the state of trade.

Nevertheless, Wall street could not entirely disregard the story told by the bank figures. Money in circulation dropped $46,000,000, indicating that the bad case of nerves which had prompted a serious amount of hoarding was responding to treatment.

Retail trade is running considerably behind a year ago. Dun's, however, felt justified in saying that sales totals for November and December would be brought "nearly" to the 1930 level. Christmas club funds, soon to be released, are expected to stimulate buying; however, it is possible that an unusually large part of these savings will be left in the banks this year.

Call funds eased slightly "outside," but there was little real change in the complexion of the money markets.

COTTON OPENS HIGHER, SAGS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 3 points on covering and trade buying, which was promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables. January sold up to 6.31 and May to 6.65. Later the market encountered some Southern selling or realizing.

Prices sagged back to about yesterday's closing quotations by the end of the first half hour. A private report was issued estimating the ginnings prior to November 14 at 13,700,000 bales.

Liverpool cables attributed the steadiness here to continental and Bombay buying, and reported a fair inquiry for cotton cloth from India, although many offers were unworkable. Egyptian futures in the Alexandria market was 22 to 60 points higher.

Reports of large cotton sales to Japan were current in the trade during the morning, but were evidently without much effect. The market worked gradually lower under some further southern selling and liquidation, while there may have been some local selling on the easiness in wheat and stocks. Trading was not active and the price movement comparatively narrow, but January sold off to 6.22, and May to 6.58 with the market showing net losses of about 5 to 6 points at midday.

Forbes

How Busy Are 'Noble' Short Sellers Now?

—By B. C. FORBES—

WILL PRESIDENT WHITNEY of the New York Stock Exchange tell us just how much short selling has been going on lately?

The public would be more interested in having short selling figures not weeks or months later but up-to-date. Exclusive possession by the stock exchange governors of the volume of short selling day by day and keeping the customers of the institution in the dark is hardly an ideal arrangement from the public viewpoint.

Mr. Forbes

THE EXCHANGE gives immediate and full publicity in the regular volume of sales in each stock. The exchange management in recent years have advocated a fuller measure of publicity by corporations. At this moment President Whitney and his co-governors are striving to induce all corporations whose stocks are listed on the exchange — to issue quarterly reports. They want customers and the public in general to receive more up-to-date facts.

Why should not President Whitney and his co-governors go the limit in providing the public with up-to-the-minute information concerning what's happening in their own organization?

More specifically, why not announce daily how much of the previous day's business represented short sales? Or, if this be not feasible, issue such information weekly?

IF SHORT SELLING in these unsettled times be the laudatory, invaluable, essential thing it is painted by the stock exchange authorities, why preserve secrecy as to its volume?

Short sellers have had such halos conferred on them that their noble efforts as saviors of the country surely should be rewarded at least to the extent of regularly announcing just how far they are going day by day to save the nation from going to wreck and ruin.

As a matter of fact, so much public interest has been aroused over the operations of short sellers that Congress seems likely to find out to whom chief credit is due for bearing the market. The bears are such modest gentlemen, however, that they are not at all enthusiastic over the prospect of having their nation-saving activities brought into the limelight.

Indeed, a wealthy gentleman, when talking to me the other day, seemed quite nervous over the prospect of having short sellers' names ferreted out by Congress and a record of their operations spread before the public.

Perhaps Congress, when it delves into the whole matter, may become so profoundly convinced of the nobleness of short selling that it will pass a vote of censure on the New York Stock Exchange governors for having suspended it for two days.

ANYWAY, SINCE the stock exchange refuses to ban short selling during these troublous times and since it daily collects short selling data, surely the public, to whom the exchange owes its existence, is entitled to receive promptly and fully the information gathered.

What possible harm could this do?

It perhaps would do something to mollify the bitterness which has sprung up among a large section of the public against the stock exchange and all that "Wall Street" represents. The public would feel that the stock exchange governors were ready and willing to share their short selling information with everybody and not hold it secret until long after the event.

Some Wall Street people haven't the slightest conception of the present temper of the public. Nor can they understand why any writer should criticize anything the stock exchange does.

They are too shortsighted to foresee what is likely to happen unless the stock exchange succeeds better than it has thus far succeeded in getting into the good graces of the public.

AMONG MANY similar letters received, comes this correction, from Eugene Black, member of the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals:

"You are entirely in error in your statement that federal employes are not subject to the income tax, including both members of the House of Representatives and the Senate. My recollection is that the salaries of federal judges are exempt from income tax on account of constitutional provision. Also the federal government has no authority to tax the salaries of state officers, but that has nothing to do with taxation of federal officers and employes, all are taxed."

Why should any public officials, federal or state, be treated, in the matter of taxes, differently from the rest of us? I not only have to pay a federal income tax but a New York state tax, although I live in New Jersey.

If the number of tax-eaters continue to be multiplied as rapidly as in recent years, the nation will be threatened with having almost as many tax-eaters as taxpayers.

COPPER MARKET WEAKENS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Fresh weakness developed in the copper price structure today. A reduction of one-half a cent a pound was made in the export quotation, bringing that figure to 7 cents and placing the foreign price on a parity with 6¾ cents in the domestic market.

Some speculative copper was available in the domestic market at 6½ cents a pound, the lowest price on record yesterday and it was reported that some of the metal was sold at that price. It was second-hand copper bought by a speculator in anticipation that an agreement on curtailment of production would be reached at the recent conference of world producers.

However, there has been practically no market for copper since the conferences broke up in an apparent impasse early in the week. One custom smelter lowered the domestic price a quarter of a cent to 6¾ cents a pound two days ago but met no buying even at that level. Although most of the other custom smelters have met that price, no sales at this figure have been reported.

Meanwhile reports reaching the trade from Brussels said that although the New York conference ended without any announcement it was understood in the Belgian capital that an agreement was reached in principle and that it was believed such differences as remain are likely to be settled.

Bankers Consider New German Credit

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Members of the American committee on German credits under the so-called standstill agreement are now in cable communication with Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, in regard to action to be taken in preparation for a new credit arrangement to replace the existing one which expires February 29.

A cable from Dr. Luther to the American committee, headed by Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing committee of the Chase National Bank, expressed the expectation that representatives of the American and German banks might begin negotiations very soon.

LESS CURRENCY IN CIRCULATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(INS.)—Another decrease in money circulation amounting to $46,000,000 for the week ending November 18, with an increase in the monetary gold stocks in the same period of $24,000,000, announced by the Federal Reserve Board, gave further cheer to the financial outlook today.

In two weeks money in circulation has declined $72,000,000, and gold increased $59,000,000. Money circulation November 18 was $5,471,000,000, an increase of $989,000,000 over the same period last year. This was the first time in several weeks that circulation has been less than a billion dollars under last year. Monetary gold stocks now are $4,370,000,000.

Officials see in the second successive week of decreased circulation a fairly strong indication that hoarding of money has been halted and that there has been a substantial increase in confidence in the banking structure.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Fred Kletzli, who passed away one year ago today, November 20, 1930.
The moon and stars are shining,
Upon a lonely grave,
Where sleeps our husband and father,
We loved, but could not save.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best,
May God grant you eternal rest.
From your loving wife and three children.

light—a house that used to bear the name of Runners Rest.

But, according to owners and lessees and sub-tenants who had speedily departed, there was no rest here, for the house had an "unearthly" tenant. It was haunted they said.

THE RIGHT PLACE

A ghost stalked through the rooms by night. So new nobody would live in it.

Could it be possible, good heavens, that Imogen had instituted a gathering of the clan in this desolate and isolated spot?

Laurel slowed her car albeit nervously and glanced up at the shuttered windows. She remembered how venturesome village children had smashed the panes of glass, by day, after the last tenant had departed.

This was a house which even those who were not particularly superstitious avoided.

Then, at one side she saw a light as her car moved forward. Here were broken gates flung back . . . and yes! beyond those bushes and lost inside the wilderness of deserted garden were parked a half a dozen roadsters!

So in this haunted house was the new and intriguing night club of which Imogen had boasted.

"A nice cheerful spot for a party!" thought Laurel as she turned her own car through the dilapidated entrance and stopped her engine. Then she locked the machine and proceeded gingerly on foot up the mossy driveway.

Nearing the house, she now heard sounds of revelry. Then Roger Sartoris flung a side-door open (probably it had been the servants' entrance) and a light streamed out across her path.

"Hi there, you sweetheart! Step in and do the old voh-doh-dee-o-ing!" he laughed.

Like a flash, Imogen was behind him. She called out sarcastically: "Ah, here comes our little blue-eyed playmate!"

LIQUOR PLENTIFUL

And at that moment Laurel felt a queer kind of revulsion against Imogen. But she contrived to fling back, carelessly: "Maybe blue's a whole lot cooler than the color of your own eyes, Im, which are yellowy-green right now, like a cat's!"

"Whoops!" burbled Freddie DeFarge, drawing the speaker rapturously into the haunted mansion, "to be cool but look hot is certainly a swell line with you fair maids!"

The dilapidated room that gave directly on this side-door seemed quite full. It was illuminated by an old-fashioned lantern someone had brought, augmented by a half dozen guttering wax candles. Someone was twanging on a ukulele. On a long trestle table which workmen apparently had left behind them (scared by the "ghost," who knows?) were set forth a bevy of bottles.

Around this table was "the gang." "Introduction to our cocktail bar! The bright idea was my own. Original, isn't it?" And Freddie pushed her forward.

"Hotsy-totsy, what?" murmured a red-haired girl whose eyes already had a glassy stare. She grinned at Laurel.

"Freddie, what a weird idea! Don't you know this house is supposed to be haunted?"

"Don't you think the idea's cute?"

Breathed Laurel: "No. I think it's awful!"

"Come on. Don't be a dead-head. Join in with the local gazelles and make whoopee." Imogen admired her.

"Here's to Im's motto. Eat, Drink and Be Merry—as Hell," cried a slim, slender-legged young thing, waving a brimming glass at Laurel.

"Half the crowds already plastered to the gills. You're late. What kept you?" cried Imogen excitedly.

"My string of other dates, of course," said Laurel pertly.

"Ha!" Imogen flashed her a green glance. "Roger was late too. That your doing?"

DANCER IN ATTENDANCE

"No. Dynamic though my sex appeal may be, it doesn't reach as far as that." But Laurel was annoyedly conscious that under her paint and powder she was blushing. She had remembered Roger's kiss . . . "the kiss that hurts" . . . it had been lingering.

"M'm. Sex-appeal is out of date. The term's 'B. U.' Biological Urge! Be modern."

"I confess this latest stunt is just a bit too gay for me! Hooch—in a ruin!"

"Oh, be yourself! Don't be a goof!"

And the irrepressible Freddie poured her out a glass and presented it to Laurel, chanting:

"Come on, you ghosts, and I'll fix you something that'll put new life into you!"

The red-haired girl stepped over and joined them. Behind her was Roger.

"Meet the tired businessman's delight," caroled Freddie. "She's a dancer from the Scurrilities. Puts the Fick into the chorus. A prize little hip-twister."

The red-haired girl giggled foolishly. "Not much kick to you but in the booze—too much—oh, boy!"

Imogen turned up her nose. "Ruby's cock-eyed already!"

"Who is she?" whispered Laurel. "Don't you think she's awfully pretty?"

"Nope. Common type. Came down here tonight on the track of a rich 'Sugar.' Missed him apparently. Ran into Freddie. She's filling in the time with us until he runs her in his car to make the last train up . . . the 11:50."

ROGER PREFERS LAUREL

"That's all you know about her? Seems to me I've seen her somewhere . . ."

"In the front row of the Scurrilities? They must have given her the air, or she wouldn't be here . . ."

"And if some kind soul doesn't give her the air right now, she'll be a dead one on us."

"Oh, too much hitting the high spots."

Laurel felt disgusted.

She finished her own glass of champagne, then turned imperiously to Roger.

"If you want to add color and gladness to my young life, will take me out from this howling menace?"

He consented with alacrity.

"Ha! Going to perfect your petting technique?" jibed Imogen after them.

"Pay no attention to Im," said Roger coolly, "she's pie-eyed with jealousy."

"How?"

"Oh, she can't bear to be left standing in the rain. I speak metaphorically."

"The rain of drinks?"

"Ah, there she's quite at home! I mean she thinks I've given her the razzberry."

"But do you like Im?"

"Oh, she's all right, but I know someone a whole lot sweeter."

"Who?" asked Laurel coquettishly.

"Someone not a foot away from me!—and soon she's going to be a whole lot nearer—"

And in the uncertain light—in the neglected grounds of the abandoned house—Roger put his two arms about her.

SAYS HE WANTS HER

"You've a high pressure nerve to act this way," exclaimed Laurel, drawing out of the radius of Roger's arms after he had kissed her, "my little brain is all a-whirl! I'll say you're an exciting devil!"

"You feel the way I do?" the man breathed in her ear.

"Oooh! sotch a goose-flesh!"

"Laurel, I'm crazy about you! I love you to death—"

"That builds me right up seeing we're doing our stuff where the ghost walks."

"Baby girl, don't kid!"

"How I do slay 'em!"

"Aren't you ever serious at all?"

"Wowie!"

"Laurel, I'm crazy about you! I love you to death—"

"Laurel, don't turn me down!"

"Why shouldn't I, with Imogen forever sitting in your vest pocket?"

"But it's you I want!"

"Ha! so the villain leads Little Eva into an ambush?"

"What do you mean? Ambush?"

"Well, there's two kinds. The sort that fills the ears full of rice . . . and the sort that fills the ears full of hooey! Don't spill the banana oil in mine, old dear, because I'm wise to you."

"And if I'm not nutty about you, what am I doing?"

"Perfecting your petting technique, as Imogen just hinted."

"Never mind Imogen! She's out of my life if you'll only step into it!"

"She'll be hot-footing it here in a minute if you don't quit the roustabout!"

"I tell you, Laurel, you've only got to say the word and I'm through with her!"

"As gallant as that?" she mocked.

"So that's what a female gets for—what's the word?—throwing her bonnet over the windmill?"

"Laurel, wherever did you hear that expression?"

"Well, that's what they do be saying down by the old mill stream."

"That Imogen and I—?"

"Are that way about each other. So why should I cop her Number One he-male, and drive the poor girl into a nunnery?"

"Im as a nun? God, I can't see it!"

"Nor can I. Maybe I'm going nuts myself. Put it down to the high pressure stuff, and the quaint scenery!"

"It is rather spooky here! Come closer and you won't get the shivers!"

"Maybe the electric current's worse! Running into hundreds . . . your voltage!

"Laurel, give me a chance—"

"To frizzle me up? Nothing doing"

"Because of Im? That's only hot air—"

"I tell you, Roger, your fatal charms would be my R-U-I-N!"

"But you did kiss me a few minutes ago! Just as though you meant it too," he pleaded, his arms about her again in the uncertain moonlight.

"Because a girl has a glass of champagne and it makes her sort of playful for a moment isn't any reason why you should get all het up about it."

"Fooling me, were you?"

"Mayhap. You darned old profiteer."

A streak of light penetrated. "D'you mean—marriage?"

"I do. But I'm not thinking of you that way. You may be a sheik, Roger, but what with your present entanglements and your two divorces, you're no gilt-edged security!"

Roger was huffed. "What the hell, Laurel! I don't know why I stand for you!"

"Nor do I." She was thrilled, just the same, over her unexpected power, however temporary, over this man whom the other girls were wild over. "To get me all warm and confused is your ambition, I know. Go right on hoping!"

"Little minx! I could spank you, and then eat you, Laurel!"

"Well, 'hope is a light diet, but very stimulating.' That's in a book by Balzac. It's appropriate to your cannibalism!"

"So. You do get a kick out of my feeling? You're not just a little frozen angel with the wings sprouting? You're not just joshing?"

"I'm here, playing with fire and you, because—as the song says—'there's a little bit of bad in every good little girl!'" chanted Laurel, twisting dexterously away from him. She started to run towards the house, but Roger was soon apace with her.

"Hold on!" He caught her arm.

"Whoops! Enough of this maidenly jiu jitzu!" she giggled.

But he drew her back into the shadow for a moment as the side-door of the mansion opened, and Freddie DeFarge and the red-haired girl who had looked upon the wine not wisely but too well, appeared.

"He's got to get her to her train. The last one up. And she's snozzled!" whispered Laurel.

"What the deuce is that to us? What's a hundred ginger Cleopatras when you're here?"

Freddie passed near them, a firm arm round the waist of the inebriated damsel.

"If it was any of the rest—you, for instance!—I'd stick by her. But Freddie's a good scout!" said Laurel.

They saw him help the girl into his car and then drive away to the railroad station.

"Stuccoed to the ears!" quoth Laurel slangily. "D'you know, Roger, sometimes I don't blame the older folk for knocking us younger ones?"

Surprised at herself, she waited his reply. He said, sucrinctly:—"It's out of the picture for a pretty girl like you to start moralizing."

"Doesn't suit your book, old dear?" she jibed at him. "I know the next move! I know what you're going to say. That a girl should plunge in deep, and that experience and you are grand little teachers!"

"Well, aren't they?"

"Mayhap. I'll try anything once, as the fat girl said when she put her head in the gas oven!"

"Laurel, you mean it?"

"No. Sublimate it! Telephone a psycho-analyst and find out why I'm freezing instead of burning!"

And at that moment the door of the deserted house again opened. An admirer of Laurel's stood there, calling her by name . . .

"That's Foggy! We'd best go in—" said she.

"Where is the girl that's crazy for me. Down in the pale moonlight?" Foggy was chanting.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR COMIC CLUB

Here we are in our permanent location on the Comic Page of the Sun-Telegraph. It will be an easy matter now to find the news of the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club. Watch this column daily to keep in touch with the activities of the club. Your own chapter will be mentioned as often as possible, so that other chapters may know what you are doing.

ELECTION DAY NEAR

On Saturday, November 28, new Grand Jesters and Boards of Governors will be elected in each of the 15 chapters. The officers now serving will retire and new boys and girls will take their places to serve for four weeks. The rules of the election will be announced at the chapter meetings tomorrow.

Boy and Girl Scout troops are taking a great interest in the Junior Komic Club. Andy Benson, chief Scout Executive, has addressed the children at the Enright and Harris (Diamond street) chapters. The Girl Scouts of Dormont put on a first aid demonstration at the South Hills (Dormont) Chapter. Every meeting of the Belmar Chapter is closed with the salute to the flag by the Boy Scouts, and the East Liberty troop frequently puts on exercises at the Enright.

ATTRACTIVE PRIZES

Gifts and prizes are distributed at every meeting of every chapter. There are games and contests in which any member may participate. Song reels and special pictures are shown. Talented boys and girl appear on the stage in song and dance numbers.

At most of the chapters, every boy and girl having a birthday within the week is given a big birthday cake with his or her name on it. In a very short time every chapter will do this.

Everything is done to give the members a good time. If you have not already joined this wonderful club, go to the meeting at your neighborhood theater tomorrow morning, and join. You will find the time of the meeting listed elsewhere.

A Complaint

By Tuthill

WHY MOTHER YOU LOOK SO FLUSTERED. WHAT—?
OH NOTHING MUCH, JUST A FEW DIGS AT THE BRIDGE CLUB. FROM THAT MRS SLINKER WHO HAS THOSE THREE DUMPY-LOOKING DAUGHTERS. YOU WENT TO SCHOOL WITH THE OLDEST. THE ONE WITH TOW COLORED HAIR AND BIG TEETH.
OH YES, I REMEMBER. HER NAME IS JEANETTA. SHE WORE HER HAIR SO FUNNY AND—
WELL FUNNY HAIR OR NOT PEGGY, SHE'S MARRIED! AND SO IS HER SISTER! AND THE THIRD ONE IS ENGAGED TO A MAN WHOSE FATHER OWNS ABOUT HALF OF BULGARIA, OR ONE OF THOSE COUNTRIES. HE'S A DUKE OR SOMETHING
THAT'S LETITIA! THE YOUNGEST. I HEARD ALL ABOUT THAT. HE'S NO DUKE. HE'S SIMPLY—
THE DIGS THAT WOMAN GAVE ME WENT IN ONE EAR AND OUT THE OTHER ONE. BUT JUST THE SAME IT MADE ME THINK. ESPECIALLY THE WAY SHE ROLLED HER EYES WHILE TRYING TO TELL ME YOU WERE A FULL YEAR OLDER THAN YOU ARE.
OH WHY BOTHER ABOUT THE PERFECTLY SILLY THINGS PEOPLE SAY! I'D TELL THEM TO MIND THEIR OWN BUSINESS AND—
WELL PEGGY PEOPLE DON'T COME RIGHT OUT AND SAY THINGS. THEY JUST GIVE YOU A LITTLE DIG NOW AND THEN. BY WAY OF NO HARM. ANYHOW AS YOU INTIMATE, WHY WORRY? I SUPPOSE THE ONLY REASON I EVEN MENTION THE MATTER IS BECAUSE I'M REMINDED OF IT SO OFTEN BY WOMEN WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS. MARRIED DAUGHTERS.

ASIDE FROM THAT EVERYTHING'S O. K.

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

A. H. Lintz, president of the Barton County Telephone Company, doesn't think this town has been giving his system a fair deal. We have found nails driven in our cables, he says, and in two houses the connecting wires have been cut by the user of the telephone, himself. Then he has gone out and cursed the company. In one house, when the superintendent went to repair the line, the folks inside would hide and pretend like they were not at home. We were handicapped, too, by our lineman. He was unreliable.

SONG OF GLADNESS

News Item — "Science has contrived a system of flashing electric currents through idle muscles which makes it possible to exercise while lying in bed."

For years I've searched my weary head
For ways to get me out of bed
In time to work, in time to play,
In time to eat three meals a day,
Or time to go to bed again;
But always I have sought in vain
People may shout and clocks may ring,
At sleep I still will take my fling.
The pangs of hunger, even they
Will seldom drive me from the hay.
But science, blessed science, now
Has solved my problem grave, and how!
For out of bed, I know I'd rise
To get away from exercise.

Mr. Armstrong's Death

Allegheny County Has Lost a Citizen Who Did Much for Its Advancement.

In the death of Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, former Mayor of Pittsburgh, and a leader in the public life of this community for many years, a citizen has passed who contributed much to the advancement of the city and county.

The tunnels which bear his name and numerous bridges, highways and public edifices stand as monuments of his work as a builder.

Mr. Armstrong had a warm heart and a genial manner. It was these qualities as well as his shrewdness that gave him his remarkable success in politics. Anyone might well envy him the thousands of loyal friends who have followed his leadership.

Mr. Armstrong's political opponents will join with his faithful henchmen in regretting his death.

A Daring Tax Plan

Council Is Asked to Reduce the Millage Sharply Before Adopting the Budget.

The Building Owners and Managers' Association has asked Council to do a daring thing.

It is proposed that the tax rate be sharply reduced for 1932 before the budget is adopted.

Then with income definitely limited, appropriations for the various municipal departments and activities will have to be made to conform.

Council is asked to measure out a quantity of cloth far smaller than was available last year and limit, accordingly, the size of the coat.

It is asked to burn its bridges behind it in the march towards tax reduction—to cut the millage for 1932 to 20.5 mills on land and 10.25 mills on buildings, a reduction of five mills on land and 2.5 mills on the building tax—and thus make it impossible to spend more money than will be received from the reduced levy.

The Building Owners and Managers' Association takes it for granted that the city government can be administered satisfactorily on the smaller income proposed.

But there may be a risk in this assumption. It is notorious, of course, that there has been extravagance in city expenditures under the Kline administration. A great deal of money has been spent that could have been saved without the least sacrifice of efficiency.

Probably no risk would be taken in fixing the levy, say, at three mills less on land before the budget is adopted. It is suspected, however, that there are citizens no less desirous than the Building Owners and Managers' Association of a tax reduction, and just as well informed on municipal affairs, who will hesitate about recommending a five-mill cut before the budget requirements have been studied.

Much as a drastic cut in the tax rate is to be desired, we cannot afford seriously to cripple the city government, if that is what will result from it.

Let us not leap in the dark, but find out what the facts are before acting.

Council should make all possible haste in consideration of the budget items, that an early decision may be reached on the millage for next year.

A Tin Cup for Coffee

A Gently Reared Woman, Accustomed to China, Might Find It a Hardship.

Mrs. Laverna Culbertson, the Mt. Lebanon woman who is charged with manslaughter as the result of the shooting of her husband last Sunday afternoon, complains of her treatment while in jail awaiting the inquest.

Warden John McNeil brushes the charges aside with the remark that her principal grievance was that she had to drink coffee from a tin cup.

The principle of relativity applies to small things as well as to the heavenly bodies. To have to drink from a tin cup would be of little importance to most persons; but to a gently reared woman, accustomed to china, it might easily be a humiliation and a hardship.

If you doubt it, read the painfully vivid novel "Ultima Thule," by Henry Handel Richardson, in which you will find a description of the feelings of an insane physician when, on being committed to an asylum, he was required to eat from tin dishes.

The tin cup incident is, perhaps, not worthy of serious attention; but another complaint that has been made in connection with this tragic affair cannot be dismissed so lightly.

Albert, Jr., 11-year-old son of the dead man, desired to attend his father's funeral in Mt. Vernon, O., Wednesday. Coroner McGregor had decided to hold the inquest on the day of the funeral. He refused to change the date of the inquest or to excuse the boy from attending. Albert was not called upon to testify, but was kept from the funeral.

It seems there might have been a little more consideration for this boy.

A Grand Jury Case

It Is No Wonder Resort Keepers Reopen When They Are Let Off With Light Fines.

Immoral resorts in the neighborhood of the Franklin School have exercised so bad an influence that the school authorities have expressed the wish that it might be removed elsewhere.

This intolerable situation has gone on for a long time and the police seem incapable of remedying conditions. If they had decent co-operation from the magistrates there might be hope of cleaning up the neighborhood.

On complaint of the school authorities a nearby house was raided recently and four persons arrested.

Inspector Albert Beebe testified in Morals Court yesterday that the place had been raided numerous times, but that the proprietor immediately reopened.

This would seem to be a case for the grand jury. But instead of holding the defendants for court the magistrates let two of them off with light fines and discharged the others.

It is no wonder resort keepers reopen when the penalty is not to be dreaded.

The average woman spends half her time shopping for the clothes she'll need if she goes anywhere—and the other half thinking up places to go, so that she can wear some of the clothes she has bought.

If someone needs you,
Then be sure,
You will find power,
To endure
The hurts and hardships,
To defeat
The pains and perils
You must meet.

If someone needs you,
You will learn
How brightly fires of Life can burn;
How, without question,
Without fail,
Your puny forces
Will avail.

If someone needs you,
Ah, how good
When someone's need is

To triumph through that Need which arms

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Thoughts while strolling: That hard-boiled West Forty-seventh street block where drunks once tossed an inoffensive waiter out the seventh story window just for a laugh. Morton Downey grows steadily in popularity. The fun a lot of us could have had with his voice back in the barber shop chord days.

Cole Porter, a Peru (Ind.) boy, who made good in the city. Those tight-collared Broadway lads who drawl: "Lo, Moe, how are you, boy?" Frank McIntyre and his winter derby. Twenty-five cents vaudeville houses again. Jed Harris not doing so well this season, either. But aren't we all!

A sort of gloom about the Lambs and Friars these days. Noel Schaffa, the famous retriever of stolen jewels. Flashy South Americans who wear so many platinum and sapphire rings. Few Rialto characters remained vivid so long as Morris Gest. How many remember Cliff Gordon, "The German Senator?"

They say Ed Wynn has the most complete library of wit and humor in America. And nothing to me is so pathetically amusing as his fluttery laugh. George Jessel's long fierce black cigars. No wonder he's such an oyster white. Sidney Solomon, who runs the Casino. And a pal of the Mayor's.

Overheard: "Slip the sap ozone. He's a taxicab slobberer anyway." Every fellow I know called Ferdy is dapper and celebrity mad. Not many current debutantes could make the Follies. Or Minsky's, either, if you ask me. They run to molar beauty this season—all teeth. Claire Wallace Flynn, another writer.

"Snow birds" shivering in side streets. Awaiting dope runners. Hunched up coffee sippers in one-armed lunches. Awaiting the morning paper "Help Wanted" columns. Has anyone figured out yet why they call that music play "The Cat and the Fiddle?" Steve Hanagan and his beautiful bride.

Two sandwich men stop, converse, cackle at toothless cacophony and vanish in the gloaming. A former toast of the Rialto, now the consort of a night club doorman. Broadway. Vera Murray, of the Dillingham offices. That midnight mid-town church chime—like a dry painful sob.

In a sandwich sanctuary the other night I was interested in a conversation in an adjoining booth. They were discussing a song writer carried off to a hospital that late afternoon. "He cast another ruby," one explained. The waiter explained that "casting a ruby" was Broadway for a lung hemorrhage.

* * *

Harry Hirshfield tells of the Irishman who asked for a steak in a Roaring Forty cafe and was brought a filet mignon. Gazing at it, he sneered to the waiter: "I always leave more steak than that."

* * *

Suits for plagiarism among literary folk have had some odd twists. Sooner or later every writer is accused in one way or other. There would be possibly more of it save emotions and themes are not copyrightable and the law holds similarities are not always plagiarism. Perhaps the outstanding case of the last few years was Mrs. Sinclair Lewis' charge that Theodore Dreiser plagiarized from her book on Russia.

Other outstanding cases: Eugene O'Neill defeated Georges Lewys' in her claim he stole "Strange Interlude" from her; Albert Einstein was charged with stealing his "Unified Field" theory; H. G. Wells was found not guilty of lifting his "Outline of History;" Anne Nichols accused Universal of pirating "Abie's Irish Rose," but lost; Richard Walton Tully sued and was sued and both won in "The Bird of Paradise" cases; Harold Lloyd's company was found guilty of plagiarism; Cecil B. DeMille and Jean Macpherson have been sued six times and never found guilty of plagiarism; Zane Grey was accused and acquitted of stealing his book, "The Thundering Herd;" Bernard Shaw admitted taking another's material in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion;" Jack London was found not guilty; Charlie Chaplin won in America and lost in Germany and Edmond Rostand was convicted in Illinois and not in New York.

Anonymous purple tinted note: "You didn't know, but sitting next to you in a Waldorf waiting room last Monday afternoon was a real countess. And you chewing gum!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

My father, Alex Robinson, often said a strange and lovely thing.

His life had been very hard. He had known little but poverty, hard work and constant suffering. Yet he was never bitter. He believed in life. He believed in people. He believed that every man had a right to find happiness in life, in his own particular ways.

"DO NOT TAKE HIS SONG FROM ANY MAN," he said.

When he first said it, I did not know what he meant. I was very young, and at that instant, extremely naughty. With half a dozen other young ruffians, I had been teasing Happy Jack. Happy Jack was a village character. Very old, very dirty, slightly cracked. He lived in a shanty he had built from tin cans, and sang songs to himself. For "Happy Jack" thought he was a king—and age, dirt, hunger and poverty could not touch his deep content in his kingliness. But sometimes, for a miserable moment, our young jeers would penetrate. Then the bliss would suddenly be blotted from his face—and he would be a helpless, frightened old man, trying vainly to discover who and where he was.

Father had come upon me in such an evil time—sent us angrily upon our way, stayed to comfort poor old Jack. Afterward he talked to me long and quietly about people—and that dark experience of pain of which I knew so little. Then suddenly—looking far beyond me and seeming to forget me—he said—

"DO NOT TAKE HIS SONG FROM ANY MAN."

Of course I did not understand. It has taken me all my life to understand those eight words—to see that they are a Bill of Rights for the whole human race—and a religion as well.

"HIS SONG"—

Every man has his song—

Every man—regardless of who he is, shining saint or skulking sinner—every man has his song.

Such odd songs, some of them! Queer, secret prides—strange, hidden faiths—some memory that would seem like trash to other lives. A tangled dream, like poor old Happy Jack's. Every man has his song—something to keep him believing in himself and in life. Something that to him is Beauty and Truth and Power—and a vague vision of God.

Every man his song—

You may despise that man—you may think he is incapable of any song. You may jeer at his "dream that he is a king" as we young savages jeered at Happy Jack's. But you're wrong. There is a song in that man and that song is a sacred thing. That song—however trivial it may seem to you—is the one thing in that mind that binds him to all the mysterious and holy things in life.

Every man has his song—

DO NOT TAKE IT FROM HIM.

For if you take his song away, you have killed that life. You have cut off the secret source of his happiness and hope.

And how often we do try to take a man's song from him . . . and believe that we're doing him a favor!

"Listen to me," we say. "You're fooling yourself with that song. It's a silly song—a bad song—it won't get you anywhere. Don't be an idiot! Throw away your song and take mine instead. My song is infinitely better than yours. I'll teach you how to sing—if you'll sing as I tell you, you'll make a success of things."

How often we say that! Then wonder at the ungrateful wretch who won't accept our advice.

But he CAN'T accept our advice. No man can use another man's song. He must make his own song—and do his own singing—finding, very slowly, very painfully, better music as he goes.

When the Fruit of the Tree Is Sour

By Claude G. Bowers

Never has the world been more interesting, with so many potentialities of change, than it is today. We are looking upon a tremendous drama in the process of development, wondering what the next act will be and what the final denouement.

The crisis in the Far East is infinitely more than merely "another fight" between the Japanese and the Chinese; for Russia is in the offing and, unless the conferences of the nations can successfully mediate, it is not beyond the range of reason that Europe may be involved in another death struggle . . . In Ireland the age-old issues are reviving and peasant boys are drilling in the moonlight again for the "war with England." . . . Germany is waiting for conclusion of the negotiations on debts and reparations and Hitler's militant Fascists, with fine audacities, are moving toward power, having just won a sweeping victory at the polls. . . . Philip Snowden, once the most feared of the Socialists in England, has become a viscount and will move from the Commons to the more ornate and precious house of peers. . . . The English are pushing through a measure of 100 per cent tax on importations, entering the tariff war with a vengeance. . . . And Dino Grandi, young, brilliant, charming, embodying the idea of the power of the state, is conferring in Washington on armament and debts—a bit mysterious. . . . All the world's a stage, and never in history has the drama been more significant.

No Possible Escape

The President has abandoned the hope of postponing increases in the taxes until after the presidential election, coming over to the Democrats and the insurgents on the issue. With a deficit of two billion dollars at the end of the fiscal year certain, there is no escape. A prohibitive tariff act has reduced the customs revenue, and the bursting of the G. O. P. bubble in the market, leaving more wreckage than the Mississippi or the South Sea bubbles, has cut the revenue from income and corporation taxes appallingly. The cost of government goes on. Money must be raised; and money comes from taxes.

And it will be Congress, not the administration, that will determine where the taxes are to fall. The administration policy would be to spare the very rich as much as possible, but as certain as the revolutions of the earth is the increasing of the taxes in the higher brackets. Mr. Mellon will be unable to prevent it. Mr. Hoover may lack the courage to attempt it with an election coming on and the depression impressing on the people the tragic contradiction of millions depending on the bread of charity within the shadow of enormous fortunes.

(Editor's Note — A sales tax, such as is now being studied in Canada by a congressional delegation, would tend to prevent further taxation of individual incomes.)

There Are Doubters Now

The record of the administration will soon be complete and ready for the judgment of the people. The fruit is not in accord with the high-sounding promise. Perhaps the promise was too great. There is no greater vice than over-statement and none more dangerous. In 1928, and for a year before, we were assured that Mr. Hoover was a business "wizard" capable of putting government on a business basis; and when this was questioned, the skeptic was cited to his "sensational business successes in Europe." No one knew about these triumphs, but no one doubted. There are doubters now.

As a "business administration" that at Washington has been disappointing. Because of market-minded statesmanship and human greed we had the market crash bearing in the tide of general ruin individual fortunes, the savings of a life time, banks, business houses; and all this made inevitable by the violation of sound business and banking principles on which the administration smiled.

An administration marked by the blackest depression we have ever known.

And now the increasing of the burden of taxation!

Not Good Business Sense

And now we know, as the majority of the people foresaw, that it was not good business sense to raise a prohibition tariff wall; for the retaliation of other nations has lost us markets on which prosperity depended; and now our industries are more interested in building branch factories in other countries than in expanding their factories here.

That was not good business sense; it showed a lack of vision.

The great public building program promised touching on the rivers has not been undertaken.

The cost of government has not been lowered through the promised reorganization of the departments.

It is not fair to businessmen to call this a "business administration;" it is nothing of the sort.

Favors "A System of Social Insurance"

Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the most intellectual of the Republican leaders, has made a striking admission:

"The Republican party seems to me to be where the Whig party was in 1852-6. It has a fine tradition, it has a splendid constituency, but just now it appears to lack both unity, capacity and courage to deal with grave problems."

He calls upon his party to submit a definite program, and makes suggestions, including his well-known views regarding debts, reparations and international relations. Some of these suggestions have no partisan significance; some do; and where they do, they run counter to the thought of the administration. Thus he takes the Democratic view upon the tariff, and says:

"There is no use to speak of maintaining the standard of living and of keeping up the rates of wages through a high tariff when there are from six to seven million human beings who are getting no wages at all, and do not know where their livelihood is to come from."

Thus he favors "a system of social insurance," including unemployment insurance, "primarily at the instance of industry, and of state supervision if that be needed." Everyone would prefer that industry spontaneously and universally undertake the task without a word from government, but without governmental initiative of some kind, which need not involve it in payments, nothing general can be done, or will be.

1932 Will Not Be a Year for Pussyfooting

This submission by Dr. Butler of a plan to be discussed by his fellow Republicans is constructive, but will be destructive of the serenity of the administration. It does not like to be reminded that 1932 will not be a year for pussyfooting, but one for plain speaking. Issues, not prejudices; governmental policies, not matters having no proper relation to government in America, will determine the event.

And the "business administration" assurance will not now serve, since the business of the government is in a condition of confusion and chaos beyond anything seen by the present generation. Human nature will make the high-sounding promises of 1928 an issue, too; for even a child with a stunted brain who partakes of the fruit of a tree and finds it sour will pass on to another tree. The fruit of the administration has been sour enough.

SEEKING THE TRUTH

By Archibald Henderson

There are certain attributes of the scientific mind, certain qualities which distinguish the scientific temperament. These attributes and qualities are so commendable as to deserve to be held in mind as a subject of imitation and emulation by youthful aspirants. Many of these characteristics of the scientific mind are so worthy in nature, so lofty in spirit, as to warrant imitation and adoption by men and women of all ages.

First of all, one should take account of the fact that the true scientist finds work a joy, not a misery, overlooking a certain amount of drudgery connected with it as negligible in comparison with the keen satisfaction in discovering new scientific truths. The study of Nature has always been of perennial interest, a source of abiding satisfaction, to the true scientist. "In my laboratory," said Robert Boyle, "I find that water of Lethe which causes that I forget everything but the joy of making experiments."

The great German dramatist, Lessing, once said that if he held Truth in his right hand and the Pursuit of Truth in his left hand, he would choose the left. The great natural philosopher, Boyle, quoted above, is said to have remarked quaintly that he feared death only because after it he would know all things, and no longer have the delight of making discoveries.

An unusual combination was the Frenchman, J. B. A. Dumas, who was both a scientist and a man of affairs. On one occasion, he said, "The recollections of an already long life have permitted me to become acquainted with a great variety of personages. And if I call on memory to picture to me how the type of true happiness is realized on earth I do not see it under the form of the powerful man clothed in high authority, nor under that of the rich man to whom the splendors of luxury and the delicacies of well-being are granted, but under that of the man of science, who consecrates his life to penetrating the secrets of Nature and to the discovery of new truths."

The man of small caliber usually thinks he is a "Big Gun." It is the man of great attainments who is most likely to realize the imperfections of his knowledge. That is why the great scientist is usually without vanity; for he knows how small, how slight, is his achievement as compared with the magnitude of what remains to be discovered.

As Sir Richard Gregory says in Discovery, "Man as a physical being is but a microscopic part of the universe, yet his mind carries him ever upward, and with spirit bold and unconquerable he seeks to reach the summit of Mount Olympus."

Isn't It So?

All that is necessary to make the cold bath enjoyable is to add a little warm water.

Failure is not defeat. It is only getting a little experience.
